France May Pay.
Washington Parades.
Light in Darkness.
Beer, But Not Wine.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.

INTERNATIONAL pay day has come and gone, and Congress talks about reprisals against nations that have not paid.

There may come a surprise, pleasant for Uncle Sam, and appropriate for Christmas.

Within ten days, possibly within twenty-four hours, you may learn that France has changed her mind and decided to pay the nineteen millions odd, after all.

The President, doubtless, would accept the belated payment, if no "strings" were attached to it, and all would be Christmas cheer.

DEEP DOWN in the vaults of the Bank of England, gold worth in our money $95,500,000 has been "earmarked" as "property of Uncle Sam." Just how gold is earmarked, your deponent does not know. But you feel that earmarking a few bars of gold cannot greatly injure the empire on which the sun never sets.

Failure to earmark them might be damaging to a financial power that has billions owing to it, all over the earth. The defaulting habit is easily borrowed.

It seems safe to suggest that France will presently earmark, appropriately, some $19,000,000 worth of her golden treasure, which totals more than three thousand millions.

Many hundreds of millions are owed to France by Poland and others who might, so easily, acquire the "Sorry, but we cannot pay" habit.

THIS IS Washington's coldest day of the year, twenty degrees below freezing.

Some on Capitol Hill, called lame ducks, would change the line of the French poet "Il pleut dans mon coeur, comme il pleut dans la rue" to read:

"It freezes in my heart, as it freezes in the street."

THURSDAY NIGHT, official Washington and visitors from other cities attended the diplomatic reception at the White House. The diplomats, resplendent in radiant decorations, their coats, back, front, shoulders and sleeves, heavily embroidered in gold, made a fine sight for plain Americans.

The British ambassador, nearly seven feet high, was the most impressive figure, recalling your boyhood hero, the tall young Englishman of "Westward Ho."

President Hoover stood patiently smiling for nearly two hours, Mrs. Hoover beside him, while fifteen hundred passed and shook hands with him, diplomats, according to their seniority, senators, representatives, and a long string of the less important.

THE PRESIDENT looks cheerful. Perhaps he is glad to be free from four years more of responsibility, and let some one else take up the white man's war burden.

His intimate friends say that President Hoover will welcome the opportunity to repair, for his children's sake, the condition of his personal fortune, neglected during his term of office.

Washington believes that the senseless habit of allowing the public, sometimes three or four thousand at a time, to tug at the President's hand and arm will be abolished in the term of Gov. Roosevelt, for whom standing hours at a stretch would be a great hardship.

George Washington established the handshaking habit, supposed to be democratic, fixing five hand-shake functions for each year, and no President has cared to change a custom that seemed good enough for George Washington.

It might have been wiser to adopt Washington's ideas on European entanglements, rather than on handshaking.

A GLEAM of good business news is as welcome, in these times, as lamp light in a distant window on a dark night.

W. R. Hearst's Washington Herald supplies the good news. Mr. Flynn, managing editor, and Mr. Jewell, business manager, display gratifying figures, showing that last week was the Herald's best week in eight years.

That is a novelty, with business of all kinds delighted to report that things are not much worse than in 1931.

Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, editor and publisher of the Washington Herald, is a granddaughter of the late Joseph Medill, founder of the Chicago Tribune, who was an able newspaperman. She inherits his ability to tell real news from imitation, and, like her grandfather, is an excellent writer and good at business.

Bon chien chasse de race, the French say, meaning that there is something in heredity.

UNLESS CONGRESS changes its mind, you will have beer called "3.2 per cent alcohol," but in reality, 4 per cent beer. Wine is rejected, for the time being. Any future wedding miracle, to come within the law, must change water into beer.

Not to legalize wine, if you legalize beer, is to discriminate against the most noble and BENEFICIAL of alcoholic drinks. Beer is for workers and others that exercise strenuously.

Wine is for the sedentary, whose work is thinking.

NATURAL WINES, which do not include champagnes and similar unwholesome fortified and partly fermented products, have been used without drunkenness by millions of human beings for ages. They supply the body with iron, tannin, vita-

MISS RUTH BORMAN, 20, WITH HER 3-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER

JUDGE RULES BABY ISN'T 'CHATTEL'

Frees Unwed Mother Who Kidnaped Child From Heiress

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—A Superior Court Judge's belief that prosecution of Miss Ruth Borman on a charge of abducting her own child would be contrary to humanity and justice as well as law has resulted in freedom for the 20-year-old unmarried mother.

Superior Judge R. H. Scott, saying a child "should not be considered a mere chattel" because it is born out of wedlock, yesterday ordered Miss Borman's dismissal.

Miss Borman removed her 3-year-old daughter from a crib in the home of Mrs. Violet Buchanan, an heiress, several weeks ago. Twenty-four hours later authorities found the baby asleep in the arms of her mother.

An attorney for Miss Borman informed the court he was prepared to show Mrs. Buchanan would inherit about $500,000 on the condition she had a child. Mrs. Buchanan, a wealthy divorcee, once claimed the child as her own, police said records revealed.

Miss Borman told police she had become lonely for her child and was driven to remove her from the Buchanan home. She also said she feared the courts would not hear her plea for possession of the infant at Mrs. Buchanan's adoption hearing.

Miss Borman said, through her attorney, she expects to make a legal fight to regain custody of the child, of which Mrs. Buchanan is guardian.

Mellon Church Speeds Opening To Avoid Taxes

The East Liberty Presbyterian Church's first unit, a Brotherhood Bible Class room, will be opened tomorrow for use, and thereby forestall a suggested movement to collect taxes on the highly valuable property. A class of 60 will listen to the teacher expound the lesson before a blazing log fire in a room to which workmen yesterday put the finishing touches.

Some time ago it was proposed to tax the property, because it was not being used for religious purposes, during the construction period. While those in charge of the church would not admit that it was to forestall collection of taxes, the fact that the property is being used for religious purposes, automatically will prevent tax collection, it was reported.

The Bible Class is moving from the lobby of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., where it has been holding Sunday services, because, it was said, the lobby is too draughty.

The church, being built at a cost of many millions donated by the Mellon family, will not be completely finished for more than 18 months, it was said. Meanwhile, church services will continue in Regent Theater and the Sunday School in the Y. M. C. A.

MT. LEBANON FIRE ROUTS 3 FAMILIES

Pastor's Home Burns, Bazzano Residence Threatened

One man was overcome by smoke and three families were routed by flames which swept the Mt. Lebanon residence of the Rev. Dr. J. S. Plummer, 1295 Washington road, shortly before noon.

The Plumer residence, one of the show-places of the South Hills, adjoins the home of the late John Bazzano, slain in the Volpe gang war last summer. Members of the Bazzano household were forced to flee when the blaze threatened to get beyond control of the Mt. Lebanon volunteer firemen.

A brother-in-law of Dr. Plumer, Mr. Stackman, was overcome and had to be carried out of the burning dwelling.

The five Bazzano children, their mother and a maid, fled their home and took refuge from the weather in the home of Virgil L. Towner, 1269 Washington road.

Living in the Plumer house with the minister and his wife were the wife's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Stackman. Neither family have children.

Dr. Plumer is said to be a retired Presbyterian minister.

Glassport Youth Dies Happy He Saved 'Eddie'

A Glassport youth was dead, a hero today as the list of casualties due to coasting accidents in the Pittsburgh district continued to mount.

Coasting in Broadway, near his home, with his brother Eddie, 5, on his back, John Corrigan, 9, of 936 Vermont avenut, Glassport, swerved the sled from the path of an approaching automobile, tossing his brother to safety. The sled and Corrigan crashed into a concrete abutment and the elder boy suffered fatal injuries.

ASKS FOR BROTHER

Recovering consciousness a short time before he died, the elder brother inquired:

"Is Eddie all right?"

When physicians answered him affirmatively, he said:

"Gee, I'm glad I saved him. I'm going to die."

Patrick Sullivan, 11, of 34 Alexis street, injured with a companion, Raymond Haley, 13, of 40 Alexis street, near his home in a collision with an automobile, told a nurse at Mercy Hospital:

"When I saw we were going to hit I said a prayer, so I didn't get hurt bad."

OTHERS INJURED

Others injured were:

William Pollak, 13, of 2929 Holbrook street; John Reagan, 14, of 1529 Forsythe street; Mike Terak, 16, of 2706 Holbrook street, and Mike Makicky, 9, of 9 Cohetta street, all treated at St. John's Hospital.

Walter Burke, 7, and his brother, Michael, 14, of 36 South Sixth street, treated in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Margaret McClean, 17, of Manor avenue, Swissvale.

Edward Shultz, 21, of 412 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, treated at Ohio Valley Hospital.

NO SAFETY ROPES

Meanwhile, the Department of Public Works has been unable to rope off streets for coasting for lack of rope, it was announced today by H. J. Neely, chief clerk in the Bureau of Highways and Sewers. In lieu of rope, the department has used wooden horses and "do not enter" signs to close the streets, Neely said.

Watchmen in plain clothes have been assigned to all of them to prevent motor traffic from entering.

Streets marked off for coasting were:

Heberton avenue, entire, from Highland Park.

Taft avenue, entire, Eighteenth Ward.

Wallbridge street, Sparta to South Main, West End.

Waterman avenue, Carrick.

James street, North avenue to Neal street, North Side.

Baytree street, beginning at Evergreen road.

Homer street, beginning at Firth street.

Vista street, beginning at Madison street.

Howard street, to Elmira.

Gallion avenue, Brookline.

Mt. Pleasant extension, to East street.

Columbo street, Aiken to Fairmount, East End.

KIDNAP AND ROB STATION MAN

A gasoline service station attendant was kidnaped by two bandits shortly after daylight today, driven far out on Morningside avenue where he was robbed of $40.

The attendant, James Rhodes, of 206½ Ella street, said the two men drove up to the Cities Service station at South Negley avenue and Baum boulevard and when he went to serve them, forced him into their machine. A companion of Rhodes was inside the station unaware of the kidnaping and robbery.

Two bandits escaped with $30 from a gasoline service station at Seventh avenue and Bigelow boulevard early today after forcing at pistol point Daniel Meeker, 22, attendant, of 3200 Beacon Hill avenue, to open the safe. Meeker told police the men fled on foot.

It was Meeker's second encounter with bandits. In his first, while an attendant for the Standard Oil Company at East Ohio street and Troy Hill road last summer, two policemen were his companions. When the bandits entered, they were greeted by a fusillade of shots, one of the bandits falling fatally injured. The other was severely wounded.

HOME WRECKED BY ETHER BOMB

Ether and gunpowder used in an elaborate bomb caused an explosion and fire which shortly before last midnight partly destroyed the home of Peter Grandinette, of 137 Pear alley, Duquesne, and resulted in injury to a volunteer fireman.

Following the blaze, during which Fireman Charles Finnan, of Duquesne, was cut by flying glass, firemen reported finding two five-pound cans of ether, a box of gunpowder and a length of fuse, part of which had been used in the bomb. The atmosphere of both floors of the building, and the basement, had apparently been saturated with fumes of the fluid before the bomb was set off with a fuse arrangement.

Police Chief Thomas Flynn, of Duquesne, said the bomb had apparently been placed in a first-floor vacant apartment.

Grandinette, employed as a night watchman at the Carnegie Steel Works in Duquesne, told police his family was visiting in Pittsburgh when the explosion occurred.

Amy Driven Back By Storm on Route

LONDON, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Bad weather today caused further delay in Amy Johnson Mollison's return flight from Cape Town to England, her husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison, announced.

He said he had received a message saying she had been forced to return to Oran, Algeria, after taking off from there a few hours earlier.

Aged Woman Burned When Gown Ignites

Mrs. Anna Wassell, 82, of 208 Capitol avenue, was in serious condition today in South Side Hospital with burns suffered when her nightgown ignited from a gas heater in the bathroom of her home last night. Firemen were summoned by a neighbor.

SUNDAY SHOWS TO CONTINUE

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Oil City's Sunday movie controversey, in which citizens have militantly taken sides, flared to new heights today with the announcement by two theater managers that they will continue with Sunday shows.

The playhouses will remain open, said the managers, who were arrested following performance last Sunday—the first Sunday shows in Oil City's history—until such time "when and if" City Council enacts a prohibitive ordinance. Maurice P. Breen, of Franklin, attorney for the managers, said:

"We will be in a position in a few days to present this matter to the proper tribunal, and then we expect to be given a fair hearing."

FIGHT ON BREW WITH TAXES

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A fight to curb the "home brew industry" by high taxation will be made when the 3.2 per cent beer bill is brought before the House for passage next week, it was disclosed today.

The movement, supported by some House wets, is aimed at all ingredients of home-made beer. The object would be accomplished by amending the beer bill.

While some of the constituents of "home brew" were subjected to taxation last year, congressional tax experts say that many of the ingredients escape federal levies.

Coincident with this development, it was revealed the House Ways and Means Committee considered the question, but took no action.

A study of taxation of the "home brew industry" also is being carried on by the Treasury, according to Secretary of the Treasury Mills. One of the difficulties, he has said, is that many of the incredients go into legitimate industry which would be penalized by the taxes.

Police Upheld In Pension Suit

There is merit in the battle of John W. McClintock, Charles W. Ball, Frank J. Aultman, John Stock and Carl J. Barchfeld, pensioners, to prevent Mayor Charles H. Kline and other officers of the Police Pension Fund cutting pensions for patrolmen from $86 to $51, the court ruled today. This assertion was contained in an order by Judge George V. Moore, who directed the plaintiffs to amend their suit within 30 days. Unless the bill is amended, the order says, the bill will be dismissed at the cost of the Pension Fund and the city of Pittsburgh. The five had asked for an injunction to prevent the cut in their pensions.

Deer Invades Town, Bagged for Needy

KITTANNING, Pa., Dec. 17.—A 10-point buck which strolled into Parkers Landing on the last day of the hunting season and was slain will be known as Parkers community deer and be given to the town's needy. The buck strolled leisurely along the main street and was bagged near the edge of the city.

BEAUTY HANGS SELF IN HOTEL

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Police today held secret the contents of one of three notes left by Mrs. Reeves Brace, 30, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. A. L. Parsons, who hanged herself with a silk stocking in her suite at a midtown hotel last night.

Detectives said Mrs. Brace, noted for her beauty, knotted one end of the stocking, placed it between the door and the transom of the bathroom, made a noose of the other end about her neck, then kicked away a chair upon which she stood.

One of the notes she left asked that news of her suicide be kept from the press, another said:

"This is perhaps the best way out."

American Acquitted In Havana Bombing

HAVANA, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Herbert Wilford, 19-year-old son of the editor of the Havana American News, English language paper, was acquitted yesterday of a charge of bombing the home of the late Maj. Estanislao Mansip, former chief of the Marianao police.

At the trial the prosecution failed to produce any witness to link him directly with the bombing.

Ambassador Mellon Off For Pittsburgh

LONDON, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, caught an early boat train for Southampton, where he sailed today on the steamship Europa for home. He will spend Christmas with his family in Pittsburgh.

After a brief stay in Washington, he plans to return to London aboard the Majestic, sailing January 4.

ZERO WEATHER PASSING

Sub-zero weather was slowly passing today to wherever sub-zero weather goes as the mercury in most unofficial thermometers tarted to climb from the low mark of 21 degrees below yesterday to the teens above.

Oakland reported the highest temperatures while throughout the city the readings averaged around 18 degrees. In the county New Kensington had 21 degrees above zero, Edgewood reporting the lowest temperature of the day—6 above. The Washington forecast for this district today was snow late today and Sunday.

Hunter Can't Find Deer; One Finds Him

COCHRANTON, Pa., Dec. 17.—On the last day of the deer season James Berger returned home disappointed after tramping Crawford County woods for days in search of a shot. As he was about to put his gun on the rack until next year, one of his children ran into the house, calling:

"Daddy, come see the funny cow in the barn yard."

Gun in hand, Berger went out and shot a buck that weighed 155 pounds.

Second Sunday Movie To Aid Poor Tomorrow

Pittsbrgh's needy will again benefit from Sunday movies.

The second Warner Theater Sunday show, to which the admission price is a donation of food or clothing, will be given tomorrow and it is expected that an even larger stack of food and clothing will accumulate than resulted from the first of the shows, given last Sunday.

The pictures will be the American Weekly Magazine feature film, "Secrets of the French Police," with a lot of corking good comedies and a news reel.

Children unaccompanied will not be admitted, but when Pa and Ma deposit their offering of groceries or clothing in the lobby they will be permitted to bring in all the little "movie fans."

The proceeds from tomorrow's entertainment, which lasts from 2 to 11 p. m., will be given to a Jewish charitable organization. Next week the donations will go to a Protestant philanthropy. The first show's proceeds went to a Catholic charity.

Sleepy Boy Saved Twice As Flames Sweep Home

Three children and their parents were driven to the street early today in near-zero temperatures, in night attire, as fire swept through their home at 415 Parklow street, Knoxville.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined; loss was estimated at $3,000.

Originating in the basement, the fire was discovered by William R. Suffern when he was awakened by smoke. He summoned Mrs. Suffern and, wrapping them in blankets, led their three children, William, 11; James, 7, and Edward, 3, to the street.

Half asleep, James wandered away from his parents back into the burning house and was brought out a second time by his father.

A two-story garage fired by an overheated stove damaged two automobiles of E. H. Krieger, of 2658 Amman street. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

CITY JOB HOLDERS EYE COUNCIL AS PAYROLL CUT LOOMS

FIRE AND POLICE BUREAUS FACE ECONOMY AX

May Avoid Deep Slash By 'Optimistic' Income Estimate

With the necessity for a $4,000,000 payroll cut facing City Council if it is to balance the city budget under the reduced tax rate of 20.6 mills on land, everyone at City Hall is watching for what Council will do next week.

There is one avenue which Council may use to avoid a payroll cut as deep as that recommended by the Citizens' Tax Source Committee. That is the simple method of boosting estimated revenues and tax collections for next year.

REVENUE QUESTION

No one knows how much next year's collections will be until the money comes in. If times should improve, and the delinquent tax money pours into the Treasurer's office, all would be well, but otherwise there might be "payless paydays" for the city employes next fall.

Council has set up a goal, but just how it intends to reach it has not been definitely indicated.

The Citizens' Tax Source Committee has recommended a payroll cut, including eliminations and reductions, of $4,347,000—about 36 per cent of the payroll of $11,500,000 set up in the Kline budget. If this suggestion is followed, it will mean the smallest city payroll since 1918, when salaries and wages were $6,493,000.

ECONOMY PROPOSAL

The total city payroll suggested by the committee for 1933 is $7,153,000. Among salary eliminations, the committee recommends cutting $560,700 out of the police and fire bureaus through consolidation and elimination of stations.

Some idea of police and fire stations likely to be closed in the interest of economy has been given by Budget Controller Robert J. Alderdice, who has designated six police stations and nine fire houses which in his opinion could best be spared.

According to a report from Alderdice's office, there is no immediate danger of an increase in fire insurance rates if the nine fire houses are closed. A representative of the underwriters is reported to have made a preliminary survey.

RESUME WORK MONDAY

Council will resume work on the budget Monday, and, according to President John S. Herron, the salary and appropriation bills should be completed by Thursday.

Of the approximately $5,000,000 which must come out of the Mayor's budget to meet the new tax rate, about $1,300,000 has been volunteered by the department heads. Directors are to be given a further chance to co-operate with Council next week. More than half of the savings offered have come from the Department of Public Works.

CHARGE DENIED BY CLOONAN

Denial that he was involved in the reported giving away of 75 portable polling places, valued at $35,000, recently brought to the attention of the County Commissioners, was made today by Gilbert Cloonan, former head of the Bureau of Elections. Cloonan said:

"I had nothing to do with the buying or selling or giving away of any polling place. They were handled by the superintending of buildings."

Leo Riordan, head of the County Bureau of Investigation, had said as far as he was able to learn Cloonan had given the polling places to owners of the property on which they were situated, to compensate them for loss of rental when the places were eliminated in the redistricting more than a year ago.

Two Ballot Counts Will Be Compared

Judge William H. McNaugher has signed an order on petition of Maj. E. Lowry Humes, of the Allegheny County Bar Association's election fraud committee, directing the prothonotary to open sealed packages filed by the election boards of boroughs and townships in Allegheny County.

The packages, containing the original returns, will be compared with the recount board's tallies on the November election.

FREED IN DEATH OF 2 WOMEN

Dick Clowes, professional bug exterminator, of 2311 Fifth avenue, today stood acquitted of a charge of causing the death of two women in an apartment owned by Nettie Gordon, at 12 East North avenue. A jury in Criminal Court, before Judge A. B. Reid, put the costs on Allegheny County.

The case had been postponed five times because state witnesses were in California. Despairing of their return, the authorities finally sent the case to trial yesterday.

Clowes was indicted on charges of involuntary manslaughter for the deaths of Julia White, 32, of 12 East North avenue, and Marie Mohney, 35, of 403 Ross street, Wilkinsburg.

They died from fumes released in the cellar, which escaped through an abandoned and unplugged heating pipe into the rooms above. The deaths occurred April 12, 1931. Nettie Gordon, who employed Clowes to exterminate pests in her cellar, did not testify.

Disputes on Federal Projects Settled

Miss Emmeline Pitt, federal labor commissioner, said today disputes involving many workers on federal projects in Western Pennsylvania have been settled after conferences in Grove City and New Castle with labor representatives. The satisfactory adjustment of the wage dispute of structural iron workers on the new postoffice at Grove City will enable the contractor to resume work immediately.

Boys Bomb Havana Official Building

HAVANA, Dec. 17. — (INS.) — The Public Health Department headquarters was seriously damaged today by an exploding bomb, which rocked the city and nearby suburbs.

A soldier on duty at the building said he saw two boys throw the bomb. He fired at them, he declared, but without effect.

TROOPERS HUNT BANK ROBBER

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Dec. 17.—(INS.)—A cool, deliberate bandit, who apparently worked alone and fled on foot after robbing the First National Bank of Mapleton of over $1,200, was the object of a state police manhunt today.

F. Frank Mattern, cashier, was alone in the place after banking hours when the gunman entered, ordered him to collect all loose cash and place it in a bag.

Mattern protested that the floor was not very clean when the intruder ordered him to lie down. He asked the benefit of a clean floor in the directors' room, and the visitor acquiesced, then bound him and sealed his lips with adhesive tape.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure that caused the low temperatures over this section yesterday morning moved rapidly northeastward and is now centered in the Far Northeast. Low pressure areas, centered north of Lake Superior and off the South Atlantic Coast are now dominating the weather over this section and, as a result, the weather is cloudy east of the Mississippi, and it is raining over the southern and snowing over the northern portions. The snowfall has been heavy over the mountains of West Virginia and Virginia; Wytheville reported 10 inches this morning. While there was a rise in temperature over the Ohio Valley states since yesterday morning, there was a fall over the plains states and the weather is still cold over the entire country. There are no indications of any material moderation in temperature during the next several days.

ASKS FUGITIVE'S EXTRADITION

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Armed with a requisition from Gov. Russell, of Georgia, Warden Harold Hardy, Jr., of Troup County, and R. B. Carter, county policeman, today were to go before Gov. A. Harry Moore to request extradition to Georgia of Robert Elliott Burns, self-publicized "Fugitive From a Chain Gang."

The Georgia officers arrived here last night after a hurried trip north and went immediately to a hotel.

Both expressed surprise over the "ballyhoo" surrounding arrest of the long-sought fugitive who capped his escape from a Troup County road gang by turning magazine editor, then author and lecturer at a motion picture based on his book relating his experiences in the Georgia prison camp. Warden Hardy said:

"Burns is just another prisoner to us."

Steel Firm Here Low Bidder on Span

HARRISBURG, Dec. 17.—The Guibert Steel Company, of Pittsburgh, was low with a bid of $33,163 for the construction of a steel bridge on Route 68, between New Bethlehem and South Bethlehem.

The Alliance Construction Company's bid of $27,477 was low for the construction of two small concrete bridges on Route 330 in Elizabeth and Forward townships, Allegheny County.

SUPREME COURT ROOM MARRED

Furniture in the courtroom of the State Supreme Court was mutilated while the recount board was at work, the County Commissioners have been informed in a letter from Pier Dannals, Prothonotary for the court.

Dannals said Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer has complained of the condition of the furniture, and requested that future use of the room be only for the court. The furniture will have to be repaired, it was said.

The letter probably will be read to the Commissioners Tuesday.

Meeting to Discuss Civil Service Change

Members of the State Legislature delegation from Allegheny County have been invited to attend a meeting of the Veteran Police and Firemen's Association which is to be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the assignment room of the courthouse.

They will present to the legislators proposed changes in the civil service laws of the city affecting the police and firemen. Judge Ralph H. Smith will speak on "Civic Ideals."

McKeesport Woman Hurt as Auto Skids

Mrs. Grace Englit, 20, of 2415 Riverview avenue, McKeesport, suffered lacerations of the head, face and knee when her auto skidded into a pole in Fifth avenue, McKeesport, last night, according to a hospital report.

PINCHOT OFFERS TAX REDUCING PROGRAM

Urges State Building Of Roads, School Consolidations

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Discussing local, state and federal taxation, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, last night offered a three-point program for reducing local taxation which he said claims 55 cents of the national tax dollar.

Gov. Pinchot told the Economic Club of New York his program is:

"First, state construction and maintenance of rural roads, as we are doing in Pennsylvania. Second, consolidation of our school systems under state subsidy. Third, elimination of useless and overlapping local government units and offices."

The brunt of paying for government should fall on the rich, Pinchot declared. He attacked Andrew W. Mellon's fiscal policies when the present ambassador to London was secretary of the treasury, saying:

"We must not have a repetition of the Mellon or millionaire tax-reduction plan.

"I hope that whatever new taxes must be imposed—and I am convinced they would not have to be imposed if government waste and inefficiency were eliminated—I hope these new taxes will be increases on the upper brackets of income, and inheritance rates, coupled with the re-enactment of an effective gift tax to stop inheritance tax evasions."

Infant Bank Robbers 'Sent Away' by Court

BLOOMSBURG'S BABY BANDITS . . . THEY'VE BEEN 'SENT UP'

Parents Are Stricken As Pair Gets Sentence

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Bloomsburg's infant bank robbers have been "sent away."

Reformatory sentences were imposed by Judge Charles C. Evans on John Harrington, scarcely 10 years old, and his sister, Lillian, two years his junior, whom he made his partner in a brief but amazing career of petty crime.

John was ordered to Glen Mills Reformatory and Lillian was committed to the House of Good Shepherd. The tots broke into a local bank last Sunday in broad daylight by jimmying a ventilator in a washroom and stole two money bags containing Sunday school collections totaling about $11. Three other "breaks" were attributed to the pair.

The children's grief-stricken parents were present at the sentencing and answered questions put to them by the court. The bewildered prisoners said nothing.

Drys Raid 3 Places, Hold Bridgeville Man

A 100-gallon still and 30 barrels of mash were reported found by prohibition agents in the subcellar of a building in West General Robinson street, yesterday. Another basement raid in Baldwin street, Bridgeville, resulted in the seizure of intoxicants and the arrest of John Blesky, the agents reported. In a building in Third avenue, Carnegie, 210 gallons of whisky were confiscated.

HOOVER AWAITS NEXT MOVE BY DEBTORS

President Will Act If Opportunity Presents Itself

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—President Hoover's immediate efforts to deal with the war debts question today apparently depended upon what action foreign governments take in pressing their pleas for early reconsideration.

As his advisers watched developments abroad, particularly in France, the chief executive considered his personal course, conscious of congressional opposition to a commission for re-examination and the few weeks remaining of his term.

OPPORTUNITY AWAITED

In authoritative quarters the impression was given that while Mr. Hoover would act if an effective opportunity presented itself, the entire problem might be handed over almost entirely to the incoming Roosevelt administration.

The belief was universal that debtor nations would lose no time in petitioning anew for relief before the $144,000,000 June payments fall due. At the same time Washington circles discussed at length the probable status of defaulters, who also are expected to advance their cause assiduously.

EYES ON FRANCE

As official eyes turned to French efforts to form a new government, the view of the administration was that despite passing of payment date, the door should not be entirely closed to defaulters, France or any other. And it was asserted that if France should pay later it certainly would receive the same official attention as those who paid.

Secretary Mills disclosed last night that President Hoover was deferring decision on dispatching his promised special war debts message to Congress. While originally scheduled for delivery early next week, the President has decided that unless debts developments abroad warrant it, the communication will be held up.

STUDY PENSION REFORMS

George B. Buck, New York actuary engaged by the Allegheny County Commissioners to make a study of the employes' pension fund, spent several hours yesterday in conference with Commissioner W. D. Mansfield and Controller Robert G. Woodside. Several plans for reorganization were discussed.

Commissioner Mansfield was the only board member present. Commissioner C. M. Barr was at home with a cold and Chairman C. C. McGovern was out of the city. He was due to return today from Minneapolis, where he made a study of permanent registration.

Buck several days ago urged the Commissioners to place the county pensions on a sound basis. He said the fund is in such condition that no employe is assured of retirement pay.

TEACHER HELD AS FORGER

MARIETTA, O., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—A pretty Marietta society girl-school teacher, with a penchant for travel, today was at liberty under $1,000 bond on three charges of forgery.

Miss Hilda Shaw, 26, of Newport, pleaded not guilty to charges sworn to by Sheriff Gay Thorn after her father refused to prosecute. Prosecutor Everett Folger said he prepared the complaint because Miss Shaw had been "galloping around the country too much for a country girl."

Liberty for the girl came almost 24 hours afer she was arrested and placed in jail for forging her father's name to certificate of deposit slips valued at more than $1,000.

County Bar Honors Late Judge Thomson

Tribute was paid the late Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson at a special memorial meeting of the Allegheny County Bar Association yesterday in the City-County Building. Most of the Federal and County Court judges attended.

Speakers included Judges R. M. Gibson and F. P. Schoonmaker, of Federal Court; President Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court; Judge H. Walton Mitchell, of Orphans Court; Judge Richard A. Kennedy, of County Court, and Attorneys Harold M. Irons, Charles Sachs and A. E. Kountz. Attorney Marcus W. Acheson presided.

REVOLT FOILED IN ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—With Congress prepared to vote on declaring a 30-day state of siege, Argentina was quiet today, indicating the latest anti-government outbreak was under control.

Former President Irigoyen, accused of leading the plot to overthrow the government, was back in prison on Martin Garcia Island, where he spent more than a year following the 1930 revolt. Other rebel leaders were on a warship on their way to confinement.

It was anticipated Congress would declare a state of siege.

Chambers' Father And Son Fete Se

The annual father and son banquet of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Thursday evening under the auspices of the entertainment committee. Entertainment features include a magician, cartoonist and the Langley High School orchestra. The Rev. W. A. Logan, of Turtle Creek, will speak.

Had Henry Ford drunk, regularly, the much diluted red wine given to all French children in quantities unlimited, he need probably not have undergone that recent operation, for there would have been no gangrenous appendix.

Put typhoid germs in it, and they die at once. Put them in ice water, and they multiply.

Redheads Weigh Least At 'Tonnage' Dance

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—It's a weigh they have at M. I. T.—paying the fiddler by the pound.

This year they added an extra assessment. The student who brought a girl to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology "dorm" dance not only was taxed at a penny pound, but he was forced to pay for the color of his girl's hair—a dime for a brunette, 15 cents for a blonde and the maximum of 20 cents, a fifth part of a dollar, for the plunger who dared escort a redhead.

The student accounts uncovered some interesting figures. A total of $269.42 poured into the coffers from 26,942 pounds of feminine dancers, exclusive of the extra tax.

The light-haired girls carried the lesser tonnage. The 14 Titians averaged only 116 pounds, the blondes 117½. The brunettes averaged 120 pounds.

One student paid an even dollar—90 pounds of brunette with a dime added. The heaviest spender of the evening donated $1.88. The girl of his choice was a blonde.

The dance committee was canny; the girls were weighed in—not out.

Moon's Eclipse of Star Waited by Astronomers

On Sunday morning astronomers throughout the country will turn their telescopes to the western sky to watch the moon eclipse the bright star Regulus.

Regulus, popularly known as the star at the handle tip of the sickle, is the brightest star that can be occulted. It will pass behind the bottom edge of the moon's disc at 9:41 a. m., and will reappear 11 minutes later.

Dr. Frank C. Jordan, director of Allegheny Observatory, said:

"Some occulations occur every night but it is unusual to occur to so bright a star as Regulus.

"It will be of scientific interest to astronomers because it will give them the exact position of the moon. Many different things affect the position of the moon, while the exact position of Regulus is known."

Dr. Jordan explained that knowledge of the moon's location gives astronomers the exact time to predict future eclipses of the sun.

WIFE SLAYS HUSBAND'S SECRETARY FOR 'BREAKING UP HOME'

MOTHER SHOOTS DIVORCEE FIVE TIMES

Hopes Victim Is Dead When Jailed; Mate Narcotic Official

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. C. R. Frazier, 41, wife of the district director of narcotic law enforcement in Florida and Georgia, shot and killed her husband's secretary, Miss Manona Murrell, 26, on the post-office lawn here yesterday and told officers the young woman "tried to break up my home."

Mrs. Frazier, mother of five sons aged 4 to 19, was held on a murder charge.

She said:

"I hope she is dead. She tried to break up my home. If I hadn't killed her my two oldest sons were going to."

Meeting the younger woman as she left the narcotic agent's office, Mrs. Frazier told officers she replied to a greeting from Miss Murrell, then fired five bullets into her body.

Police said Mrs. Frazier told them she and her husband had not lived together since last April.

Miss Murrell had been employed in Frazier's office three years. Some time ago she competed in a beauty contest for the selection of "Miss Federal Employe" in Jacksonville. She was a divorcee.

POLICE TRAIL 'SACK SLAYERS'

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Roused by the blatant impudence of killers who left the victim's body in a stolen automobile parked in front of police headquarters, the entire police department today sought the murderers of Joseph Weskefsky, 30.

Only clues detectives had to follow today was a scrawled note, held in the victim's lap. It read:

"Here is your informer. If we had time we'd lay him in your lap."

Weskefsky, known as "Washie," was known as a burglar, police said today, and had served two prison terms. He had been living with his wife and 6-year-old son in a building only a few blocks away from headquarters, where his sack-enclosed, trussed-up body was found yesterday.

Police Commissioner Edward Mulrooney, who supervised the examination of the body and the automobile when its grisly contents were discovered, declined to comment on the defiant gesture of the killers. He was silent also on the allegation that "Washie" was a "stool pigeon."

'Motoring to Marry'

BETTY WHEELER . . SHE'S JUST DIVORCED THIRD HUSBAND

Miss Wheeler, the actress, today motoring across the country, out of reach of New York friends told she was Hollywood-bound to re-marry Bert Wheeler, the screen comic, her longtime vaudeville partner and her first husband, himself just divorced from his second wife. Mr. Wheeler: "I have the highest regard. . . . never discussed such a plan."

TICKET AGENT DOWNTOWN DIES

W. C. Brown, for 22 years ticket agent at the Fourth Avenue Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died early today in Allegheny General Hospital. He was taken suddenly ill yesterday afternoon.

Brown, whose home is at 23 Taylor avenue, Crafton, was born in Conotton, O., 1880. It was there he took his first agent's job in 1898. Later he was made extra agent for the entire Panhandle Division. After holding various positions, he was made ticket agent at Fourth avenue in 1910, where he became widely known.

Brown is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eva Cook Brown, and three daughters, Mrs. Dallas Parker and Elizabeth and Dorothy Brown.

21 RACE HORSES DIE IN FIRE

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill., Dec. 17.—(INS.)—Twenty-one valuable race horses perished early today in a fire which destroyed a huge stable on Samuel Insull's noted Hawthorn Farms estate.

The thoroughbreds, valued at $100,000, were trapped by the flames, whose origin was mysterious. The horses belonged to Ralph Gallet, Chicago night club proprietor, and were insured for about one-third their value, the owner said.

American Legion officials, returning from a meeting, dashed into the stable, rescued two horses and led four out of an adjoining stable. With the aid of farmers the Legionnaires attempted vainly to subdue the blaze.

Among the victims of the fire were Lieut. Russell, Siberia, Price Tag, Dewey Fly and Black Lightning.

DEALERS SHOW NEW CARS

Pittsburgh today was introduced to the new 1933 Chevrolet with a special exhibition of all models in the Wabash Station, Liberty avenue at Diamond and Ferry streets, under the auspices of the Allegheny County Chevrolet Dealers' Association.

The exhibition marks the first public showing. The display will continue daily from 10 a. m until 10 p. m., except Sunday.

Many improvements mark the new cars. Offering a longer wheelbase, the bodies are modeled in "Aer-stream" styling, swing lower to the road and are larger. The innovation of Fisher no-draft ventilation, improved free-wheeling and a cushion-balanced engine mounting are among improvements. A price reduction is announced on some models.

DIVER TO SEEK MURDER GUN

LONG BEACH, Cal., Dec. 17—(AP.)—Officers investigating the murder of Capt. Walter Wanderwell announced a sea diver would be used today in a search for the pistol with which the adventuring globe-trotter was shot to death aboard his vagabond yacht in Long Beach harbor the night of December 5.

The officers believe the pistol probably was tossed overboard just after the shooting.

Detectives said they had weakened the alibi offered by William James Guy, Welsh adventurer, held on a murder charge, and had added strength to identification of him as the mysterious man in gray seen aboard the yacht, Carma, just before the killing.

BEDROOM RAID BY AIR STAR RELATED

Spicy Testimony at Rich Divorce Hearing Holds Crowds

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Three o'clock in the morning is a rather unconventional hour to call on a woman. But if the woman is your wife and you are escorted by a private detective and you think there's someone with her, well—.

Things commenced to come out today in the trial of the divorce suit brought by Radio Star Freddie Rich against his ex-Follies wife, Peggy Lawton. There was lots of testimony and it sounded so intriguing that a lot of spectators let lunch go and ate a big dinner.

ENTER ROOM

It was a spring night, or morning, in May when Benjamin J. Kerin, a private detective, entered Mrs. Rich's room. Kerin, the first witness to take the stand, will never forget it. He and Rich entered and there were Mrs. Rich and Jack De Ruyter, both asleep, he said. De Ruyter woke up, he said, and greeted them with a:

"Hello, are you here again?"

(It seems they had done a bit of raiding once before, but it wasn't a good raid and didn't count).

Mrs. Rich wasn't quite so full of camaraderie. She is reported to have said:

"Get your divorce and get out of here."

DESCRIBES CLOCKING

Kerin then set out describing what they had on, or didn't, as the case may have been, but Mrs. Rich's lawyer blocked that one with a neatly-timed objection.

James D. C. Murray, attorney for Mrs. Rich, in his opening argument declared that Rich had thrown his wife into the street when she was sick, and the nearest relative she had was in far-off Africa.

State Senator John J. McNabce, representing De Ruyter, had a few words to say, too. He pointed out that De Ruyter had been sent to comfort Mrs. Rich by his aunt, who was a good friend of hers.

Bomb Bridge In Miners' War Zone

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Both approaches to a bridge spanning a creek on the Chicago and Illinois Midland Railroad between Sicily and Pawnee were blown up early today.

The line is the main outlet for coal from Christian County, scene of recent violence between opposing factions of coal diggers.

Special deputies have been guarding the bridge for some time, but none of them, reports received here said, was in the vicinity when the explosions occurred.

Citizens' Bus Head Threatens to Sue

Frank Ellis, president of the Community Transportation Company, today threatened suit against General Motors for cancellation of its order of 12 buses. Ellis' statement followed the issuance of a writ of replevin in court yesterday by which the General Motors Acceptance Corporation sought to retrieve a 20-passenger bus, charging that the Community concern had failed to make its December payment, $145.

Ellis declared the Community Bus Company would continue to seek a permit to operate.

Hearing to Be Held By Taxation Board

A public hearing of the Pennsylvania Mineral and Forest Land Taxation Commission will be held in the University Club on Monday to review the present tax situation with a view of equalizing the tax burden. Many representatives of the oil and gas business will attend. Senator Chauncey W. Parkinson, of Greene County, is chairman of the committee.

WIFE RESENTS BAD CHECKS

Mrs. Jean Wildman, 2127 Center avenue, a diminutive brunette, applying for a divorce from Leo Wildman, declared she grew tired of paying her husband's "N. S. F." checks. She told Judge McNaugher she had had to make the checks good.

Witnesses also testified Mrs. Wildman's father also helped to pay some of them. Finally, after Wildman had made many unfulfilled promises to get work and provide a home she left him, she testified.

Divorce libels were filed by John Stoton against Frances A. Stoton; Stella K. Schmid against Andrew A. Schmid, and by William R. Payne against Edith M. D. Payne.

Divorces were granted to Harvey S. Lutton from Mary Lutton; Sarah J. Gruber from Carl C. Gruber, and John Hobaugh from Henrietta Hobaugh.

Bear Seen Near Town Held Sign Of Cold

FREEPORT, Pa., Dec. 17.—Discovery of a bear within a mile and a half of Freeport caused amateur weather forecasters to predict a severe winter today. The bear was seen by motorists on the Kittanning road near the C. A. Stewart farm. It was the first reported near here in recent years, and residents believed its presence in the more thickly populated region indicated it was making preparations for a hard winter.

Women Refuse To Let War Debts Mar War Paint

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

In trying to wring that debt out of Paris we find that fifty million Frenchman can't be wrung.

We figured to start trade reprisals against the defaulters by informing the wife she wasn't going to get that six-dollar bottle of imported perfume for Christmas.

The reprisals commenced immediately. We didn't know that international trouble could localize so suddenly.

We even quoted the French premier to the effect that delay was not default. It is around our house.

Our patriotic impulse was knocked for the grand slam. Governments may postpone, but the individual citizen is never on the jury in the court of domestic relations.

The ladies refuse to allow war debts to interfere with war paint. You can bet that there will be a tantalizing aroma around our house on Christmas. And it won't be corned beef and cabbage.

DOUBLE SLAYER KILLS SELF

YORK, Pa., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Ervin J. Spangler, sought by police in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Maud Rouscher, was found dead today in a brick yard in the eastern part of the city. Police said he had committed suicide with a shotgun.

The killing of Mrs. Rouscher occurred while Spangler was on parole after serving six months of a 10 to 20-year sentence for the slaying in 1925 of Sarah J. Meckley.

The body of Mrs. Rouscher, 30-year-old divorcee and mother of two children, was found in the kitchen of her home last night. Her throat was slashed, and several bullet wounds were in her body.

The woman's husband, Raymond Rouscher, told police he and his wife had been estranged but had effected a reconciliation only a few hours before she was slain.

Police quoted him as saying that Spangler had made threats against his wife because she had agreed to go to housekeeping again with her husband.

EGAN PRESIDES IN EGAN CASE

The John Egans had their day in court yesterday.

Judge John P. Egan presided at a trial in which a verdict of $4,050 damages was awarded against the Ed Vero Company, a building supplies concern of Millvale.

The plaintiffs were John Egan, no relative of the judge, and John's nephew, John Egan, 12, of Bennett street.

John, the boy, was playing football in Collier street, near Bennett, August 28, 1930, when a truck of the defendant company struck him. As a result the lad received permanent injuries to his head and to sight. The elder Egan brought suit for $75,000 damages, as guardian for the nephew.

MRS. ROOSEVELT SEES WOMAN'S LIFE BROADER

Marriage No Longer Girl's Only Aim, Listeners Told

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Marriage is no longer "the only aim and object in life" for young women, in the opinion of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President-elect.

Speaking over a nation-wide radio hookup last night, she continued:

"Neither must you have more or less the same kind of conditions which you were brought up in. A girl may do everything for herself, though she has lived in a home where servants are the rule, and she will go a competent job, and at the same time carry on an outside occupation.

"Society in itself is no longer the object in life that it was, and this is a revolution, and I think an advancement, for it draws us all closer together in the really big society of humanity."

The future first lady told briefly of her own bringing-up, "to point out the difference between those days and the present." Member of an old New York family, and the niece of a President, she was raised by her grandmother, and until she was 15, she said, the whole object of her education was to fit her to enter "a rather small and exclusive group of New Yorkers who thought themselves socially of some importance."

But at 15 she was taken abroad by an aunt, Mrs. Stanley Mortimer, and put in a French school near London, which another aunt, Mrs. Cowles, a sister of President Roosevelt, previously had attended. The head of this school, Mlle. Souvestre, exercised a strong influence on her young American pupil. Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"Whatever I have become since had its seeds in those three years of contact with a liberal mind and strong personality."

DOUBTS FINDING OF REDFERN

Doubt that Paul Redfern, lost American flier, is alive and living as captive king of a tribe of South American head-hunters was expressed today by Dr. Samuel Williams, explorer, scientist and head of the University of Pittsburgh's zoology department. Dr. Williams made the statement; he said, hoping that Mrs. Gertrude Redfern, now living at the Fairfax Hotel, wife of the flier who was "lost" on a non-stop flight to Brazil five years ago, would not have her hopes for the safety of the flier raised and then dashed. He said:

"As for as a man being in a native village of South America and not able to get out, I don't believe it. I think Redfern's plane, lost in a mist, crashed against the Venezuelan Mountains."

Dr. Williams was aboard a ship which gave Redfern directions when he reported himself lost on the flight five years ago.

DOCTOR FLIES TO INJURED SON

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—After an airplane dash over a winter-swept countryside, Dr. Donald J. Miller, Sr., of Indianapolis, was at the bedside of his 19-year-old son, Donald, Jr., in a critical condition with a broken neck.

Young Miller, a sophomore at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa., suffered the injury in a fall from a horizontal bar in the college gymnasium.

The youth's father was accompanied on the airplane dash by one of his associates, Dr. B. F. Weyerbacher, also of Indianapolis. Dr. Weyerbacher said:

"Donald's condition is very grave, but we are satisfied he is showing some improvement."

Tom Refuses to Yield Yuletide Stay in Jail

Even a judge's sympathy isn't going to keep 60-year-old Tom Henry, Pittsburgh's most arrested citizen, from spending Christmas in jail, he served notice on Magistrate Leo Rothenberg today.

Tom was arrested early today when he appeared a bit tipsy at the county jail demanding admittance. But Magistrate Rothenberg balked, temporarily at least. Tom's efforts to spend Christmas behind the bars, his custom for many years past, with this friendly advice:

"As a matter of fact you have spent more Christmas holidays in jail than any man in the city. And this is one year you should try to be with your friends or relatives. I'm going to send you to jail for only five days so that you'll be out for Christmas."

All Tom said was:

"Well, that's fine, Judge. I appreciate your interest in me, I need a little rest anyway and want to make a list of my friends to send Christmas cards to; you're one of them, too. But as far as not spending Christmas in jail, you're all wet. I'll be there as usual."

Church Selects 'Sweat' In Word Beauty Game

The word "sweat" was included today in a list of 10 most beautiful words selected by Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute.

Mr. Church joined the many prominent persons in the literary game of choosing such lists with the explanation that his selection is based on the ideas which they express. The words are:

Love	Patience
Mercy	Tolerance
Honor	Respect
Faith	Hope
Courage	Sweat

James Philip O'Connor, attorney and defeated candidate for judge and congressman, also was among those to give to the world a choice of words which appeal to his aesthetic sense.

Acquitted, fee, Schenectady, county-pay-costs, and O'Connor are among the 10 most beautiful words in the English language, in the opinion of Attorney O'Connor. His selection will go down in history (perhaps) along with those of Wilfred J. Funk, poet, who gave the world the first selection and started this literary game; Theodere Dreiser, Dorothy Parker, Judge Frank P. Patterson and many others.

O'Connor's list:

Vanity	Scratch
Acquitted	Forty-per-cent
Fee	Settlement
County-pay-costs	O'Connor
Schenectady	Ancient

CHRISTMAS SERVICES TO BE HELD IN CHURCHES

SPECIAL MUSIC AND PAGEANTS PREPARED

A series of pageants, cantatas, carol singing, vesper and gift services are being planned and carried out in churches throughout the Pittsburgh district, in honor of Christ's birthday.

On Christmas Eve and on Christmas night, the Choir and Choral Society of Trinity Cathedral will present a pageant, "The Christmas Mystery." More than 125 persons, clothed in the costumes of biblical days, will participate, under the direction of Alfred Hamer, organist and choirmaster.

At 8 p. m. tomorrow, the Girl Scouts of Allegheny County will attend their annual Christmas service in Trinity Cathedral. The Very Rev. Dr. N. B. H. Moor will speak on "The Ministry of the Stars."

The church choir of the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, South Evaline street, Shadyside, will present a Christmas cantata at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The Christmas program of the Sunday school will consist of a pageant, directed by Mrs. William F. Reichenecker, at 7:30 on Christmas evening.

The second of a series of recitals, by the Brookline Methodist Episcopal Church and Scottish choirs, will be given tomorrow evening. The program consists of Christmas music and the reading of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" by Alden Chase, leading man with the George Sharp Players.

Carols will be sung by adult and children's choirs, under the direction of Thorton L. Wilcox, organist and choir director, at vesper services in the Bellevue Presbyterian Church at 4:45 p. m. tomorrow. At 8 p. m. tomorrow a Christmas cantata, "The Manger Throne," will be presented by an augmented choir, under the direction of G. Logan McElvany, organist, in the First Lutheran Church, Grant street.

The choir of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, McKees Rocks will present a cantata, "The Christmas Story," at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow. At 8 p. m. young people of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church will present a pageant, "The Lost Star." It will be broadcast through WWSW.

Episcopal Church choir boys will sing carols at 3 p. m., tomorrow for boys and girls of the Pittsburgh Goodwill Settlement, in the Community House Chapel, under the direction of Mrs. Harry G. Samson.

Presbyterians to Give Missionary Broadcast

ANNA LAURA CREE

Messages and music will be sent to missionaries in Egypt, Africa, Japan and other foreign countries, representing the Presbyterian Church of America, beginning at 11:20 o'clock this evening. The program will originate in the studios of KDKA.

Dr. E. Graham H. Evans, of the Third Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburgh, will preside during the broadcast. The quartet from his church will sing several selections. Members of the quartet are Anna Laura Cree, soprano; Ida Mae Claudy, contralto; Edgar Sprague, tenor; Reed Kennedy, baritone. E. H. Johe, organist of the church, will be at the piano.

Dr. E. Graham Wilson, of New York City, representing the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, will read the messages. A special program of sacred music presented by the Homestead Presbyterian Church Choir, directed by Frederick A. Welty, will follow. Greetings will be sent by the Rev. A. D. Welty, of Lima, O.

NOTED RUSSIAN TO SPEAK

The Rev. I. S. Prokanhoff, one of the foremost interpreters of Russian life today, will speak at the First Christian Church, Arch and Montgomery streets, North Side, at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow. Founder and honorary president of the All-Russian Evangelical Christian Union, and founder of the first Protestant Christian Theological Seminary in Russia, he is author of many hundreds of religious hymns in the Russian language and editor of a Russian magazine and an American periodical.

At the open forum meeting tomorrow he will discuss "Atheism and Christianity in Russia."

MARKING GOLD ANNIVERSARY

The Bethesda Presbyterian Church, Paulson avenue and Luna street, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their pastor, the Rev. Clarence B. Allen, tomorrow. The Rev. Dr. P. W. Snyder, superintendent of missions of the Pittsburgh Presbytery, will preach at the morning services. A musical service will be held during the evening hour.

On Monday, December 19, at 8 p. m., services will be in charge of the Interdenominational Ministers' Association. The Rev. W. W. Slade, pastor of the Wesley Center A. M. E. Zion Church, will preach, and the Homewood Avenue Church Choir will furnish music.

The morning topic will be, "The Ideal Life," and the evening subject will be "Resisting the Truth." There will be special music by the Men's and Women's Bands and by the Songsters Brigade under the direction of Maj. T. Malpass.

Carolling

DR. WILLIAM PORKESS

CHOIR TO VISIT HOSPITAL

The choir of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, will make its annual pilgrimage to Columbia Hospital to sing Christmas carols for patients at 3 p. m. tomorrow. The fully vested choir of 50 men and boys will march along the corridors and sing in each ward.

The rector, the Rev. Dr. William Porkess, will accompany them.

Mitchell to Direct Musical Services

Earl Mitchell, organist at the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, will direct activities at the annual Christmas musical service in the Highland Presbyterian Church at 8 p. m. tomorrow. On the program are Irene Garrison Cramlet, soprano; Eugene Baldridge, tenor; Edith White, contralto, and W. J. Owrey, baritone. The children's Christmas program will be held December 25, at 8 p. m.

CLASSES ASKED TO GIVE TOYS TO MISSION

Sunday School classes throughout the county today were asked to aid the annual Toy Mission, established at Wood street and First avenue, in meeting the heaviest demand ever made for toys for children of destitute families.

Director George L. Bond suggested that if every class contributed a toy from each member, the possible disappointment that might sadden hundreds of children on Christmas may be avoided. Such collections would swell the toy stacks at headquarters that now are low. Volunteer workers are ready to work nightly until Christmas repairing toys and packing them, Mr. Bond said.

Where classes are unable to deliver their bundles to headquarters, Mr. Bond said volunteer workers are donating trucks and cars to pick up the contributions. In such cases, a telephone call to Atlantic 0127 will result in arrangements being made to pick up the toys. Boy Scouts today opened a county-wide canvass. They hope to obtain a toy from every home, according to District Commander H. Lloyd Nelson.

YULE TABLEAUX TO BE GIVEN

Christmas Tableaux will be presented in the St. Mary of Mercy auditorium tomorrow and Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. A chorus composed of members of the Missionary Confraternity of Christian Doctrine and the St. Mary of Mercy Choir, will furnish music, under the direction of Fred Dildine.

DR. CLARENCE E. MACARTNEY

'DOCTOR' TOPIC OF SERMON

Physicians of Pittsburgh have been invited to attend services in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward Macartney will preach on "The Doctor." Eighteen years ago, a Pittsburgh physician, then a medical student in Philadelphia, heard the Rev. Dr. Macartney preach a similar sermon, and has requested him to preach on that subject again.

Mission Offering Service Tomorrow

The Women's Home Missionary thank offering service will be held in the Butler Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Fortieth and Butler streets, at 11 a. m. tomorrow. Miss Helen L. Johnston, field secretary, will speak. At 8 p. m. the Rev. Samuel Hill, pastor, will preach on "What Jesus Said He Was," the seventh of a series of sermons on that subject.

'Excuses of Moses' Sharpsburg Topic

The Rev. K. L. Cramer, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Sharpsburg, will preach on "The Excuses of Moses" at 10.45 a. m. tomorrow. At 7:45 p. m. his subject will be "The Two Ways."

JEWISH FEAST TO START ON FRIDAY

Commencing next Friday, Hanukkah, the Feast of Dedications, one of the most interesting minor holidays in the Jewish calendar, will be celebrated for eight days. The joyous home festival is, to a great extent, a children's event.

The festival commemorates the stirring events of the period from 168 to 165 B. C. E. Antiochus Epiphanes, king of Syria, wishing to unite all provinces under his dominion into one nation, issued a decree that only the Greek religion was to be practiced thenceforth. He tried to suppress Judaism, burned the Sacred Scrolls of the law and set up idols in the Temple at Jerusalem. Instead of submitting to his decree, the Jews resisted with protracted warfare.

Many beautiful legends and stories have grown up around the Feast of Hanukkah. One is that on the day of rededication of the Temple, only a single cruse of oil was found unpolluted, but that through the miraculous power of God, it proved sufficient to burn during the entire period of reconstruction.

For this reason the festival is kept for eight days and candles are lit during the entire period, one on the first day, two on the second day, until eight candles have been lighted on the eighth day. The festival commemorates perhaps the first historic struggle for religious freedom, a triumph of Judaism over Paganism.

CRUEA APPEALS TO 'FORGOTTEN'

An appeal to defeated drys, "the forgotten men and women of the 1932 election," to renew the fight for prohibition was issued today by District Supt. D. E. Cruea, of the Anti-Saloon League.

Mr. Cruea declared the November election was not an expression of the nation's sentiment on prohibition, because both parties proposed to provide a way by which intoxicating liquors could be made accessible. He said the ballots cast against the Hoover administration were a result of the depression. He concluded:

"Here is the task of the forgotten men and women of the 1932 election. No compromise! No getting out of politics! Independent candidates wherever advisable! In every organization, in every county, in every state eternally organizing and educating in home, in church, in school, educating in the heat of contest. We must build from the bottom up."

Dickens' Carol Dramatized On WCAE

An all-star cast headed by Rosa Ponselle, celebrated dramatic soprano; Ezio Pinza, basso; Leon Rothier, basso, and Tito Schipa, tenor, presents Mozart's opera, "Don Giovanni," in its entirety over NBC-KDKA this afternoon, Marking the first time a full-length performance of the Metropolitan Company has gone on the air since the series was inaugurated nearly a year ago, the broadcast beginning at 1:45, continues until 5:15 p. m.

Rosa Ponselle

Other members of the cast are Maria Mueller, soprano; Editha Felischer, soprano; Tancredi Pasero, basso, and Louis D'Angelo, baritone.

Eunice Norton, young American concert pianist, is featured as guest soloist with Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra during the second of that organization's current series of Saturday evening concerts over CBS-WJAS tonight from 8:15 to 10.

Another symphonic concert, the second of four coast-to-coast broadcasts by the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, is listed on NBC-WCAE at 11:30 under the direction of Dr. Alfred Hertz, eminent German conductor.

Program Pointers

"Tiny Tim" and "Old Scrooge," emerging from the pages of Dickens' "Christmas Carols," promenade in authentic costumes during a dramatization of the famous story broadcast from Kaufmann's tonight at 8 by WCAE through the use of a specially built portable studio. The dramatization, prepared for radio presentation by Ed Harvey, is one of four entertainments presented in the store by WCAE artists and broadcast tonight.

"Ye Olde Towne Cryer" is heard at 6 p. m.; "Memories of the Operettas" are given by the WCAE Mixed Quartet at 7:30 and carols are sung by a quartet at 8:15.

Fannie Brice, singing star and comedienne of the musical stage, goes on the air tonight as the guest of Arthur Pryor on WJAS at 7:15. She chats a bit and offers Bricean versions of popular songs . . . Morton Downey's interpretations of "Trees" and "Till Tomorrow" and Fred Berrens' orchestral arrangement of the popular tune, "My River Home," are WJAS highlights at 10.

Miss Brice

Tom Terriss, "The Vagabond Adventurer," who brought the notorious mummy case to the British Museum from Cairo, tells about numerous disasters attributed to its "evil influence" over KDKA at 9:30.

Selections from "Sally," "The Vagabond King," "Irene," "Hit the Deck" and other musical shows are featured by Evelyn Herbert and Robert Halliday during the WCAE at 10 "Magic Carpet" program. Ben Bernie offers the dance rhythms.

The one hundred and thirty-fifth anniversary of the birth of Joseph Henry, discoverer of electrical magnetism, is observed on NBC-KDKA at 10:45 when Orestes H. Caldwell talks on "Electrical Discoveries of 1832 and 1932."

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Between roping off streets and giving dogs away, the Globe-Trotter is running around in circles. But as Jack Pearl would say, "Don't worry. When I get dizzy I'll stop." Let's thank Mr. Neely, whose prompt co-operation caused the streets to be protected for sledriders within 24 hours of the request from the G-T's. But be careful, nevertheless.

* * *

The requests for dogs have far outnumbered the pets available for distribution, but at least some kiddies are going to be made happier and that's better than none at all.

* * *

The mysterious Globe-Trotter No. 13 has turned up again, this time with a hunter's proposal, to wit: "Deer, will you marry an old buck like me? I have lots of doe."

* * *

We are happy to convey congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. William Speakman, of Versailles Borough, celebrating their sixty-ninth wedding anniversary today.

* * *

That spider and clock story recalled a similar incident to Harriet Keaghy, of Versailles. After developing a camera film, the negative showed nothing, and when the picture-taker complained he was asked to bring in his camera. Mr. Spider had woven his web over the lens.

* * *

Lonnie D. wants to know where he can find some good ice skating. How about it?

* * *

Ruby, if I were you I'd take those old coins down to my bank for appraisal.

* * *

Like to know more about these senior globe-trotters of Canonsburg High School.

* * *

We are going to deal in big and unfamiliar figures to answer George W. Jenkins' query. The gold reserve as of September this year was, according to the Federal Reserve: United States, $3,818,000,000; France, $3,241,000,000; England, $678,000,000; Italy, $305,000,000; Germany, $190,000,000. Of course the gold reserves of these countries have altered materially in the last few days, especially for those nations which have paid Uncle Sam.

* * *

After writing this it breaks my heart to borrow 40 cents for lunch.

'American Weekly' Preview on WCAE

A preview of the contents of tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly, which is distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph, and of the March of Events section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph is scheduled on WCAE at 7 o'clock.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest news to WCAE and WJAS listeners at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. today.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Immediately following Eddie Cantor's hour in a theater studio tomorrow night, the audience will be asked to remain for an extra half-hour to hear Beatrice Lillie, English comedienne. The reactions of the audience during the audition, which will not be broadcast, will be taken as indications of how her program would be accepted by chain listeners . . . Phil Cook has just signed a new NBC contract and will probably be back on the air soon . . . Tom Breen, CBS production man, is back as an announcer. He used to share the microphone with David Ross as announcer of the "20 words, no more, no less" series featuring Arthur Pryor's band. Remember?

Miss Lillie

A New York scout ran across three young men from Barnesville, O., recently who call themselves "The Sizzlers," and they got a big-town break on Rudy Vallee's program this week. One of their first auditions put them on the air. The team is made up of Johnny Russell, Paul Cordner and Bill Kearnes, with Henry Lloyd as accompanist.

Jane Ace has written a book on bridge etiquet . . . of all things.

Larry Murphy, who used to sing tenor with the Round Towners, is playing now with Ben Selvin's band over Columbia.

"PRECIOUS" BABY

America's New Darling!

A wonderful baby doll with soft rubber arms that feel so real!

"PRECIOUS" BABY will shut her eyes and go to sleep, sucking her thumb, like a real baby.

"PRECIOUS" BABY is the only doll that can clasp her hands, as in prayer.

"PRECIOUS" BABY wears a real pacifier to soothe her when she cries. Her cunning little thumb just fits into her rosy baby mouth.

"PRECIOUS" BABY has real dimpled knees. Her face and limbs are the colors of real skin, her head is almost unbreakable, and her little hands and fingers are soft like a real baby's.

"PRECIOUS" BABY is elegantly dressed in lovely organdie, and wears stockings, moccasins and real rubber panties. She is 19½ inches tall.

Every little girl will love her new "PRECIOUS" BABY more than any other doll she has ever had.

"DUCKY DARLING"

Rubber-Bodied Baby Doll With 11-Piece Layette and Bathinette

Fill the bathinette with water and tub Ducky with the washcloth, sponge and soap! Finish off with powder, then tuck her to bed. She'll close her eyes and sleep just like a real baby! When she wakes, dress her in the diaper, socks, bootees, slip, dress and bonnet! She is 12 inches tall. You'll love her—all little girls do!

DOLL LADY IS HERE AGAIN!

Free!

EASY TO GET!

Just a few moments among your neighbors, friends and relatives will get you either one or both of these beautiful dollies. This year you only have to secure three NEW six-month subscriptions for the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph—the easy way to get glorious dolls for the holidays.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Pittsburgh's smart set is interested, as are social circles throughout the East and South and abroad, in the marriage to take place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Niagara Falls, when Jasmin Schoellkopf, of Lewiston Heights, N. Y., will become the bride of Andre Boissier, of Geneva, Switzerland.

Jasmin, the niece of Mrs. Elmore A. Willetts, of Sewickley, is the heiress to a fortune, built through her family's harnessing Niagara Falls to provide eletrical power for Eastern states.

Met in Europe

She met Mr. Boissier on a tour of Europe during the past year, during which time she was presented at the Court of St. James.

The wedding is to take place in an old white meeting house that was widely used a century ago when Niagara Falls and Lewiston were trading posts on the Canadian-American border line.

Harriet Ann Willetts, the Elmore A. Willetts' daughter, is to be a bridesmaid, and Vicomte Pierre de Douville-Maillocfeu, of Paris, France, is to be best man.

The bride is wearing a medieval gown of ivory satin having a court train. And her veil of lace was worn by the bridegroom's mother, Mme. Boissier, at her wedding. And Jasmin is to carry southern jasmin for her bridal bouquet.

The attendants will wear satin gowns of an interesting fuchsia shade, having a marked suggestion of blue, with velvet hats in a cerise shade of fuchsia. They will carry African daisies, yellow roses and snapdragons, dyed to match their gowns.

The bride's mother is to wear platinum gray bagheera.

* * *

Because the bride-to-be is ill with influenza, the wedding of Leona Nichols, daughter of the Howard P. Nicholses, of Tyler, Tex., and Frank N. Speller, Jr., son of the Frank N. Spellers, of Pittsburgh, has had to be postponed.

Postpone Wedding

If she is much better, the ceremony will take place tomorrow, with only members of the family present.

* * *

There's a most interesting engagement being made known today. Those popular folks, the Walter Frank Schleiters, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Louise, to Frank Wescott Horne, of Conway, N. H., son of Mrs. Frank Horne and the late Dr. Horne, of Conway.

Mrs. McCrory Acting Magazines Unit Head

Mrs. J. F. McCrory is temporary chairman of the National Better Magazines Council, substituting for Mrs. Harvey S. Fouse, who is unable to serve at present.

Lizards Hold Banquet, Quarterly Initiation

The social club of the auxiliaries of the Spanish War Veterans, which is "The Lizards," held its quarterly initiation and banquet Thursday evening at the Garden tea room.

Mt. Pleasant Hospital Benefit Dance Dec. 26

The Junior Auxiliary of the hospital at Mt. Pleasant, Pa., will hold its second annual benefit dance in the Mt. Pleasant Armory on December 26 from 9 until 1 o'clock.

Christmas Musicale Held at College Club

The Christmas musicale of the College Club yesterday afternoon was the first of several holiday events of interest. The new clubhouse has taken on a festive appearance with a large tree in the spacious clubroom and simple greens for additional decorations. Mrs. Jessie Yuille Yon was the soloist yesterday. She was accompanied by Mrs. Beulah Taylor Marston. Miss Georgia Orwig gave piano selections.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

The Edward C. McHughs are having a novel Christmas card this year. Inside a folder of creamy white paper is the reproduction of a picture of their pretty little daughter Mary Anne McHugh.

It was taken by Patricia Pitt's camera man at the Maxada School Christmas play a year ago, in which she was the angel.

The Maxada School has had a little difficulty in arranging for one of Santa Claus' representatives to be at the Christmas party Tuesday to distribute gifts. The representative first arranged for left, not for the North Pole, but for Florida!

Barbara Verner, who's acting as chairman for the subscription holiday dance for the younger set to be held Friday in the Twentieth Century Club, has just had a new permanent wave.

After the wedding was over, it was discovered that Diana Churchill and John Bailey, whose marriage in London was of international interest, had received among many other wedding presents, seven umbellas, 37 cocktail shakers, and 39 jewel boxes. This story comes from our London correspondent, Mary Hacker.

Fashion note: Many of Sewickley's smart set members wear their galoshes flapping.

O. M. Edwards Family To Give Dance Dec. 30

The holiday season is going to sparkle as much with entertainments as the snow-covered ground does. Today brings the announcement of a date taken for a new entertainment.

Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards and their daughter, Katherine Harkness Edwards, prominent in the most conservative social set, will give a dinner-dance in the Pittsburgh Golf Club Friday night, December 30.

Katherine is expected home tomorrow to remain for the holidays. She's been away for some time. After spending six weeks in New York attending the football games and the debutante parties, she returned to Walnut Hall, her parents' farm at Lexington, Ky., to take part in the hunts.

Ambridge Juniors Helping Needy Families

The Ambridge Juniors, who solicited more than $151 for the Red Cross, are now caring for a few needy families in the town.

Last night the organization had its Christmas meeting in Laughlin Memorial Library and, in conjunction with it, conducted a sale of blind-made articles.

The Christmas play, "While the Chimes Rang," was presented.

Christmas Celebrations To Be Held by P. T. A.'s

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Many Parent-Teacher Associations are planning special Christmas meetings for next week. McNair unit will celebrate Monday afternoon with a Christmas tree and with a program given entirely by the children. The Students' Musical Club, directed by Miss Mary Beatty, will sing and the school orchestra will play. What is of especial interest is that some of the 6B girls will look after pre-school children while the parents are listening to the program. Younger children are invited to be present at 2 o'clock to view the tree.

Highland P.-T. A. will celebrate Tuesday night, the program including "Magic Gingerbread," an operetta by children of the fifth and sixth grades; "Tea for Us," a playlet, and "In 2032," a play of the future. Adults on the program include C. E. Long, Rankin McCoy, Florence Joyce, Dora E. Dickey and Vivian Lang.

Tuesday afternoon has been chosen for the Allison unit's program which will comprise a Christmas play by the pupils, and for the Turner School Unit meeting, which will be addressed by Miss Louise Borland, of the Pittsburgh District Dairy Council. The Turner Music Club will add carols to the afternoon's entertainment.

The Association at the Linden School will present a play, "The Nativity," on Thursday evening at the school.

Amaranth Court Of Brentwood Installs

At the installation ceremony of Brentwood Court, No. 94, Order of the Amaranth, held on Wednesday at Carrick, the grand officers of the order were entertained. The honor guests included Mrs. Dora B. Smith, grand royal matron; Mrs. Sarah Killen, grand associate matron; Mrs. Belle C. Kinlock, deputy grand matron, and Henry Weibel, of Philadelphia, grand associate patron. Miss Minnie L. Riley was installed as royal matron and Mrs. Ruth McCombs Allen as royal patron of the court.

Sheraden Club Women Give Santa Dream Play

"A Dream of Santa Claus" was the title of a one-act play presented by the dramatic and music committees of the Woman's Club of Sheraden at the regular meeting yesterday in Sherodd Temple. Those taking part were Mrs. Donald Carnahan, Mrs. J. G. Taylor, Mrs. F. W. Graham, Mrs. W. P. Cunningham, Mrs. V. C. Ernest, Mrs. Harry Longmore, Mrs. Bruce Cobaugh, Mrs. A. C. Ackenheil, Mrs. John Barndollar, Mrs. C. M. Speed, Mrs. Ross Elliott, Mrs. Dorothy Ryan Nesbitt, Mrs. T. C. Pitzer, Mrs. William Kettman, Mrs. S. W. Faull and Mrs. William Trautman. Mrs. Edwin C. Evans accompanied the incidental music.

Wilson Alumnae Head To Address Club Here

Cassius Jackson Keyser, president of the Wilson College Alumnae Association, will be speaker and guest of honor at the Christmas luncheon which the Wilson College Club of Pittsburgh will give Tuesday at the Twentieth Century Club. Mrs. Roscoe C. Peffer is chairman.

Yule Dances Planned By Younger School Set

Immediately after Christmas, before the younger school set returns to classrooms, there will be much entertaining and a drove of fraternity and sorority affairs, mostly dances. There will be a dance on December 27, from 9 until 1 o'clock in the Edgewood Country Club, sponsored by the Alpha Epsilon Sorority, which includes students from the Winchester and Ellis schools in addition to several others.

Miss Dorothy Motheral is general chairman for the dance, and has appointed as her committee, Miss Nancy Jane Langfitt, Miss Beota Pennock and Miss Dorothy Lott.

Pitt's Alumnae Sets Dec. 31 For Party

The alumnae group of the University of Pittsburgh will have its annual Christmas party December 31 in the new College Club, Craig street.

Mrs. F. A. Faraker is chairman of reservations, aided by Mrs. W. L. Wilson, Mrs. S. L. Shaner, Mrs. Elmer Hutchison, Mrs. C. W. Hagan, Miss Isabel Anderson.

Mrs. Eloise Bombard, chairman of arrangements, has as her aides Mrs. Dorothy Linhart Arnold, Miss Laura E. Braun, Miss Ruth MacFarland Dierker and Miss Grace DeWalt.

Chautauqua Unit Of Avalon to Meet Monday

The Chautauqua Reading Circle, of the Avalon Woman's Club, will meet Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Campbell, Dickson avenue, Ben Avon.

Mrs. Bruce Park, Mrs. F. S. Stowe and Mrs. A. C. Gordon will review "The Autobiography of Lincoln Steffens." Current events will be given by Mrs. G. L. Milliken, Mrs. Ralph B. Urmy and Mrs. H. A. Lane.

Yule Tea to Be Given By Woman's City Club

Pouring tomorrow at the Woman's City Club Christmas musicale-tea will be Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Mrs. James Stephen Martin and Mrs. Biddle Arthurs.

St. Clair Group to Give Yule Party Tuesday

The annual children's Christmas party will be given by the St. Clair Ladies' Community Center on Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the Spring Lane School.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Headache Is a Symptom of Disease

One of man's most common complaints is headache. It is a distressing affliction which may be so severe as to incapacitate the sufferer.

Headache is not a disease. It is a symptom of some physical disorder. Various things may cause headaches. The mistake that most persons make is that in their anxiety to remove the pain they disregard the cause.

Dr. Copeland

Headache is often associated with constipation, indigestion, intestinal poisoning, disease of the heart and blood vessels, sinus trouble, eye strain, anemia, high blood pressure, kidney disease and certain disturbances of the nervous system. In elderly persons, particularly, headache can be traced to hardening of the arteries and chronic high blood pressure.

In children, headache may be the first sign of an infectious disease. It should never be ignored.

Defective vision or the wearing of improper glasses is a common cause of headache. Lack of fresh air, poor ventilation, escape of gas from gas jets, automobile exhausts and furnaces are other causes that must not be overlooked.

If permanent relief is expected the cause must first be determined. This can be accomplished only by means of a complete physical examination. A careful study of the manner in which headache develops, the character of the pain and its location, are important. If necessary, X-ray examination of teeth and sinuses should be made. Habits of diet and manner of living are carefully considered.

The cause of headache may be in some part of the body distant from the head. For this reason I cannot say too much about the importance of a careful checkup of all the organs of the body. This includes the heart, lungs, digestive system, kidneys, nervous system, blood and blood vessels.

There is a distinct type of headache often confused with the ordinary headache. This form of headache is spoken of as "migraine."

Migraine is a headache that occurs at periodic intervals. The sufferer knows in advance when he is going to have an attack. A day or two previous to the onset, he suffers from vague, gastro-intestinal symptoms, eye disturbances or other signs familiar to him. Little is known about migraine except that it runs in families and is believed to be hereditary.

Avoid patent medicines and tablets guaranteed to cure headache. Remember that headache is a warning sign given by kindly nature. It is a danger signal. Heed it and protect your body from further damage.

FOX FUR HAS A NEW VOGUE IN THE PARISIENNE STYLE MART

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Fox furs are being revived as a Paris fashion. They are appearing in many new ways. One designer dyes them navy blue and uses them to collar and cuff formal afternoon suits of navy broadcloth. Another cuts them into half width, sewing the strips into furry tubes which he combines in groups of four and five to make shoulder capes to wear with suits or collarless coats.

* * *

ONE SEES fox often by night. White foxes—as deep wide collars on evening wraps, and fashioning entire wraps themselves—are much in evidence. There is much fashion gossip in Paris right now about the fox scarf for evening wear; it is usually quite elaborate—made of four or five skins, and is worn indoors, as a scarf or evening jacket would be worn.

* * *

BERNARD ET CIE uses black fox of especially deep pile and glossy finish to border the edges of a new evening cape of black velvet. The fox is generously used and serves not only as a decoration, but to weight the cape so that it will hang correctly from the shoulders and cling to the hips.

* * *

BERNARD ALSO designed the pink velvet dress which makes this pink-and-black evening ensemble; the same pink velvet lines the cape and fashions shoes and evening bag.

with FLU in the air . . don't take chances with COLDS! . . .

WITH flu in the community, everyone is warned against the dangers of colds just now. Colds pull down body resistance, and often pave the way for an attack of flu and its serious complications. In the present emergency, the wise course to follow is that outlined in Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds:

To Prevent Many Colds: At that first feeling of stuffiness or nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze—Nature's usual warning that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds. Vicks Drops aid Nature in throwing off the infection that threatens. They prevent development of many colds.

To End a Cold Sooner: If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. At bedtime, apply Vicks VapoRub. Its direct, double action — continuing through the night—brings quicker relief. During the day, use the convenient Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. They add to comfort—help shorten the cold.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Newspaperman Stuff

Robert Andrews, the author of the book that became the movie, "If I Had a Million," writes more wordage for book publishers, newspaper and magazine editors and radio entertainers than any other person. When he heard that W. W. was pretty groggy with flu, again—and having a few moments to spare—Andrews pounded this out like the grand guy he is.

I know a managing editor who killed a man.

The man's name was Reardon. He left his city editor's job on a little morning daily in a Dakota town of ten thousand, and went to war, and got a decoration and a bad lung, and came back to be city editor again. I was his youngest cub reporter; I handled the late want ads, too, and ran errands for the owner. I wasn't quite seventeen, but I felt older than Reardon even then, because he dreamed so much. He'd read everything he could get about the big by-line men in Chicago and New York; he taught me about Henry Justin Smith's "Deadlines" and he knew all the characters by real names; he'd sit there late at night like a man dreaming out loud, saying how once, just once, he'd like to write a story on a real metropolitan paper, he'd like to be Reardon on rewrite or on a desk somewhere in the city. But of course he couldn't go, he'd say. Small town newspapermen can't get by in the big town. He couldn't get by.

Well, I quit and got a job on a paper in a town of four hundred thousand and when I started getting by-lines I got a letter from Reardon. An humble, pathetic, embarassing kind of letter. Would I ask somebody sometime if they'd give Reardon a tryout? Now I was on the big time, would I help him? Just to get out of the little town? Just to be on a real big paper?

I got him a job and he appeared, white and sick and scared to death. And the managing editor knew his fright.

Let me tell you about that managing editor. He was a second lieutenant in the war. He was a Norwegian, long, thin, with an edged voice. He said whatever he had to say to you loudly, so everyone else would hear; he broke your heart and told you it was for your own good; I've never known a man more smug, more cruel, more avid for victims like Reardon.

He put Reardon on a desk job where nobody could possibly go wrong, and Reardon, fumbling, shaking, did a good job, too. But not for his managing editor. Every morning, every noon, once more before going home, he would hear the managing editor yell "Reardon!" from clear across the office, he would pull himself together, get back there somehow, listen to the man telling him he'd better go back to the small time where he belonged.

He wasn't afraid of the managing editor. He could have broken him in two with his hands. He was just ashamed of being a smalltown newspaperman. He was terrified of having to go back. He had a nagging wife, too; I used to hear her, after hours, snapping at him, yammering at him; about his fear. Ordering him to fight back, ordering him to ask for more money. He didn't dare. He couldn't make her see why he was afraid, what he feared.

I tried to tell him he was all right, he was smarter than most of us, smarter than the managing editor. He couldn't make himself believe it. The managing editor had him whipped, knew it, loved having a soft victim.

I tried to talk to the managing editor, who hated me as much as I hated him. That couldn't have helped; maybe it made things worse for Reardon. The cat saw the crippled mouse as important, now, and grinned.

Anyhow, one day, the managing editor called him up front before all of us. "You go on the city desk tomorrow," he said. "You'll make a mess of it, of course. Well, when you do, you'll start back to the hick town where you belong."

Reardon didn't say anything. He just went home and got his shotgun and went out in the garage and blew the top of his head off.

I wrote the story about it. We said he was accidentally killed while preparing for a hunting trip. But I know what killed him, and who.

And once I tried to tell that story to Henry Justin Smith, of the Daily News in Chicago, and I'm sure he didn't understand it at all. He wouldn't know how to understand that kind of managing editor, Henry Smith wouldn't; but if you're writing about managing editors in America you can't forget H. J., of the Daily News.

I've never known a man who loved newspaper men as he does. And there isn't a managing editor in the country who's sent so many men up the line—seen them leave him and the paper he worships—and felt, maybe, like Pygmalion, maybe just tired and a little sad to learn how easily his "boys" forget him, most of them.

He was Ben Hecht's managing editor, for one thing; he started the "Thousand and One Afternoons" that started Hecht. He was a friend to Bart Cormack, Charles MacArthur. I don't know how many others. He had a little hunchback working for him, Simon, and there's a story only Henry Smith has the right to write, and he never will.

But he wrote about all his boys in "Deadlines," if you remember it. He must have suffered terribly, when the Lingle business started and he was forced to admit to himself, at long last, that perhaps newspapermen, after all, haven't all the kind of devotion he expects from any man who writes for a paper.

He likes to think he's fooling people, being lean-faced and grim and snapping at them. He fools no one at all; he does kind things and barks at you for letting him know you know it; he shepherds that Daily News crew of authors—and every man on the staff, I think, has written at least one book—as no other managing editor ever did or could.

I'm lyrical about Henry Smith. All right. All of them, Carl Sandburg, Lloyd Lewis, Howard O'Brien, Robert Casey, Harry Beardsley, Paul Leach, Hal O'Flaherty, all the others; the big names in Chicago, the real writers, know more about H. J. than I do, but they'll tell you the same. He's so kind he hurts you with his trust; he's so decent he's a legend, still living, still running that paper as quietly as for years before I had the chance to be one of his men for a little while.

I told you about a managing editor who killed a man. Well, this managing editor has made men out of a lot of newspapermen. I think he makes up, single-handed, for all the ugly things the hated m. e.'s ever did.

Sweetest of Irish Idyls 'The Far-Off Hills' Fine in Nixon

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Most delightful of all the plays in the repertoire of the Irish company at the Nixon Theater, Lennox Robinson's comedy "The Far-Off Hills" was played last night for the first time this week. While it is a comedy, it is so shot through with lyric beauty that it might as well be called a poetic drama. It should rank high above the "Playboy," though in dramatic power it does not match "Juno and the Paycock."

The full strength of the Dublin group is required in this play, with three girl parts that enlist the three charming young actresses of the cast — Eileen Crowe, Kate Curling and Ria Mooney. F. J. McCormick has a powerful role, and P. J. Carolan is at his best, McCormick as the gloomy lover and Carolan as the father threatened with blindness. Barry Fitzgerald and Michael J. Dolan as the two old cronies are a perennial joy, while Maureen Delany is at her happiest as Susie, especially in the scene where she gets Patrick to propose. May Craig as Ellen, whose love affairs end in toothache, is another most amusing characterization, while Arthur Shields does the hero in very human fashion.

Mr. Seibel

THOSE LOVELY VOICES

In this comedy, as in hardly any other play of the repertoire, the voices of the players are shown in all their loveliness. In the scenes where the three girls are together, the effect is almost that of a musical composition. Eileen Crowe's voice has the deep tones of a harp, perfectly modulated; it is a voice such as you hear only in Erin and in Vienna, such a voice as Moore wrote his melodies for.

And the two other girls furnish the silvery accompaniment—till the listener can almost see their faces with eyes closed.

The very way they run across the stage, and the way their eyes dance, has all the magic of spring and youth and dreams.

JEWEL OF COMEDY

Lennox Robinson has written a jewel of a comedy in this domestic idyl. The variety of the characters, the perfect unfolding of the plot without any repetitions or any stage tricks, the natural humor in every line, all makes an irresistible combination. The second act, in the girls' bedroom, is an almost flawless piece of dramatic construction.

While the audience was not much larger than at any time during the week, it was as unstinting and generous in its applause as the wonderful performance deserved. When the curtain fell upon the family gathered around the tea table, all happy and at peace, the audience seemed reluctant to leave—as if they knew they would be welcome upon the stage at the tea.

This afternoon "The New Gossoon" will be repeated and tonight "The Playboy of the Western World," with "Cathleen ni Houlihan" as a curtain-raiser.

Ruggles, Atwill to Act Under Veteran

Edward Sutherland, director of "Palmy Days" and "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," has been signed by Paramount to direct "Murder at the Zoo" in which Charlie Ruggles and Lionel Atwill will have featured roles. One of the veteran directors of Hollywood in point of service, Sutherland has handled many successful pictures, the most recent of which was "Secrets of the French Police." Formerly under contract to Paramount, he directed more than 20 pictures for the company.

Will Rogers Is Star in Stanley

By MARY SHINE

"Too Busy To Work," which began in the Stanley yesterday, brings you that grand exponent of dry humor, Will Rogers, as quizzical and head-scratching as ever, in the role of a happy tramp who knows more ways of getting out of work than there is work to get. He drawls out the most whimsical philosophies you ever heard. After an unsuccessful skirmish trying to milk a cow he observes that she has not gone in for repeal! There is a certain amount of sentimentality in evidence but Will never allows it to cloy.

The story tells you that he once was married and had a little daughter, but while he was away at war, his wife married another man. When he comes back, he just wanders hither and yon trying to find them. He finally finds his daughter, quite grown up, her mother dead and her stepfather a successful judge who loves her. The role is played sweetly by Marian Nixon, and the Judge's son, as her sweetheart, is adequately, but not interestingly, done by Dick Powell.

Will settles himself down to not working at the Judge's home to be near his daughter who doesn't know he is her father. When Dick innocently gets himself into a robbery and murder, it is Will who comes to the rescue, first with a few lies, then a little truth and finally some high-powered shooting.

Then he jogs along the way he came, whistling his favorite song, "Jubilo," leaving his daughter to Dick, and everyone lives happily ever after.

Haines Farce Very Wild In Penn

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Perfectly preposterous!" is an expression heard several times in "Fast Life," the new William Haines picture at the Penn, and it fits the picture well. In fact, the picture is so mad that the usually preposterous Haines appears very tame amid such doings. In the course of the story several score of people are dumped or jump into the waters near Santa Catalina, while all sorts of small craft race in and out, collide or blow up. It is all about a motor or something which Haines has invented and for which he has to secure the capital, which he gets by turning pirate, until at last the race is won for his sweetheart and the invention saves her father's business. This is a mere guess at the plot, which is as hard to follow as a jig-saw puzzle on a greasy table during an earthquake.

To make up for the muddle of "Fast Life," there is a very funny Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Their First Mistake," in which they adopt a baby and Laurel empties its milk bottles during the night; and there is also a South Sea picture, "The Isle of Desire," which for sheer scenic beauty and gorgeous photography could hardly be surpassed.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Irish Players will conclude their week in the Nixon tonight with the presentation of "Cathleen ni Houlihan" and a repetition of "The Playboy of the Western World."

* * *

In the Pitt the last performance of "The Naughty Cinderella" will take place tonight. The bill next wekk will be a revival of "East Lynne."

* * *

Opening with a Sunday midnight show, the Academy will have an augmented cast for its new burlesque, "Tickle Toes."

* * *

The new screen feature in the Avenue Cinema, where it will have its first showing Monday, will be "The Isle of Paradise," picturing scenes and life on the island of Bali, described by Richard Halliburton as the last surviving Eden in "The Royal Road to Romance."

Job-Sharing Successful

As the result of the initial month's operation of the 40-hour-week job-sharing plan, first introduced in the motion picture industry by Paramount, 432 unemployed film craftsmen have been given work at that studio and paid wages amounting to approximately $25,000.

The plan, which has found widespread favor in other industries, limits all craftsmen at present employed in the Paramount studio on an hourly basis, to a five-day week with a maximum of 40 hours of labor. This has enabled the studio to hire an additional complement of trained workmen, increasing the number of men about 20 per cent.

The studio reports that the new program has been successful in every respect. The working personnel has been rendered more efficient, new employes being placed on the job before previous shifts are fatigued from overtime. Local labor representatives have given their hearty approval and co-operation to Paramount in carrying out the plan.

'Face in the Sky' Film To Retain Title

Fox Film Corporation announces that "Face In The Sky," as originally reported, will remain with that title instead of "Fortune Smiles." This production is the first American film to feature Spencer Tracy, Marian Nixon and Stuart Erwin.

Broadways Of the World — All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

MAJESTIC HOTEL, TUNIS, NORTH AFRICA: My guide and I became good friends late this afternoon. That's a very important statement because it's probably the first time in history that a hired guide and a tired tourist ever had any respect for each other. What will happen tomorrow I don't know. But right now we understand each other thoroughly.

The gentleman's actual name is Brahim el Something or other. He told it to me several times, but my efforts to pronounce it were useless. So I cut the whole thing down to Abe—and Abe it's been ever since.

Abe was down at the pier, looking for a customer on the day I arrived. The moment he spotted me and my motion picture apparatus, he knew his search was ended. He immediately proceeded to take charge of my affairs and he bungled things so beautifully that it actually became a pleasure to watch him work.

There was something about the man, however, that I liked. I find it hard to put that something into words. Abe, of course, is an Arab. He never smiles. He distrusts everyone, including himself. He is out to gyp you of every possible penny in every possible direction. What, then, could I possibly find in him to like?

Well, it's this way. Any time, anywhere in the world, that I meet a man who is a bigger phony than I have ever met on Broadway, I take my hat off to him. Such a man is the director-general of all phonies. And when I consider the size of the army he leads, I must respect him.

The first day, for example, Abe had but two ideas in mind. The first was to distribute my money among all Arabs as rapidly as possible. And the second was immediately to arrange an Oriental dance for my inexpert consideration. Getting my baggage cleared and seeing me settled in my hotel were minor points in his consideration.

"Give that boy 100 francs for carrying that bag," he would say. "Or, if you prefer it, I will take care of all tips and give you a bill when you leave. What's that? A hundred francs is a lot of money for a porter? Why, that's only $4 in your money. You had better give it to him. Otherwise you will have trouble."

It was evident that the man took me for a complete fool. I could hardly blame him for that, however, because he certainly has plenty of company.

"Tell me about this city, Abe," I said as we sat on the pier the first afternoon. "How are conditions? Are they doing much work here?"

"Yes and no," was his reply. "You will learn much more about that after you have seen the Oriental dance that I will stage for you. You must understand, of course, that such a dance is very rarely staged for an American. But since your passport says that you are a journalist and because you will make films in Tunis, I think I will be able—"

"I know, Abe," I interrupted. "I know all about it. It's certainly wonderful of you to go to all that trouble for me but I'm really not in the market for it right now. What I want most to learn is if the wife of an Arab must always be veiled, or if—"

His eyes grew larger.

"Ah, veils!" he cooed. "There are not many veils in an Oriental dance. It is all so beautiful—and the cost is so small. A mere 5,000 francs. That's all. Of course, if the gentleman wants the most beautiful of the Oriental dances, the cost is slightly more."

"Abe," I asked, "what did you do before you became a guide?"

"I was in the theatrical business, sir," said he.

"I thought so," said I. . . .

At the conclusion of each day's work Abe presented me with an expense account. Since my director, my cameraman and I have been working steadily in an attempt to grind out fairly decent motion picture stuff, it is only natural that the costs should be rather heavy.

It was nothing at all for him to tell me that a blind beggar wouldn't be posed unless he had been given 200 francs—or $8 in our money. Or for him to tack on a few vague incidentals that ran anywhere from $20 to $40 a day.

The first two days, I didn't object too strenuously. I wanted to see how far my friend would go. But late this afternoon, when he strolled in and handed me the most absurd bill I ever looked upon.

"Sit down, Abe," I said sweetly enough. He sat. I went into my bedroom and took my revolver from my bag. I returned to the other room, threw a gun carelessly upon the table and sat down beside Abe. One look at his face and I had all I could do to keep from laughing.

The man had turned a pasty green. He was wetting his lips nervously. He leaned backward and pointed shakily at the gun.

"What," he muttered, "is that for?"

I placed a hand on his shoulder.

"That, Abe," I said softly, "is for the next time you mention anything more about an Oriental dance. Now I'm going to tell you something, and I want you to get me straight.

"I don't mind paying you a little extra every now and then, because I somehow sense the fact that, in different directions, we're a couple of brother racketeers. You get paid for doing nothing, and so do I.

"But here's the catch. I don't want you ever to think that you're putting anything over on me. The way I figure it, you have already gypped me out of some 800 francs. Am I correct?"

Abe scratched his head, which is something he does extremely well. It was evident that he was deliberating whether to bluff the thing through, or to take his chances on playing ball. He finally decided upon the latter course.

"Gentleman," he replied, "you are a most unusual man. So I will give you a most unusual reply. You are giving me too much credit. I have not gypped you out of 800 francs. As a matter of fact, I don't think it is more than 500!"

It was at that moment that Abe and I became friends. I laughed, put out my hand—and he shook it warmly.

"Okay, Abe," I cried, "we now understand each other for the first time. From now on the party's over. If you think you can steal a few francs from me every now and then, you're welcome to go ahead and try it. But be sure that I don't catch you."

The guide arose. He sighed and moved toward the door.

"What's the matter, Abe?" I asked. "Our little conversation didn't leave you unhappy, did it?"

He nodded.

"It did," he replied, "and since the American is a gentleman, I will tell him why. There has never been a film outfit here from which I wasn't able to steal at least $500. From you I am now positive I will not be able to take more than $200. Good night, sir."

Doggone it, I like that guy!...

Beery-Cooper Film Plan

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17.—How short is the memory of film fans? Around this question revolves an argument between Frances Marion, scen-artist, and some of the officials at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Miss Marion believes that Wallace Beery followers still cherish the memory of him as "Dutch," hero of "The Big House." She believes it so confidently that she is writing the character into another story for Beery and little Jackie Cooper.

So far, certain M-G-M production officials wag their heads dubiously at the idea. They think that "The Champ" and "Flesh" have dimmed the interest in the early prison film. They're doubtful about sequels anyway.

But Miss Marion perseveres and, because she is so often right, the officials have agreed to hold an open mind.

As it happens, I can cite an instance to support her claim. The other night I ran into Beery, who had sneaked into Loew's State Theater here to see an early performance of "Flesh." As we were walking down the stairs together, two girls spotted him. One sang out:

"Mr. Beery, I thought your picture was great, but I liked you better in 'The Big House.'"

And here were two typical fans.

West Virginia Child In Dreiser Film

Cora Sue Collins, the child actress of "The Strange Case of Clara Deane," has been signed to enact an important role in Paramount's production of Theodore Dreiser's "Jennie Gerhardt." Cora was taken to Hollywood by her mother a year ago from Clarksburg, W. Va., and she has been remarkably successful. In "Jeannie Gerhardt," being produced independently by B. P. Schulberg, she will appear in support of Sylvia Sidney under Marion Gering's direction.

Miss Lombard in Warner As Foe of Convention

By MANUEL M. GREENWALD

A flavorous bit of sophistication drifted into the Warner yesterday under the alluring title of "No More Orchids." It is a softly scented romance, nicely acted and excellently photographed.

To Carole Lombard's good fortune, "No More Orchids" contains in its cast two venerable and thoroughly ingratiating performers, Louise Closser Hale and Walter Connolly, late of the Broadway stage. Their presence is the final word in lending this ordinary story the resilience and briskness which make it airy and enjoyable.

While the snooty debutante's finding her man, and at the same time discovering his apathy, is a tale well worn on paper, stage and screen, it is transformed here into a consistently delightful comedy-drama, largely through the enjoyable tinkle of good dialogue. The ritzy Miss Holt, of the New Yawk banking Holts, has held up steamships for her arrival, tossed the hearts of earnest young men to the winds and, in general, played havoc with everything that is good and conventional. Except in the case of one person, her sympathetic father, Bill. So, when it becomes a question of honest love and the preservation of Bill's reputation, the anticipated sacrifice is forthcoming.

Carole Lombard has always proved an efficient actress in proper holes, and here she is in her element. In the male lead is Lyle Talbot, whose role calls upon him to be little more than handsome.

In spite of the routine basis upon which "No More Orchids" has been composed, it remains pleasant and satisfactory, especially for those who like their drama well stocked with fizzing foam.

DEFAULT BLOW TO FRENCH AMBITION

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—France's default on her debt payment to the United States Treasury on December 15 strikes what may prove to be a death blow to her ambition to make Paris a great world financial center.

Before the war, London held without challenge the position of financial capital of the world. Since the war, New York has shared this distinction with London, and in the last five years Paris has shown increasing promise of becoming a major collaborator in world finances.

Mr. Rukeyser

Typical of the American reaction to the French default, one studious observer remarked:

"Henceforth, in world finance France will be classed among the second-grade nations."

In saving $19,261,432 due on December 15, France lost heavily in imponderables.

PRESTIGE HIT

Before the war, London had an unrivalled position as the world's depository for short-term funds, because outside financiers and industrialists respected the British integrity. They found in actual experience that they could get gold out when they needed it, whereas the continental centers, though nominally on a gold basis, in critical situations would find devious ways, including embargoes and permits, to make it difficult, if not impossible, for foreigners to draw out funds.

As a result of the default, Paris will unquestionably lack the prestige requisite to playing a part in world finance commensurate with her present immense gold holdings, which exceed $3,260,000,000. Ever since 1929, world finances have been impaired by the shifting of gold from England, which was skilled in using it as a basis for foreign credits, to France, which was less experienced in that direction.

BANKS CARRY ON

In spite of the shock of the default, there was less disposition in Wall street than in Congress to take drastic steps. Banks, which habitually extend credit to French institutions, showed no disposition to stop business as usual. It is argued that, in the present upset condition of the world, financial war with Paris, instead of cooperaton, would deepen the world depression.

The restoration of the international gold standard will rest upon economic co-operation among the nations, and to the extent that the French policy makes such collaboration difficult, it is distinctly unfortunate, wholly apart from the purely political repercussions.

Wholesale and Jobbing Trade Conditions

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Tabloid review of wholesale and retail business conditions as reported to Bradstreet's this week from the following centers, on the basis of comparisons with conditions in the same areas in the corresponding week last year:

	Whole. and Job Trade.	Retail Trade.	Mfg. and Industry.	Collections.
Pittsburgh	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Chicago	Good	Good	Quiet	Slow
Cleveland	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow

St. Paul	Quiet	Fair	Quiet	Slow
Baltimore	Fair	Fair	Quiet	Slow

Pittsburgh—Continued cold weather accelerates demand for coal and coke; glass production fai below 1931; steel operations on 15 per cent basis; no increase in railroad buying; retail holiday trade at Uniontown brisk.

Chicago—Holiday buying nearing peak; release of automobile orders enlivens steel industry—prospects for increased rail orders favorable; freezing weather causes active demand for coal and more employment of miners.

Cleveland—Retail trade feeling usual seasonal stimulus; profits low; many large corporations declaring 1-cent dividends to prevent shareholders from paying 5 per cent tax on market value of securities.

Detroit—Holiday buying fairly strong as result of attractive features and "sales;" slight seasonal gain in wholesale holiday merchandise; employment at auto plants increasing; state construction main stimulus to building trade.

SHOE INDUSTRY EXPECTING UPTURN

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The shoe business, which in five months of 1932 has exceeded its production for comparative periods of 1931, hopes to start the new year with a rush of buying.

Nearly 3,000 shoe merchants from all parts of the nation will gather in Chicago, January 9-11, to replenish their stocks during the convention of the National Shoe Retailers' Association, James H. Stone, manager of the association, said:

"There is reason to expect very substantial buying for early spring requirements during the convention."

BETTER GRADES MOVING

Already, Mr. Stone said, there has been a "noticeable acceptance" of better grades of shoes, in response to retailers' campaigns for emphasis on sales of quality products.

Perhaps the biggest problem of the retailer today, he said, is to bring his volume of sales up to unit sales in dollars. Thus far many dealers have been unable to achieve this goal, principally because of inability to adjust overhead costs in the proportion that prices of their products have dropped.

New Department of Commerce figures show that the shoe trade in October, for the fifth month this year, showed an increase in production over the corresponding month of 1931.

DEMAND ACCUMULATING

For the first 10 months this year, production of reporting plants—including all principal factories—was 267,949,102 pairs, compared with 278,166,092 in the same period last year, or a decline of only 3.7 per cent.

Increases over 1931 production were reported for January, February, March, September and October.

This year much advance buying normally done in June, July and August did not mature until September and October, reflecting an apparent tendency by retailers to withhold orders as long as possible.

NEARBY STEEL PROSPECTS VAGUE

By B. E. V. LUTY

Production of steel ingots since the first of the month has averaged fully 16 per cent of capactity, against 18.05 per cent officially reported for November and 19 per cent for October.

The decrease in demand since October is regarded as merely seasonal in character, but opinions vary as to whether there will be more or less than usual lull over the holidays, so that only guesses could be made as to average production this month. Hopes are entertained that it will be a point or two above the August low of 14.26 per cent.

While demand for steel has decreased there has been no adverse news regarding the position or prospects of any steel consuming line. All appear to be in as good condition, fundamentally speaking, as two or three months ago, when steel activity was at its highest point since May. Some things are off seasonally while the automobile industry is running at about double its October rate.

JANUARY UPTURN SEEN

A few steel orders have been placed for shipment immediately after January 1, but in general there is little concrete evidence of an upturn. Precedents, however, are virtually conclusive that there will be a substantial rise in production beginning in January, as this has occurred in both good times and bad times and was particularly marked in two of these three years of depression. For a general gain, apart from seasonal swing, March is the favorite month according to steel trade tradition.

The Illinois Central has released 2,500 tons of rails for rolling at Chicago; New York Central is expected to distribute 7,500 tons, and the Edgar Thomson rail mill is running on a few releases.

Automobile production this month is roughly forecast at about 100,000, while the preliminary estimate for November is 61,216 and the official report for October showed 51,857. Although production has approximately doubled, the automobile industry is proceeding very cautiously and thus is expected to be able to do much better after next month.

Fabricated structural steel lettings reported in the week totaled 35,000 tons, nearly all in federal work. Since the first of the year lettings have averaged 16,000 to 17,000 tons a week. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has had difficulty in finding projects that promise to be self-liquidating in present economic conditions.

PRICES HOLDING FIRM

Fnished steel prices are holding fully as well as formerly, and quite rigidly in nearly all lines. While prices are subject to little test when buying is in such small lots, there is no likelihood of price-cutting being induced by appearance of larger inquiry. That has occurred in the past only when mills had a chance of reaching a fairly full operating rate and then advancing prices again through being fortified with backlogs.

Production of all classes of steel ingots will total about 3,000,000 tons for the quarter, about 15 per cent over the third quarter's 2,625,000 tons. Financial statements of steel companies will reflect this increase, leaving the third quarter as the poorest for the steel industry in this whole period. The year's total ingot output will be about 13,300,000 tons.

The scrap market has passed into a greater stage of dullness and prices are largely nominal. Some small lots of heavy melting, not of reasonable market size, have gone at concessions. Mill buying in substantial volume is expected within the next 30 days, and possibly in the last week of the year.

Gillette Wins Suit Against Competitor

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—A decision in favor of the Gillette Safety Razor Company has been handed down by Judge Edwin S. Thomas in United States District Court in the company's patent infringement action against the Standard Safety Razor Corporation of Norwalk.

The Gillette company charged infringement of a patented improvement on certain safety razor blades which it manufactures.

Last week Judge Thomas decided another patent infringement action in favor of the Gillette company, also brought against the Norwalk corporation.

Markham to Head New Oil Committee

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Baird H. Markham, formerly comptroller and assistant to the president of Continental Oil Company, of Ponca City, Okla., has been appointed directing head of the American Petroleum Industries Committee, it was learned here.

This committee was created at the American Petroleum Institute's recent meeting in Houston to determine the organization's policies and direct its activities in regard to taxation matters. The chairman is H. T. Klein of the Texas Company.

Standard Gas 1933 Budget $12,474,753

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—The Standard Gas and Electric Company's preliminary construction budget for 1933 will total $12,474,753 for public utility companies in the system, according to John J. O'Brien, president of the company. The amount includes estimated expenditures of $1,501,611 to complete projects now under construction at utility properties in the Standard Gas system.

STOCK MARKET PRICE TONE STEADY

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Stocks pursued an even course in the early trading today.

Price changes were mainly small fractions. American Telephone, Corn Products, General Electric, Westinghouse and Southern Pacific dipped a shade. Continental Can, General Motors and United Corporation were slightly higher. Coca Cola lost nearly a point, while Owens-Illinois gained a point. New York Central, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Public Service of New Jersey, United States tSteel preferred and Columbia Gas were steady.

The week-end trade reviews had little new to offer. Seasonal recession was reported in some basic lines, except for the helpful fillip of Christmas buying. Considerable emphasis was laid on the reported ability of some businesses to resist the usual seasonal letdown.

Wall street showed relief over the evidences that a damper is being placed, on both sides of the ocean, on the recent war debt dispute. Some bankers held that the less talk about debt differences now, the better.

Sterling continued its recovery, gaining 5/8 cent at the opening to $3.31 for cables. French francs held slightly above their recent lows. Cables were quoted at $3.90 1/4, off 1-16 of a point.

GORDON BACKS CLOSED BANK ADJUSTING

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, in a statement today defending the plan of centralization of control over closed banks, said the practice prevents dumping of securities, costs very little, and enables a few employes to do work formerly requiring many.

The secretary's statement was made in explanation of testimony given in a Pittsburgh court yesterday that the liquidation division of the Banking Department was costing depositors in closed banks $250,000 a year. Gordon said:

"This $250,000 annual cost of the closed bank unit represents about 6-100 of 1 per cent of the $400,000,000 in assets in the closed banks, and about 12-100 of 1 per cent of the $200,000,000 in deposits in these institutions."

BELLEVUE CASE ADJOURNS

Depositors in the closed Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue were waiting today for final arguments and decision in the court hearing on their exceptions to the first and partial account filed by George F. Taylor, deputy secretary of banking in charge of the institution.

The hearing was postponed yesterday until after the holidays, following two days of testimony during which the exceptants centered their questioning on the office of William L. McGee, deputy secretary of banking in charge of the central office, Division of Closed Banks, of the Department of Banking.

Attorney Thomas G. Taylor, of Greensburg, returned $143.75 to the bank yesterday, when it was brought out that, although the bank had been prorated for its share of Taylor's salary as attorney for the bank, he had done no work for the bank during the time covered by the item—October 22, 1931, to December 31, 1931.

CIPHER NO. 27

Easy, wasn't it?

How long did it take your youngster? Write the Cipher Editor and let him know.

Well, let's go to work on Cipher No. 27. It was submitted by Frank Balowitz, of Wilmerding, Pa. Remember that a letter frequency table will help.

Now as to Cipher No. 26. You found that easy, didn't you? In case some of the young fans didn't understand, the Cipher Editor will explain it.

Cipher No. 26 was a simple numerical cipher with "A" "20" instead of "1", and "Z" "45" instead of "26." When solved it gave you:

PLEAS OF POOR SWAMP COX

The frigid weather has brought a flood of demands on Father Cox from the destitute for food, clothing, fuel and medical aid. Yesterday was his most strenuous in the many years he has been voluntarily directing relief work.

The bread line at old St. Patrick's was longer than usual and the calls for help from needy homes were doubled.

Father Cox had not intended to disturb the loads of food and clothing donated at last Sunday's Warner Theater benefit until the Christmas holidays, desiring to use this in the Christmas baskets, but yesterday's demands put a big dent in this supply.

Father Cox was given another check by the Sun-Telegraph yesterday representing commissions on the subscription drive this newspaper has inaugurated for his fund. Every subscription that comes in on blank on this page brings to this fund a liberal cash commission.

Trafford Trio Held As Bandit Suspects

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 17.—State police held three youths charged with a series or robberies in Trafford district. Those held are Charles McCoy, 18; Charles Stein, 19; Allen Martin, 18, all of Trafford. The youths, police say, admitted robbing stores of Anthony Arlotti and Frank Primavera, stealing chickens from Peter Wowosczka and the auto of Mrs. Margaret Cornes, wife of a Trafford minister.

WIFE ACQUITTED IN SLAYING

SMETHPORT, Pa., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. Beatrice Sullivan enjoyed her freedom today and received congratulations from friends following her acquittal by a jury on a charge of slaying her husband, Neil Sullivan, a salesman.

The jury returned its verdict late yesterday after deliberating one hour and five minutes.

Sullivan was found dead with two bullet wounds in his head in an automobile mired in a country road near Kane, October 6, with his wife, apparently dazed, seated as his side.

After defense counsel asserted the couple were intoxicated at the time of the shooting, Judge Joseph W. Bouton said in his instruction to the jury that intoxication could be no excuse, adding:

"This case is a great argument for temperance against bootleg liquor."

MUSIC

John Goss and the London Singers
CARNEGIE MUSIC HALL

John Goss and his London Singers—a male quartet—sang a delightful program for the Art Society last night in Carnegie Music Hall. Everyone whom I met asked me how I liked them, and so here is how:

Mr. Lissfelt

A young mother watched her child at his first grown-up Christmas tree and wondered, too, what he would say. The little fellow gazed about, evaluating all his gifts and then:

"Mother, I wonder what I shall want next Christmas?"

I am not like that child. I know that I want the London Singers again next Christmas.

And that is a wish without reservations. The program was crowded full of virile old English songs of the hunt, of the streets, of politics, earthy songs of the people, rollicking songs of the sea, tender and jolly songs of Christmas, and some art songs of the greatest composers. These latter songs, however, showed these great spirits at play, and though they were playing at the mathematics of music, they made fine tunes and great fun.

Now what sort of singers could do all these things? Well schooled musicians, to begin with, properly trained voices that they might create a good ensemble, and Englishmen who are unashamed of poetry in their souls, who have most delicate humor, and who can treat even a tavern brawl and make it a work of art.

John Goss is the leader of this group and sings whatever solo parts occur in the music. The bond between him and his audience is quickly established, strongly due to his excellent diction which allowed us to comprehend his finest nuances with utmost ease.

There were many encores, among them Borodin's "Four Lovers and One Lady" and a thrilling French Sea Song.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 17.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I bet you France pays. In fact, they already started paying. Merchants in Beverly Hills, (the best dressed and most cosmopolitan town in the U. S.) said they couldn't sell the "scream stars" a single French importation. Instead of Christmas night perfume, it's "Jockey Club," made in Des Moines. And it don't smell bad at that. The "leading men" have all switched from a French to a New Jersey hair tonic. Every shoe store is knocking the "French heels" off their shoes. These French "berets" that some "near" men were wearing, they have switched to a crocheted boudoir cap. Oh, France is paying.

Yours, WILL.

Plymouth Sets a New Pace!

$30 Reduction Announced by Walter P. Chrysler

Plymouth Six Four-Door Sedan
Now $545

TODAY Plymouth announces price reductions up to thirty dollars on the Plymouth Six . . . effective at once.

Plymouth first set the pace in the low-priced field by introducing new models far in advance of competition.

We said then that "this new Plymouth was built to honestly win the good-will of American motorists, who have never yet failed to reward real merit."

We meant what we said. Plymouth sets the pace in price as well as performance . . . in value as well as engineering. This step proves that.

Our factories are humming. Men are at work. Dealers everywhere report business improving steadily.

This is the time to "go ahead" and now Plymouth sets a faster pace than ever.

And remember this . . . your savings on Plymouth aren't confined to price alone. Plymouth is scientifically engineered to be the most economical Six in the low-priced field . . . the easiest to run, the easiest on gas, oil, tires and upkeep. That's why it carries no excess weight . . . no superfluous cast iron and steel . . . to increase operating costs.

Remember too, this new price includes Floating Power . . . patented engine mountings that no other car can use except by license. Not simply rubber cushions . . . but a basic new improvement which eliminates vibration.

There's Safety Steel Bodies. If steel railway cars are superior to old-fashioned coaches, certainly steel automobile bodies are superior to the old-fashioned composite kind.

You get Hydraulic Brakes too . . . so necessary in these days of high speeds and crowded highways. And that easy ride once found only in high-priced cars.

Not only is Plymouth a BIG, full-sized family car . . . it's a low-priced car without that low-priced look. A thrilling car to drive . . . with a 70-horsepower engine that makes Plymouth the most brilliant performing Six in the low-priced field . . . bar none.

No wonder Plymouth says again . . . go look at all three . . . ride in all three . . . compare the delivered prices on all three . . . and may the best car win.

NEW LOW PRICES—NOW $90 LESS THAN LAST YEAR

4-Door Sedan	$545	Coupe with Rumble Seat	$525
Convertible Coupe	565	Business Coupe	495

All prices F. O. B. factory. Low delivered prices. Convenient time-payments. These features on all models—Patented Floating Power engine mountings, hydraulic brakes, free wheeling, full-sized safety-steel bodies, safety-glass windshield, down-draft carburetor, heat-resisting valves, easy-shift transmission with "silent second," rigid-X double-drop frame, Oilite squeak-proof springs, rubber shackles on all springs. Closed cars wired for Philco-Transitone Radio. Optional—Automatic Clutch $8 . . . Duplate Safety Plate Glass Windows—Coupe $10, Sedan $16.50.

PILOT LEANS TO LINDY FOR CENTER

THOUGH HE SAYS he won't make up his mind until spring just where to place Freddie Lindstrom in the Pittsburgh grass patrol, Manager George Gibson admits that right now his thought is to put Lindy in centerfield and move Lloyd Waner over to left. The final decision hinges on the question as to which is the better equipped physically to stand the strain in centerfield, and because Lindstrom is bigger and stronger and has more power and stamina than the younger Waner, signs point to the selection of Freddie for the middle post.

Lloyd Waner

Gibson says it's a mistake to think that one outfield position is exactly like another. He figures centerfield is 50 per cent harder to play than either right or left. There's more wear, no foul line to help save energy. A right or leftfielder starting to chase a line drive, may see it curving over the foul line, the Buc manager points out, whereupon he quits chasing it and saves no little wear or tear on his legs. But every ball hit to center is fair, and the fielder has to keep chasing it until he gets it. Only rarely, too, does a right or leftfielder back up a center gardener, but the latter is continually backing up one of the others. He has to cover not only his own territory, but about half the territory on either side of them. Gibson says he'll wager that if two outfielders are started off together in the majors, one in right or leftfield and the other in center, the one who plays right or left will last five years longer than the one playing center.

BILL TERRY was sorry he had to send Lindstrom to the Pirates, not only because it involved the loss of a great player, but because it meant parting with a particular pal of many years, since they played together at Toledo in 1922 and 1923.

However, Terry figured it would be no great wrench to Lindstrom inasmuch as the latter wanted to get away from New York, and the Giant manager says he finally decided that a trade would be best for all concerned. Certainly it was best for Pittsburgh.

JIMMY M'LARNIN would have been more convincing in his eight-round knockout of Sammy Fuller last night if he had not had the big advantage of nine and a half pounds in weight. That's a whole lot between fighters of their size.

Yet McLarnin's hard and clean hitting was enough to indicate that he is right again and that his loss of form earlier in the year was only temporary. Fuller never had been knocked out before, and McLarnin had to be in a good stride to turn the trick. Jimmy may yet win a title before he retires. He will meet Billy Petrolle next if Jack Fields will not consent to a championship match.

JACK DOYLE is among the baseball old-timers like Fred Clarke, Johnny Evers, Mike Donlin and others who sigh for the two-fisted competition of the bygone when they take a look at the game in its present state and think of how differently it was played in the long ago. Doyle, now a scout for the Cubs in the West, once played first base for the Giants and managed them, and later was one of the scrappiest members of the fighting Orioles of Baltimore, who won three National League pennants in a row. He sees too much fraternizing in the modern game.

Jack Doyle

DOYLE RECALLS THE Orioles as a happy family. They won pennants by playing hard, aggressive baseball that involved them frequently in scraps with opponents and umpires, but off the field they were well behaved and easily handled by Manager Ned Hanlon.

"We treated all of the other teams as enemies," Jack relates. "There was no handshaking or backslapping during the preliminary practice. The Orioles were fighters from the moment they put on their uniforms until they left the park. That was the way all of the clubs in my day behaved on the field, and it would be a good thing for the game today if the player would forget their friends on the opposing team."

"I HAVE KNOWN all along that the odds will be against us in the Southern California game," is Jock Southerland's comment on the Rose Bowl engagement. "But the odds were against us in our Notre Dame game, too. They also were heavily against us in facing the schedule we had, so we are used to meeting odds by now.

"Every one in football has known what a great line Southern California has. We have a good line, if not a great one, and we also have a strong defensive team. I made the mistake on our last coast trip of trying to get ready at home. We worked in snow and slush up to our ankles and couldn't even hold a football.

"THIS TIME I am starting out 15 days ahead, to stop for a week in Tucson, where we'll have a much better chance to get back in shape and to iron out the kinks. One or two good breaks may mean everything in this game. And this is where a strong defensive team always has a chance. We have two high-class ends and strong defensive backs to pit against both the running and the passing game. But we haven't the man power that Southern California has, especially in the line. In spite of this, however, we haven't surrendered yet. I know we have a smart, hustling team, and that means a lot. It won't be any runaway."

THOUGH A GREAT deal more is continually heard about other pocket-billiard champions of the past, a number of old timers, during a fanning bee at the New York title tournament the other night, rated W. E. Blankenship as the greatest of them all.

Blankenship won the championship in 1916, and you may judge how good he was from the fact that the men finishing second, third and fourth, Johnny Layton, Frank Taberski and Ralph Greenleaf, respectively.

IT IS SAID of Blankenship that he could recklessly smash the balls, spotting his opponent to what he could get, and then go out and win the game by a wide margin. But after that tournament of 16 years ago, Blankenship proceeded to hit the high spots and the toboggan.

Freddie Miller

Veterans assert that not even the Greenleaf of today can be compared with Blankenship. They see a suggestion of the old champion in James Caras, the 20-year-old Greek starring in the present title competition, not from the viewpoint of skill, but because, unlike most players, Caras does better against the topliners than against the weaker entrants.

THE PLANS OF Jimmy Johnston, New York boxing impressario, call for Kid Chocolate to defend the featherweight championship against Seaman Watson, of England, on January 27, the winner to meet Fidel La Barba in another title match three weeks later. In the event anything happens to upset the proposed bouts, Freddie Miller, a stablemate of Battling Battalino, and to whom the latter tried unsuccessfully to throw the featherweight title, wants a shot at Chocolate. Miller's persistent challenges have moved Luis Gutierrez, Chocolate's manager, to get even for an agreement he was forced to make when Battalino gave the Keed a championship match. "I had to agree then that if Chocolate won Battalino would take the entire 50 per cent hung up for the boxers," Gutierrez said. "If Miller wants to fight Chocolate he can have the match on the same conditions—the whole purse to go to Chocolate if he loses the title. That's fair, isn't it?"

VETERAN FIRST BASEMAN GOES TO CINCY

CINCINNATI, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The Cincinnati Reds today announced that they had acquired Sunny Jim Bottomley, of the St. Louis Cardinals, in a straight trade for Owen Carroll, a pitcher, and Estil Crabtree, Red centerfielder.

Bottomley will fill the gap at first base, where it was expected Joe Morrissey would serve. His acquisition is expected to assure George Grantham his favorite spot at second. A third baseman to match the other two infielders also is sought.

Carroll was looked upon as the hard-luck pitcher of a hard-luck team last year, losing 19 games. Crabtree played center field fairly regularly, alternating with Douthit. Never a heavy hitter, he had a modest average of .276 in an outfit that started strong and ended on the bottom of the National League heap once again.

No cash consideration was involved.

HOGAN TO GO

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The New York Giants, who have so far completed four baseball deals involving a dozen players since the close of the 1932 season, still are in the trading market for any reasonable proposition. Manager Bill Terry is the authority for the statement.

The only deal now pending, however, is one that seems certain to send Catcher Frank Hogan back to the Boston Braves. It is understood the Giants already have accepted a price offered for Hogan but they also are anxious to pry a first-class pitcher loose in the deal. For the time being, Terry indicated, any prospect of a deal with Brooklyn or Philadelphia is off. The Dodgers and Giants were "hot and cold" all week without definite results.

NATS GET STARS

Although the National League set the trading pace for the record-breaking turn-over in baseball players, the biggest packages on the Christmas tree seem to have been picked off by the "Old Fox," Clark Griffith, on behalf of his Washington Senators.

Griffith's success as the real David Harum of the winter meetings assures his youthful manager, Joe Cronin, a 1933 combination which figures to be the chief challenger of the World Champion New York Yankees. Baseball men agree that Washington has been tremendously strengthened in the two vital departments of pitching and hitting by the acquisition of Southpaws Walter Stewart and Earl Whitehill, Righthander Jack Russell and Outfielders Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte, in a series of swaps with St. Louis, Detroit and Cleveland.

CENTRAL LOOP RIVALS CLASH

By TOM BIRKS

Headed by the Lawrenceville-German Sport game at Leslie Park, four contests are carded in the Pittsburgh Central Soccer League for this afternoon.

Great interest naturally attends the Strip game. The teams practically are deadlocked for the league lead, and the chances of both winning the pennant depends upon the outcome of this contest. Lawrenceville is out in front by a scant margin.

Seeing that both clubs employ the European style of soccer, which is at a disadvantage on a heavy field, the outcome of the game is very much in doubt.

Westinghouse and Union Switch clash at Swissvale; Ambridge goes to Westinghouse High to meet Clan Douglas, and McKeesport makes the trip to Mt. Lebanon to meet the Firemen to complete the program.

Ulcans, Florida Set For Battle

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The University of California at Los Angeles ranked a top heavy favorite to defeat the University of Florida in a "Little Rose Bowl" football game here today.

It was "California Day" in Florida by proclamation of the Governor and a parade of decorated floats was arranged to precede the gridiron battle after the fashion of the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena.

It was a festive occasion but the gaiety was a little dampened for Florida supporters after seeing the Far Western team run through a smooth warm-up practice yesterday. Coach Charles Bachman, of the Florida Gators, however, said his players were in good condition.

BEARS, IRISH DICKER

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Coach Hartley (Hunk) Anderson, of Notre Dame, will confer today with University of California officials relative to the possibility of scheduling a grid game next year between the two institutions.

Cagle Says Pros Too Tough For Collegians

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 17.—If Red Cagle's word can be taken, a good professional football team would beat Notre Dame and Southern California by seven points and on the same afternoon.

Speaking before the Charleston High School student body here yesterday, the former Army star, now a member of the New York Giants, professional eleven, said a good pro team would beat both the Trojans and Irish and with points to spare.

Cagle said the pros would know too much for the collegians and would have the advantage of greater experience.

John Gruber, veteran sports writer and baseball authority, official scorer at Forbes Field, is seriously ill at his home in West View. The veteran scribe is suffering with pneumonia. He is nearing 80 years of age.

Funeral services for William R. Bishop, former pitcher with the Pittsburgh Pirates and a member of several minor league hurling staffs, who died Thursday at the age of 63, will be held Monday morning at 11 o'clock at the Moreland funeral home, 401 North Highland avenue. Interment will follow in the Homewood Cemetery.

Officers of the Veteran Police Association, of which the deceased had been a member, will serve as pallbearers.

HALAIKO STOPS PETROLLE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Steven Halaiko, 139, Auburn, battered Frankie Petrolle, 144, Schenectady, down to a six-round technical knockout defeat here last night in the 10-round semi-final 'Bucky' Lawless, 153½, Auburn, and 'Tiger' Smith, 151½, Rochester, fought to a draw.

BEARS BATTLE GEORGIA TECH

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—With no championship standing to worry about but keyed up over an intersectional football rivalry that began four years ago in Pasadena, Georgia Tech's Engineers and California's Bears meet here today.

Four years ago the Bears took one on the chin in the Tournament of Roses game best remembered by the 75-yard reverse run by Roy Riegels, California center. Last year, at Atlanta, the Ramblin' Wreck of Georgia Tech fell to pieces, 19-6, before a high-geared California eleven.

The Bears this season have won six games, lost three and tied two. Georgia Tech brings a standing of four wins, four losses and one tie to the West Coast.

The Bears are overwhelming favorites in the eyes of local fans, but Coach Bill Ingram has warned all and sundry to "watch out for those tricky southerners."

Coach Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, welcomed the role of under dog.

Rain yesterday gave prospect of a wet field today. The rival coaches gave no indication they would change the style of attack they have decided upon—a wide open game.

Table Net Play Finals on Today

With the first matches slated for 2 o'clock the first annual Allegheny County table tennis tournament, sponsored by Gimbels, will be concluded today. Ten matches are on the program.

All fourth round and title matches will be the best three out of five games. In the opening duels, C. Anisman will play S. R. Avner and W. Grant will take on N. Caplan I. Solow is to play H. Snyder and W. F. Frank will oppose C. Debberthine. G. Minehart will play the winner of the Anisman-Avner match and J. Insler will face the winner of the Grant-Caplan duel.

LINEMEN LEAD AS CAPTAINS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The boys who make the holes, who clear the paths over which backfield mates romp to glory, are coming into their own again.

Husky, capable linemen will constitute the majority when the roll of captains of Pennsylvania collegiate football teams is called next fall.

Frequently overlooked by the casual fans who follow the ball and the players who carry it, stars of the forward wall have been selected to lead nine of the 13 teams which have already chosen their leaders for next year.

The current roster indicates also that Pennsylvania teams have looked to their own state to furnish their captains, of 14 selected thus far, 10 are from Pennsylvania. The list follows:

Allegheny—Earl Vanaman, East Liverpool, O., tackle.
Bucknell—Nickolas Farina, Steelton, center; Owen James, Scranton, guard.
Dickinson—Lloyd Hughes, Hollidaysburg, fullback.
Drexel—Theodore D. Markle, New Oxford, tackle.
Gettysburg—Tony Kozma, Berwick, end.
Lebanon Valley—Leonard Volkins, Mt. Pleasant, tackle.
Lehigh—Paul Short, Belleville, N. J., halfback.
Penn State—Thomas A. Slusser, Pittsburgh, end.
Pennsylvania Military College — Jim Finch, Twin Falls, Idaho, tackle.
Pennsylvania—Roy Engle, Williamsport, center.
Villanova—George Randour, McDonald, halfback.
Ursinus—Walter Tropp, Toms River, N. J., halfback.
Duquesne—Al Krankota, Butler, Pa., end.

Rodgers Defeated By Clair Repole

STEUBENVILLE, O., Dec. 17.—Clair Repole, local star, is sporting a well-earned victory over Jackie Rodgers, Pittsburgh Negro boxer, today.

Repole won six of the eight rounds of his bout with Rodgers here last night in the main bout of a local boxing show. He was the aggressor throughout.

In the semi-final, Jimmy Gilligan, of Toronto, O., and Honeyboy Bradford, of Newark, O., battled to a 4-round draw.

By JESS CARVER

Pitt gridders have a reputation for being hardy souls, but they know when discretion is the better part of valor.

After taking a look at the Stadium gridiron and getting off a good shiver or two, shortly before noon today, the Panther varsity and alumni squads unanimously voted to stage their battle this afternoon indoors—in the Hunt Armory, Emerson and Alder street, East End.

The game, which was to get under way at 2 o'clock, marks the first time that indoor football has been played in Pittsburgh. The novelty of the situation was expected to increase the crowd by at least four fans.

TWO REGULARS OUT

The varsity, which en trains tomorrow night for the Far West, with a nine-day stopover scheduled for Tucson, will line up this afternoon with two regulars, Fullback Izzy Weinstock and Center Joe Tormey out of action. Both are suffering with severe colds. In their places will be Heinie Weisenbaugh and George Shotwell. The remainder of the starting lineup will consist of the regulars.

Coach Ray Montgomery, of the alumni, will set a really powerful line against the varsity. Joe Donchess and Rip Collins are slated for end berths. The tackle jobs will be filled by Jess Quatse and Jim MacMurdo and Monty himself and either Luby DiMeolo, captain of the 1929 Pitt eleven, or Hart Morris, of last year's fine team, will go at the guards. Ralph Daugherty will be over the ball.

In the backfield, Eddie Baker, Franklin Hood, Jimmy Rooney and Jimmy Clark are slated to start, with Josh Williams, Bucky Wagner, Tom Parkinson, Gib Welch, Toby Uansa and two or three other oldtimers in reserve. Uansa may be inserted into the starting lineup in the stead of Hood.

ROONEY TO KICK

The alumni will count heavily on the kicking prowess of Jim Rooney, possibly the best booter, when he wanted to be, in Pitt's history. It was at first planned to have the alumni use Southern California formations, but this idea has been discarded pretty much, and the boys will play a defensive game, furnishing the varsity with a test for its own attack.

Quatse, MacMurdo, Rooney, Hood, Uansa, Morris, Clark, Wagner, Lewis and several others of the alumni squads have been playing independent and professional ball all fall and are in corresponding trim. Bill Kern, star tackle of the 1927 team, assistant coach and scout at Pitt, will be ready for duty as a reserve tackle.

The game will be a bona fide affair, although the periods may be sliced to eight or possibly 10 minutes.

Today's contest recalls the memorable varsity-alumni battle of 1927, when Marsh Johnson led a squad of old-timers through a bitter tussle with the great Pitt eleven of that year, only to lose, 2 to 0, when he "threw a field goal" when passing the ball from center. Oddly enough, two members of today's alumni team played star roles in that '27 battle, Jimmy Rooney and Luby DiMeolo.

LUBY, JIM BACK

Both Luby and Big Jim were out of school in 1927, due to scholastic difficulties, and lined up with the veterans against Gibby Welch's varsity. Jimmy turned in a fine job of punting that afternoon, which was as bitterly cold as today, and DiMeolo was a bearcat on the line.

The 1927 alumni eleven, however, was not the team that will be out there today. The players, Johnson, Hastings, Holleran, Bowser and the like, were older and not in the condition the lads will be this afternoon.

The contest is slated to get under way at 2 o'clock. Messrs. Jack Shea, Dan Brickley, Red Byers and Earl Cavanaugh have been selected to officiate.

Grovers Announce 1933 Grid Card

GROVE CITY, Pa., Dec. 17.—The Grove City College football team will play eight games in 1933, all with tri-state district rivals.

The schedule, announced yesterday by Director of Athletic Robert E. Thorn, follows:

October 7, temporarily open, home; October 14, Edinboro Teachers, here; October 21, Bethany, away; October 28, Slippery Rock Teachers, home; November 4, Westminster, away; November 11, Waynesburg, home; November 18, Geneva, away; November 25, Thiel, home.

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Football Coach

Of the players selected in the above all-opponent team some may not appear on any all-star selection other than this, and there may be some doubt as to whether they were consistently good all season. However, they are, in the opinion of our coaching staff, the best men we met all season—in our games with them.

They may have risen to the heights against Notre Dame and their performance may not have been so good the rest of the season. But this team was picked on the basis of performance against Notre Dame. And I think you will find that most of these boys played fine ball all season and, in some cases, were the main cogs in their respective teams.

We ran into at least three great centers during the past year, which was unfortunate for us in that we were weaker at this position than we have been for several seasons. Evans, of Army, who almost single-handed threw us back last year, was hardly mentioned in picking this year's team.

The three standouts were Youel, of Southern California; Tormey, of Pitt, and Harbold, of Navy. Harbold's only weakness was that he followed instructions. This may sound queer, but he was told to follow our quarterback, and when our quarterback faked to right or left, the center was left open for our fullback or left halfback to go plunging through.

TORMEY GREAT CENTER

That narrows the field down to Tormey, of Pitt, who proved himself a worthy successor to Ralph Daugherty. I won't say Tormey was the best center in the country, but he was the day Pitt defeated Notre Dame.

There was considerable good guard material thrown at us during the past season, but no one was more outstanding than Rosenberg, of Southern California, and Capt. Summerfelt, of Army. Rosenberg was the better of the two, although there is little to choose between them.

At the tackles, we faced enough opposition for 10 years. I think this year's crop compares very favorably with the usually fine bunch we met last year. Going right through the schedule we find that Walton, of Pitt; Mehringer, of Kansas; Riley, of Northwestern; Armstrong and Lincoln, of Army, and both Brown and Smith, of Southern California, were all fine men.

Smith, in our game had a slight edge on his teammate and captain, Brown, and also an edge on any other tackle we met all season. He is the best we saw this year.

SPLADING PRAISED

The ends we met this year also were up to par, although the two I have selected were by far the best we met. They were far and away ahead of the field. Against us they had that extra something which makes for class. I refer to Ray Sparling, of Southern California, that triple-threat star who comes around and carries the ball, catches passes and blocks like the Trojan he is on offense, and plays smart, hard defensive ball. He did all of these things all season and did them well against us. And Skaladany, of Pitt, played one of the finest exhibitions of defensive ball I saw all season. In fact, the only place in which he must bow to Sparling is in ball carrying, and the Pitt attack does not call for him to do this.

Coming to the backfield, the selection of a quarterback is simple. We didn't face what I might call a first-rate field general all season until we met Griffith, of U. S. C. He ran the team conservatively, until the opportunity offered, and then he opened up, after Warburton's long punt return, and called for trick passes, the last of which he threw to McNeish for a touchdown.

Hogan, of Pittsburgh, also played a great game against us, but he was in the game only a few minutes and for that reason cannot be compared by the same set of standards as a player who took the knocks and bumps of 60 minutes of hard play.

HELLER, ACE HALFBACK

Heller, of Pittsburgh, and Sullivan, of Northwestern, were the best halfbacks Notre Dame faced, in the opinion of our coaching staff. True, Hogan did what I have mentioned above, and Sebastian made the scoring run against us, but it was Heller who played the entire game and was a constant threat. He made more yardage against us than any other back we played.

Other great halfbacks we played against were Kavel, of Carnegie Tech; Holmes, of Haskell; Weiland, of Drake; Chung-Hoon, of Navy, and Clemens, of Southern California.

Olsen, Northwestern fullback, is by far the best one-man team we faced. He passed, ran and kicked against us with the smoothness of a veteran. His great play under fire kept Northwestern from going to pieces after we had scored on the opening kickoff.

BOWLS 300 SCORE

Paul Stutesman, Knoxville youth, added his name to the list of those who have jotted scores to their credit yesterday afternoon. Muechler turned in his feat on the Knox Court bowling alleys with Manager Wash Bumbaugh as a witness.

Landis' Power Curbed by Baseball Magnates

JOHN A. HEYDLER — COMMISSIONER K. M. LANDIS — WILLIAM HARRIDGE

Commissioner Landis still is the czar of baseball, but in name only, due to the opposition to his wishes dished up out of conditions at the major league meetings in New York this week. His stand was disregarded in both the matter of club farms and of the sale of world series strip tickets. His word formerly was law in all matters, but seemingly the magnates are back in the saddle again when it comes to money affairs. Heydler is president of the National League and Harridge major domo of the American League. This International News Photo Service picture was taken during the New York sessions.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS STORY OF LIFE

Victory Over Bob Martin—Future Champion Breaks a Knuckle Fighting in the A. E. F. Tournament

By GENE TUNNEY
Retired Heavyweight Champion

SYNOPSIS

Tunney thus far has traced the early course of his fistic career, from athletic boyhood in New York's Greenwich Village, through fight clubs, to his activities with the United States Marines, his company then being encamped at Romorantin, France, where he won both the middleweight and heavyweight championships. Tired of guarding empty balloon sheds, Tunney is delighted when given time off to represent his company in the ring. Gene stopped most of the pugs in his neck of the A. E. F. woods, thereby earning a trip to Paris, where he gave joy to the doughboys by kayoing K. O. Marchand, French fighter, in the second round.

CHAPTER TWELVE

I was quite the hero of Paris in military circles the following day. Unfortunately, due to my traveling orders, I was not to enjoy much of this glory; I had to leave for camp that evening. Back at guard duty several days later I received a second telegram from Jake Carey, asking me to come up to Paris to box another Frenchman on January 31, 1919. Again the company commander gave his consent and the expected scramble for an appointment as second followed. This time a medico asked Capt. Chambers, our doctor, to intercede for him. This he did by going directly to the company commander. I was advised that orders had been written for the medico and another. I could choose the other. This time I chose a good-natured, jolly Irishman, Jack O'Hara, from Montclair, N. J., who worked in the galley. I knew I must somehow stay in with the kitchen help!

Gene Tunney

FINDS MARTIN EASY

When I got to Salle Wagram, where the match was to be held, I discovered there was no Frenchman to box and that an M. P. from Le Mans had agreed to take me on. I asked his name and was told it was Sergt. Bob Martin. I recognized the name immediately, as almost every week in the Stars and Stripes there was an account of Martin knocking out some Frenchman or doughboy at these Paris shows. He was considered by many of the critics and doughboys as the most dangerous man in the A. E. F.

When we got under way and I saw how awkward and apparently inexperienced Martin was I thought what an awful joke this match was going to be. I was hitting him at will and could easily avoid his counter attempts and leads. To me it was inconceivable that a fighter who knew so little and was apparently so poor could be considered by anyone as being a promising boy. It got so easy that in the beginning of the second round I started clowning and when he missed I laughed with the crowd at his ludicrous attempts. I had relaxed. He started an awkward left from which I pulled back with a smile on my face, not taking into account the terrific straight right that was following it until it hit me on the jaw.

The blow had so much force that it picked me up and precipitated me through the air to the other side of the ring. I bounced against the ropes, and, as I re-bounded, he had a long left swing started which I ducked. This was followed by another right haymaker that I took on top of the head. This one felt as though a crossbeam over the ring had snapped and fallen on me. I realized there was nothing left to do but fight and fight hard.

HURT BY BLOW

The time for smiling was gone. With every ounce of energy I had in my makeup, I hurled myself at this big guy and hit him from all angles. He finally put his head between his knees to keep out of harm's way. This method of defense he employed for the next two rounds; whenever he peeked out, I whaled him. I got the decision and with it the winner's prize—a dollar razor.

When he stepped on the scales that night Martin weighed 193 pounds; I weighed 168. Bob, in congratulating me after I was presented with the prize, said:

"You hit me the hardest punches tonight that I have ever been hit."

I could have told him the same thing. As a matter of fact, no one punch ever hurt me as much, before or since, as the belt he hit me in the second round.

The next day I made two calls—one to meet Jimmy Bronson to request that he include me on the proposed trip he was organizing of a boxing team to go to Italy. Jimmy was athletic director of the Y. M. C. A., in charge of boxing and was the first man to start the mixed matches between the doughboys and French professionals in Paris. These later spread to other military centers.

MEETS BILL M'CABE

Jimmy was most gracious, but regretted that the team was already made up. He said had he known of me he would have given me a place on the team; also that if any of those who had been chosen failed to come he would arrange for orders from General Headquarters and wire me at Romorantin.

The other visit was to the Knights of Columbus headquarters to get some altar linen for the priest at our camp. Jake Carey said to me:

"You will have to go up to the third floor for that, Gene. Here, Billy McCabe, would you mind taking Gene up?"

As we climbed the three flights of stairs, I became acquainted for the first time with Billy McCabe. We remained friends until he died. He was associated with me after I won the world heavyweight championship. Bill was a great person.

BOB MARTIN

By this time my company commander had changed his opinion about the effectiveness of my defense and skill. He beat to it any other commander in the camp who had a tournament hope in registering his protege in the A. E. F. tournament. I actually did not want to go into this tournament because I realized there were 2,500,000 Americans in France, all of whom had pugilistic aspirations, and among whom were many professionals. I believed that, while I could probably eliminate a good many, eventually I would bump into a seasoned, experienced, good professional, who would be too much for me. After all, I was but a boy and little more than a novice at professional fighting.

IN THE A. E. F. TOURNEY

Moreover, I had grown a bit; my weight was about 168 pounds, which would compel me to enter as a light-heavyweight (175 pounds). I believed that the seven or eight pounds I would be giving away to the average soldier boxer was all right, but I thought it would be too much of a handicap against an experienced professional. However, since my captain had registered me in the tournament, it was either default and go back to guard duty—a horrible thought—or go through as far as I could, putting off the evil day of returning to guard the empty balloon sheds as long as possible. I could not default.

I won with comparative ease the first five or six matches against inexperienced but ambitious soldier boys. I remember feeling sorry for these fellows, even when I was in the ring with them, for I realized that most of them were in the tournament for the same reason as myself—to get out of duty.

It was not until I got to Tours and met the winners of the other sectors of the S. O. S. that I met any stiff competition. I won the first two matches by knockouts, and in the third and final contest met a huge American Indian named Lewis, from St. Nazaire.

USE BIG GLOVES

These preliminary matches in the tournament were fought with 10-ounce gloves. It was not until we got to the finals in Paris that the five-ounce gloves were used.

In this Lewis match, I happened to catch him with a hard shot right on the point of the jaw. Despite the 10-ounce gloves, he fell to the canvas, kicking and groaning. I have never seen a man knocked out act in such a way. The impact of the fist against his chin broke the knuckle of my middle finger. He was counted out. When I took my gloves off, my hand was swollen to twice normal size. This swelling took place almost instantaneously. The knuckle that I broke in that fight in the early spring of 1919 bothered me all during the early part of my subsequent career; as a matter of fact, up until the third Greb match, in December, 1923.

There was no chance of postponing the next match. I was ordered immediately to St. Nazaire for two weeks' training preparatory to the finals in Paris. Had I been wise, I would have defaulted then, and after six weeks' rest, my knuckle would have returned at least to its normal strength. But since I had gone so far in the tournament I could not drop out. Moreover, the spirit of competition got hold of me. I wanted to win that tournament.

ORDERED TO PARIS

Before going to Paris I went back to Romorantin in the company of little Edgar Picard, who had won the featherweight honors of the S. O. S. Picard, before service, had a good record as a bantamweight around New England under the name of Kid Thomas. He was a clever little fighter and an enjoyable companion. We had broken away from the other S. O. S. honor winners, because they had been placed under the care of a bluffing M. P. captain, who pretended to have been a prominent and promising young heavyweight from Kansas City, Kan. This M. P. was assisted by Mike O'Dowd, who was then middleweight champion of the world.

We were ordered by the captain and O'Dowd to report at the railway station to take the night train to St. Nazaire. Being privates, Picard and I would have to ride all night in a third-class car. We had no assurance of a seat. This trip in the disorganized days of the French railroad system would have taken not over 36 hours—if we were lucky. They nonchalantly admitted that they had arranged for a motor car to drive them down the next day and we were to report to them when we arrived.

In the next chapter, on Monday, Tunney chronicles his winning of the A. E. F. light-heavyweight title, detailing the technique of defeating so-called "southpaws" in describing his victory over K. O. Sullivan—Gene's first dreams of beating Dempsey.

PANTHERS FACE MINNESOTA

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 17.—The University of Pittsburgh's varsity basketball team, a prime favorite in the Midwest, continues its 1932 invasion of the territory by taking on Minnesota here tonight, hoping to gain a 50-50 break for the first two games of the trip by beating the Gophers.

Last night, in Evanston, the Panthers were defeated by Northwestern, 31 to 22.

In meeting Minnesota, the Pitt quintet stacks up against one of the pre-season favorites for the Big Ten championship. Minnesota boasts a veteran team, led by Brad Robinson. The Gophers have scored 101 points to date in two games.

Pitt's defeat last night was charged to poor shooting. The Panthers were able to control the ball well and played a fine floor game, but were away off on their shooting.

Paced by Joe Reiff, stellar forward, the Wildcats led by seven points at the half. Pitt rallied as the second half got under way and came within two points of tying the count, but the Purple applied the pressure again and won with nine points to spare.

Reiff, with four field goals and four fouls, led in the scoring with a dozen points. Capt. Don Smith, with two field goals and two fouls, led the Panthers with half as many. The lineup:

Pittsburgh—22	G	F	Pts	Northwestern—31	G	F	Pts
Smith, F	2	2	6	Reiff, F	4	4	12
Hughes, F	1	1	3	Brewer, F	2	1	5

				Kawal, G	0	2	2
Totals	9	4	22	Totals	11	9	31

Pitt	11—22
Northwestern	13—31

Personal fouls—Hughes 2, Cribbs 4, Ochsenhirt 2, McCamant 2, Reiff 2, Johnson 3, Oliver 2, Moonshower 2, Kawal.
Referee—N. E. Kearns, De Paul.
Umpire—Frank Lane, Cincinnati.

Davis-Elkins Loses Again to Kansas

MANHATTAN, Kan., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The Davis-Elkins College basketball team left a fine impression on the minds of local court followers here following its two-day stand against the Kansas State passers. The West Virginians lost two games to the locals, but played fine basketball in both engagements.

Last night, the Wildcats made it two in a row, winning 30 to 19. A rally in the second half brought the victory, as the visitors led by 15 to 9 at the half. The lineup:

D. & E.—19	G	F	Pts	Kansas State—30	G	F	Pts
Shelton, F	0	2	2	Armstrong, F	2	0	4
Vest, F	1	2	4	Skradski, F	0	2	2

Totals	6	7	19	Totals	13	4	30

Half time—Davis and Elkins, 15; Kansas State, 9. Personal fouls—Shelton 2, Vest 2, Heavener 1, Martin 3, Skradski 2, Phelps 1, Freeland 1, Morgan 1, Blaine 1, Boyd 1, Breen 4, Marshall 1, Hanson 1. Referee—O. W. Cochrane, Kansas State.

Oakland to Stage Title Auto Races

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Two National championship motor car races will be run on the Oakland Speedway in 1933, Linn Mathewson, general manager, made the announcement yesterday.

One race will be held in April and the other in either October or November. Distances will be at least 150 miles.

HERRERA BACK WITH FALCO CHRISTMAS

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

One thing is certain these days, at least, and that is that we're having plenty of weather of one sort or another. Any old time they go calling off indoor boxing shows on account of the cold, as they did at the Arena last night, you know the weather is cutting didoes.

The show, featuring Ted Yarosz and Jack King in the 10-round main bout, will be pulled off Monday night, instead. It would have been a shame to waste it last night, with a lot of the fans who are anxious to see it certain to be among the missing because of frozen cars, slippery highways and just plain fear of zero temperature.

Four nights later, on Friday, Dave Shade and Frankie Goosby will collect a little pre-Christmas money in the Arena. They were matched for a couple of weeks ago, but Shade developed a toe infection and had to quit training.

IN HOLIDAY FEATURE

With Christmas getting closer and closer, and nothing to be done about it, Motor Square Garden has given up hope of landing a Ted Yarosz bout for its holiday matinee show a week from Monday, and has rematched Tony Herrera and Tony Falco, who put up a great battle there last Monday night. Herrera won the decision with a blistering finish, and the fans kept talking about the fight for a few days afterward.

Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Arena, is anything but asleep at the switch. He picked up the papers yesterday and read that the Alabama Kid, virtually an unknown, had handed Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, a technical knockout defeat at Dover, O., Thursday night, and he immediately got in touch with the victor's manager and began setting the stage for a return bout between the pair for one week from next Friday night. The Alabama Kid ought to be hot after taking the rugged Belmont in such surprising fashion.

McARTHUR BOXES POWELL

Buddy McArthur and Tiny Dick Powell box the main bout of a show at Fairmont, W. Va., next Thursday night. Jimmy Reilly and Jimmy Columbo are in the semi-final and Ace Dobbins and Chuck Carter meet in another eight-rounder.

Fight Results

At New York—Jimmy McLarnin knocked out Sammy Fuller, 8 rounds; Billy Townsend won by a technical knockout over Andy Saviola, 3 rounds; Baby Joe Gans defeated Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, 8 rounds; Tracy Cox defeated Bill McMahon, 8 rounds; Emil Rossi defeated Al Santora, 6 rounds.

At Phoenix—Baby Arizmendi won by a technical knockout over Rudolfo Teglia, 3 rounds; Tuffy Dial defeated Young Poe Peregrini, 4 rounds.

At San Francisco—Maxie Rosenbloom defeated LeRoy Haynes, 10 rounds; Millo defeated Jimmy Evans, 8 rounds; Battling Dozier and Don Larieux drew, 6 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Bill Roederer defeated Billy Angelo, 10 rounds; Art Feeser defeated Johnny Duca, 8 rounds.

At St. Paul—Art Lasky knocked out Joe Doktor, 4 rounds; Bud Soltes defeated Eskimo, Cleghorn, 8 rounds.

At Rochester, N. Y.—Steve Halaiko won by a technical knockout over Frankie Petrolle, 6 rounds; Bucky Lawless and Tiger Smith drew, 10 rounds.

At Chicago—Billy Jones defeated Charley Belanger, 10 rounds; Eddie Shea knocked out Harry Bilitman, first round; Young Terry knocked out Jimmy Finker, first round; Paul Dazzo defeated Young Geno, 8 rounds.

At Steubenville—Clair Repole defeated Jackie Rodgers, 8 rounds; Jimmy Gilligan and Honeyboy Bradford drew, 4 rounds; Young Selvinsky and Billy May drew, 3 rounds; Jackie Stouffer defeated K. O. D'Algesalo, 3 rounds; Keith Goodballet knocked out Kid Yasho, 3 rounds.

At Hollywood, Cal.—Tony Poloni defeated Garrison Casanova, 10 rounds; Baby Palmore knocked out Pepi Sanchez, 3 rounds; Tony O'Dell and Larry Docos drew, 4 rounds.

LOCAL SCHOOL FIVES LOSE

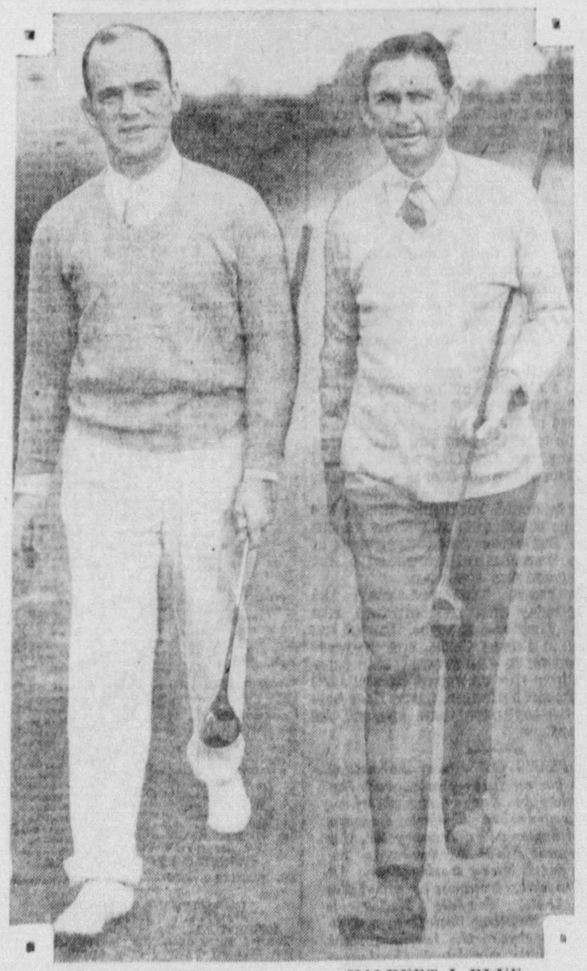
City League scholastic basketball stock is below par today following the first general test served the city fives by non-league opponents yesterday.

Four City League quintets, Oliver, Westinghouse, Peabody and Fifth Avenue tried conclusions with outside fives and the outsiders scored a grand slam. Bellevue defeated Oliver, 25 to 18; Edgewood downed Westinghouse, 22-16; Ambridge laced Peabody, 29-24, and Uniontown trimmed Fifth Avenue, 30 to 25.

Two other City League schools clashed, Perry defeating Allderdice, 30 to 23.

In other games yesterday, Scott won over Erie Strong-Vincent, 25-21; Aliquippa defeated Mt. Lebanon, 36-18; W. P. I. D. upset the dope by trimming Wilkinsburgh, 22-17; Homestead won over Glassport, 24-22; Beaver defeated Rochester, 28-27; Greensburg won a rough game from Johnstown, 16-14; Coraopolis downed Avalon, 28-26; Swissvale walloped Munhall, 43-14; Monessen defeated Canonsburg, 27-21; Har-Brack took Vandergrift, 30-22, and Braddock upset Norwin, 42 to 19.

Local Golfer Winner



ERIC THOMAS — HALBERT J. BLUE

Blue, a Pittsburgher, son-in-law of W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, former national amateur golf champion and former president of the United States Golf Association, defeated Thomas, of Springfield, Mass., in the final round of the Carolina amateur golf tournament at Pinehurst, N. C. This is a Rotofoto.

VETERAN HALTS CARAS' BID FOR TITLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Jimmy Caras apparently will have to wait at least a year before he can hope to take back to his home in Wilmington, Del., the National pocket billiard championship.

The 21-year-old youngster, a sensation after he won four matches in a row, suffered his second consecutive defeat last night and today was regarded as virtually out of the running.

Caras bowed to the steady play of the Chicago veteran, Pasquale Natalle, 125 to 3, in 12 innings, and dropped into fifth place in the standings. Playing his best billiards of the tournament, Natalle put together a cluster of 67 in the eleventh inning and then ran out in the next frame with an unfinished series of 40.

The Chicago veteran, by virtue of his victory, moved into undisputed possession of third place with five triumphs and one defeat. The fight for the title now seems to lie among the two undefeated leaders, Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, and Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, Natalle and Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, who has won four games and lost only one.

Greenleaf, the defending titleholder, and Ponzi will battle it out tonight with Rudolph tackling Caras and George Kelly, of Philadelphia, facing Benny Allen, of Kansas City, in the two afternoon matches.

Allen won his third victory in seven starts yesterday, beating James Mills, of San Jose, Cal., 125 to 99 in 22 innings. Kelly turned back Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, 125 to 63 in 18 innings, for his second triumph in six games.

HOWLEY SIGNS WITH TORONTO

CINCINNATI, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Dan Howley, last year's manager of the Cincinnati Reds, has signed a contract to manage Toronto of the International League once more.

He reached an agreement with the Toronto management in New York earlier in the week, he said yesterday. Their only differences, he added, were not over his salary and club finances as had been rumored, but over his demands that he be given absolute control of the players and their conduct on and off the field.

The contract will run for a year. It's salary terms were not disclosed.

Three Teams Tie In Philly Grind

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The wily Reggie McNamara, veteran of 87 six-day bicycle races, broke away from the pack in the one hundred eighteenth hour of the current grind early today to start his own jam, and with his partner, George Dempsey, rise in a triple tie for first place.

Seeing a chance to break a six-team deadlock, McNamara set out to steal a lap on the field. He showed his heels to all but two combinations who accepted the killing pace to help pilfer a circle from the rest of the riders.

With McNamara and Dempsey in first place were the younger teams of Spencer and Horan, and Severgnini and Grimm.

L. S. U. to Battle Oregon in Rain

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Old Man Weather dealt unequal hands for the intersectional game here this afternoon between the Louisiana State University Tigers and the University of Oregon Webfooters.

The cards—mud, rain and cold—are stacked against the nimble Louisiana Tigers, which places its greatest hope for victory on a swift deceptive attack.

The Capital City gridiron, soaked by steady rains for several days, may develop into a quagmire and slow up or nullify the speedy offense planned by the southerners.

Beaver Officials To Accept Pay Cut

BEAVER, Pa., Dec. 17.—Ten major Beaver County officials, whose salaries are fixed by state law, have announced they will take a 10 per cent voluntary reduction in salaries beginning January 1. Appointive officers, including deputies and clerks, took a 10 per cent cut the first of this year.

Legion Post to Give Santa Claus Party

Homewood Post, No. 351, American Legion, will be host to children of the community at a Santa Claus party in Homewood branch, Carnegie Library, Thursday. Children under 12 are invited. The auxiliary of the post sponsors the party.

Thief Loots Window Of Jewelry Store

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Dec. 17.—Police are seeking a thief who smashed the window of the J. L. Harr jewelry store with a brick and escaped with the contents of the window.

ROSENBLOOM VICTOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Champion of the light heavyweights, Maxie Rosenbloom, of New York stepped out of his division here last night to outclass and outfight Le Roy Haynes, 193½-pound Negro, of Los Angeles, in a fast and furious 10-round battle.

INDIANA FIVE WINS

INDIANA, Pa., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Displaying a close defense and a flashy offense, the Indiana State Teachers' College basketball five defeated the veteran Bloomsburg State Teachers, 37-21, in the season's opener on the local floor last night.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The champion P. A. A. squad, trampled badly by 4-to-1 margin in last Saturday's tussle with McCook Reed's crack Pittsburgh Golf Club crew, battles a powerful Keystone Athletic Club contingent in the Winged Head bailiwick in this afternoon's class A feature of the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association Inter-Club League race. Second position lies at stake upon the outcome of the contest, the rival arrays being deadlocked for the runner-up post at the moment.

The Golfers meanwhile invade Allegheny Country Club for encounter with the thus far unfortunate Sewickley Heightsmen, who, despite poor prospect of copping, must be reckoned serious opposition as long as they command the services of Dave Gilmore, 1932 city singles finalist, and of Frank White, former National amateur titleholder.

P. A. A. ON SPOT

Coach Harold Mortlock's Winged Headers stand an excellent chance of meeting with reversal number two today, unless their form of a week ago is improved upon. Keystone, bolstered by acquisition of Frank McClintock, leader of the now defunct University Club combine, presents a well-balanced line-up that includes, besides McClintock, Bill Bickel, Don McCutcheon, Herb Lytle, the Kennedy boys, and perhaps Charley Fagan. McClintock, a P. A. A. man and not a member of the Keystone A. C., was awarded to the latter team by the executive committee of the local racquet group at the start of the current campaign for the purpose of strengthening the downtowners.

FIGHT FOR LEAD

Keystone and P. A. A. likewise clash this afternoon in Class B competition, the secondary fray being slated for the K. A. C. courts. Both quintets landed decisions in inaugural matches last week, so that victory today carries with it at least temporary custody of the head of the procession.

The Golf Club B delegation invades Edgeworth to round out the card. Tilts in the lower section loom as difficult to dope out in advance, all four entries flashing enough new material to complicate the business of prognostication beyond rime or reason.

CAVALRY MEETS SOUTH PARK

The South Park and Three Hundred and Eighth Cavalry polo teams are primed for their Pittsburgh Polo League battle in the Hunt Armory tonight, with the Soldiers prime favorites to win and the Parkmen grimly determined to make a good impression as they make their debut in league competition.

South Park was admitted to the league last month. The players stroke well and has some accurate and hard hitters, but so far has not developed the teamwork necessary to compete on an equal basis with other trios in the league.

Lieutenants Young, Linton and Perritt will ride for the Cavalry tonight. The Park lineup will have Melvin Fisher at No. 1, William Voltz at No. 2 and Bill Ackerman riding back. Maj. A. Prince will referee. The game is slated to get under way at 8:45 o'clock.

The starting lineups:

308th Cavalry		South Park
Lieut. Young	No. 1	M. H. Fisher
Lieut. Linton	No. 2	W. H. Voltz
Lieut. Perritt, Jr.	No. 3	W. C. Ackerman
Referee—Maj. Fred A. Prince.

Westmoreland Floor Tourney Dates Set

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 17.—The annual Westmoreland County high school basketball tournament will be held on the Greensburg High School floor on March 3 and March 10, members of the Westmoreland County Coaches' Association announced today.

All of the games will be played in the local gym, including the first round contests unless the number of entrants is large enough to merit the playing of these games on other floors.

It was decided to make awards to players on class A and class B winners, and also to the most outstanding performer in the tournament. All schools with an enrollment over 30 have been placed in class A, while under that number will be rated in class B.

Gilbert Maintains Lead Over Mills

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17.—Johnny Gilbert and Hank Mills, battling for premier jockey honors for the year, prepared to complete the second week of their dueling at Jefferson Park with Gilbert still holding a three-victory lead over Mills.

Both rode winners yesterday, Gilbert bringing McGonigle home first in the seventh race for his one hundred and ninety-fifth victory and Mills riding Portman to a win in the second round for his one hundred and ninety-second.

MAY BAR BROADCASTS

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—A recommendation to ban radio broadcasting of games played here by the Cleveland Indians will be placed before the board of directors of the club, President Alva Bradley said today.

Teachers' Team Star

FRED FELDMAN

Former Monessen High School basketball luminary, now captain of the California Teachers' College team, which opens its season against the Sewickley Y. M. C. A. at California tonight.

QUARTET TIED AT PASADENA

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The second 18 holes of play in the annual Pasadena $4,000 Open tournament will be played today over the Brookside Park course here, with a crack field battling to overtake a quartet of stars, tied for top honors after the first day of play.

Yesterday three of golf's veteran campaigners and a comparative youngster staged a concerted attack on par to take the lead after the first 18 holes with scores of 68.

Leo Diegel, of Agua Caliente, Mex., former National P. G. A. champion; Harry Cooper, of Chicago, defending titleholder, and Fred Morrison, of Pasadena, Agua Caliente Open winner of last January, were forced to make way for little Dick Metz, of Deal, N. J., in a round of play which saw par shattered half a dozen times out of the field of 171 starters, and half a dozen others equal perfect figures of 71.

One stroke behind the leaders was Craig Wood, Metz' employer at the Hollywood Country Club, Deal, N. J. Wood, fresh from his victory in the San Francisco Open, finished with a sparkling 69, while Willie Hunter, of Los Angeles, former British amateur champion, came in with a 70 for sixth place, two strokes back.

Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, present National P. G. A. champion, was suffering from a cold and had trouble with his putter, but finished in even par for 71 along with five others, including Frank Walsh, of Chicago, from whom he won the professional title in the last round.

All-East Players Head West Today

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Players selected by Andy Kerr, Colgate coach to play with the East team in the charity game against the West at San Francisco, New Years Day head west today to join men selected by Dick Hanley, Northwestern coach at Evanston, Ill.

Kerr, accompanied by Mrs. Kerr and their sons, Andy, Jr., and Billy, will leave from here. Bob Smith, Joe Hill and Bob Rowe, Colgate players named, have already left. Smith stopped off at his home in Steubenville, O., Hill at Lebanon, Pa., and Rowe at Hillsdale, Mich., for brief visits before joining the squad.

Bart Viviano, Cornell captain, and Jose Martinez-Zorrilla, Cornell end, will join Kerr for the trip to Chicago.

Billy Jones, Shea Win in Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Mayor Anton J. Cermak's charity boxing show turned out to be pretty much of a flop, both from artistic and financial standpoints.

Less than 1,000 customers braved the freezing weather last night to attend the Christmas Fund affair. Those that did saw Billy Jones defeat Charley Belanger in a 10-round bout; Eddie Shea stop Harry Blitman, and Young Terry take Jimmy Flinker, who subbed for Jack Moran, in the first round.

West Coast Army Quits Grid Ranks

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The West Coast Army has withdrawn from the 1933 football picture and an announcement from Maj. Gen. Malin Craig, commander of the Ninth Corps area, said games already scheduled would be cancelled.

Gen. Craig said the decision to drop Army football on the West Coast was caused principally by financial difficulties.

RACE MEET POSTPONED

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—A midwinter horse race meeting, scheduled to open at the Tampa Shores track, December 30, has been postponed until March 11 because of inability to get the plant in shape, R. M. Williams, vice president and general manager of the operating company, has announced.

CAPTAIN APPOINTED

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—Ramey Hunter, four-letter man, has been appointed captain of the Marshall College basketball team today.

JIM M'LARNIN STOPS FULLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—They might just as well give Pick Vidal 10 yards in a broken field or tender Bill Carr 10 feet in a foot race as give Jimmy McLarnin a 10-pound advantage in weight and expect even so game an opponent as Sammy Fuller to survive the handicap.

Fuller, a tough lightweight scrapper from Boston, did it last night but was outclassed and knocked out in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round match that failed either to add to McLarnin's popularity in New York or satisfy some 11,636 customers who paid $27,558 at $5.50 tops for a one-sided affair.

The chunky Irish lad from Vancouver, in at 145½ pounds to Fuller's 136, displayed plenty of hitting power but he was slower and wilder than usual, missing so many punches at the bobbling black-head of Fuller that it was a bit draughty around the ringside.

Jimmy connected sufficiently to put Fuller down four times before Referee Pete Hartley counted the final 10 seconds in the eighth round, only two seconds before time for the bell. Left hooks to the head were McLarnin's most damaging weapon and it was with one of them that he draped Fuller across the middle strand of the green ropes for the finisher.

Fuller won the fifth round on his aggressiveness and brisk hitting, but he was outpointed in all the others by a wide and monotonous margin.

QUAILL VICTOR IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Dec. 17.—Pittsburgh's three-man amateur boxing team went home with one victory and two defeats after engaging in a charity show against local and Cincinnati simon-pures here last night.

Al Quaill, of the Y. M. H. A., of Pittsburgh, scored the lone Pittsburgh victory when he whipped Jacob Schwartz in a welterweight tussle. Frank Wingo, a bantamweight, was beaten by Dan Seifman, of Detroit, and Johnny Ochs, Smoky City heavyweight, lost the nod to Louis Craig, of Cincinnati.

A. A. U. to Study Didrikson Evidence

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—All evidence in the case of Mildred Babe Didrikson, 19-year-old athlete recently suspended from amateur competition by the Amateur Athletic Union, has been forwarded to Lawrence Di Benedetto, chairman of the Southern A. A. U registration committee at New Orleans.

It includes a photostatic copy of a telegram from E. Gordon Perry, motor car dealer of Dallas, to a New York advertising agency authorizing the use of Miss Didrikson's name and picture in an advertisement.

Suspended because of the advertisement, Miss Didrikson asserted she did not authorize it. A. A. U. officials announced the suspension would stand until she had furnished more information about the original telegram, on the basis of which the advertisement was prepared.

Rich Prizes Stand For Grand American

VANDALIA, O., Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The usual rich prizes will be offered in the thirty-fourth renewal of the Grand American Handicap Trapshooting tournament here in 1933, the Amateur Trapshooting Association's executive committee has decided. August 21 to 26, inclusive, will be the dates of the tournament.

As in recent years, a purse of $10,000 will be the prize in the Grand American itself, shot on Friday of tournament week. The preliminary handicap on Thursday will carry a purse of $4,000, the same as last year.

The board met yesterday.

Dates, Sites Set For Cup Matches

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—(AP.)—The 1933 Ryder Cup matches between England and the United States will be played at the Southport and Ainsdale Club, Ainsdale, England, June 26 and 27, according to Business Administrator Albert R. Gates of the Professional Golfers' Association.

The announcement was made yesterday.

Because the British Open at St. Andrews won't be played until July 3, the Ryder Cup matches were advanced from their original dates in May.

Buck Kills Tiger for First Time When Big Animal Lunges at Him

CHAPTER LVI.

I became conscious of Ali's presence, just behind me. He had witnessed the entire episode, apparently paralyzed with terror. Now he regained his voice and suggested weakly, "We go now, master?" I almost grinned at the expressive way he said those words. Both the words and the expression matched my feeling exactly. For now that it was all over I remembered to be frightened.

The whole business gave me the willies in retrospect. While it was actually happening I had been too numbed to have any emotions. Now I was scared stiff and I didn't care who knew it. If ever a tiger had a chance to make a kill, this was the animal. In my helpless state on the ground he could have finished me in a flash. With one slash of his paw he could have ripped open my throat; the rest—the business of tearing me to pieces—would have been only a matter of seconds.

These things all went through my mind as Ali and I started backing out toward the tree where I had left my rifle.

The boy, following instructions, had lit another flare, mine having burned itself out. His hand trembled as he held the match and his face was as white as it was possible for a brown boy's to be—and Ali, let me add, is one of the bravest Malays that ever worked for me.

FACE ANOTHER DELAY

As we backed out, the boy holding the flare in front while I gripped the revolver, I was watching and listening for any movement in the brush ahead of us, for I half expected the animal to charge again before we were out. There was no evidence of him, however, and Ali and I both felt better as soon as we got back to my rifle.

Replacing my revolver in its holster, I picked up the rifle and held it at "ready" while I stopped to consider what our next move should be. It was obvious that this tiger was going to prove a difficult one to handle and that probably several days would be needed to get the ground shots we wanted.

For the time being, I decided, a quick retreat was indicated. Later on we would have to find some way of getting this animal back into a cage. Then we must thin out all the heavy jungle, chopping down much of the brush, so that when Mr. Tiger was put back in the enclosure, there would be no place for him to hide where our camera lenses would not reach him.

I was regretful at the difficulties this delay would make in our schedule, but obviously there was no other way. For the moment, our immediate necessity was to get out of the enclosure. Probably the striped foe was far over on the other side somewhere by now, and I hope the camera men had been able to get at least one or two flashes of him.

TIGER CHARGES AGAIN

I nodded to Ali, indicating the line of retreat that I thought would be simplest. In 50 paces we were out of the heavy jungle, and as our fourth flare burned down I motioned to Ali not to light another, as it would be of no particular assistance any longer. In this short grass, the cat could not attack us without my seeing him coming.

I could have a second or two of grace if he decided to came back for more. We were in sight of the barricade now, and began to feel ourselves practically out of danger. I relaxed my grip on the rifle and rested it at ease in the crook of my arm. In order to get to where the ladder had been placed, we still had to pass around one corner of the heavy brush, but that didn't worry us any.

My mind, in fact, was already occupied with the new arrangements which I would have to make in order to keep the expedition here until we could get the postponed pictures.

We arrived at the corner of the heavy brush and were within sight of the bamboo ladder. Then in a flash, without a flicker of warning, the tiger came bursting through a gap in the thicket. He was more like something which had been thrown through the air from a great distance than like an animal belonging on the ground.

Automatically I wheeled around to meet the charge, and automatically I lifted my rifle. There was no time to get it to my shoulder. I shot from the waist. By the time my mind reacted to the fact that the tiger was charging and was almost on top of me, my rifle had sped a 180-grain soft-nosed bullet on its way.

A CLOSE CALL

He was too close for a miss. The bullet tore its way into the upper left side of the tiger's chest, just as he reared up, with forelegs outstretched, claws spread, reaching for me. The force of the blow stopped him instantly, and he dropped with a shattered shoulder, thrashing in the brush practically at my feet. I jumped back a few steps and finished him off with a shot in the head.

My motion picture assistants all came down into the enclosure, now that the tiger was dead. We took a tape measure and measured the distance from the imprint of my foot in the soft ground, which showed where I stood at the time I fired, to the nearest front paw of the tiger where he lay. It was just 24 inches. If that wasn't a close call, I shall never have one.

Natives of Malaya are always overjoyed at the killing of a tiger. These great cats are their natural enemies, and they never fail to evince great delight at the sight of one of them being destroyed. So the boys were all happy over the tiger's death.

FIRST SUCH OCCURRENCE

Consulting my own emotions, I was not sure how I felt. It was the first tiger I had slain in the course of a long career that has involved my bringing back to this country, alive, over 60 tigers—Royal Bengal, Malayan and Manchurian—many of which are now on view in the zoos and circuses. More than once, in the course of trapping a tiger, I have thought it would be necessary to shoot to save myself or one of my boys, but I had always managed to avoid pulling the trigger until now.

Late that afternoon we sent a group of choppers into the enclosure and had the brush thinned out so that the afternoon's performance would not have to be repeated.

A few days later another trap which I had put out yielded a fine specimen and we got all the closeup shots we needed, showing his majesty the tiger walking, breaking into a run, drinking at a pool and surveying the terrain about him, so we were able to tear down our temporary compound a couple of weeks after the shooting episode and move on up into Seremban, where the next few weeks were spent trapping and photographing black panthers.

OBITUARY

James M. Nellis.

James M. Nellis, a city employe and for many years a Pittsburgh newspaperman, died yesterday morning at his home, 91 West Climax street. Mr. Nellis was born in Pittsburgh and received his early education in the Pittsburgh public schools. For a number of years he was sports editor of the old Pittsburgh Gazette Times. Since severing his connection with the Gazette Times he had been employed by the city, part of the time in the Department of Weights and Measures. At the time of his death he was attached to the Bureau of Sanitation. Mr. Nellis was well known as a member of the old National Guard of Pennsylvania and at one time was a lieutenant of Company B in that organization. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Franke Nellis, and a son, Robert J. Nellis.

Mrs. Catherine Kaiser.

Mrs. Catherine Kaiser, 82, widow of Joseph Kaiser, is dead at her residence, 22 Rostock street, North Side. Funeral services will be held at 8:30 Monday morning, with solemn requiem mass celebrated by her son, the Rev. Father Clarence Kaiser, O. S. B., at St. Boniface Church at 9 o'clock. Born in Germany, Mrs. Kaiser came to Pittsburgh in 1870 and had lived here since. She was a member of Branch 332, L. C. B. A., and Christian Mothers' Society. She leaves, beside Father Clarence, three sons, Fred, Frank and Henry, and three daughters, Catherine, Mrs. Carl F. Nueber and Mrs. George J. Woerther.

Mrs. Truxall Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Catherine Raymond Truxall, 62, who died Thursday at her home, 1229 Lancaster avenue, Regent Square, will be held there Monday afternoon. Mrs. Truxall, widow of Ephraim Truxall, was born in Pittsburgh and resided here all her life. She was a member of the Fort Pitt Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and of the Schenley Heights Methodist Episcopal Church. She leaves a son, Attorney John D. S. Truxall; two brothers, John T. and Edward K. Raymond, and two sisters, Mrs. N. C. Jobes and Mrs. W. G. Miller.

Mrs. Caroline Rogers.

Funeral services for Mrs. Caroline Rogers, 78, who died late yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Anna R. Miller Early, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from her home, 6829 McPherson boulevard. Burial will be in Allegheny Cemetery. Mrs. Rogers is survived by a son, Clarence E. Rogers; three daughters, Mrs. Edith R. Granger, Washington; Mrs. Caroline E. West, Jeannette, and Mrs. Early; a brother, Daniel Ireland, of Pittsburgh, and nine grandchildren.

Reckens Funeral.

Funeral services for Jane D. Reckens, Sr., former resident of Pittsburgh, who died in his home, Lakewood, O., yesterday, will be held in St. Luke's Church, Lakewood, Monday. He was the son of the late James J. and Olivia Douglas Reckens. He leaves his widow, Mary Robinson; two sons, Paul, Jr., and Donald, and four sisters, Mrs. Stella R. Spigelmire, Mrs. John J. Breshlin, Mrs. Wyman Schroder and Anne S. Reckens.

'Goodwill' to Give Children Parties

Entertainment of more than 1,200 children during the holiday period is planned by the Goodwill Industries, Liberty avenue. The entertainment includes Christmas parties for which a tree has been erected in the Goodwill chapel.

Stressing the shortage of toys, the Goodwill Industries are making an appeal to the public for playthings of all kinds for needy children.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Should a Man Pal Around With His Wife?

Are you a huddling husband?

Do you think the little woman should be tickled pink at the "treat" of having you sit at home seven nights a week—while she longs to have you step her out for an occasional evening of fun?

If so, read S. C.'s letter and think it over. Maybe you won't be so satisfied with yourself, brother, when you're through.

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I have a problem that I just can't seem to do anything with. Will you please try to help me?

It's my husband. Don't you think that the majority of men sort of take their wives "as a matter of course" when it comes to having any fun? I know my husband does.

We have been married 10 years. I am still young, having been married at 16. We have three lovely children, a beautiful home, a nice car and a comfortable income. And my husband seems to think that should satisfy me, without any effort on his part to be a pal.

I know I love him, but he is driving me from him. I feel it, and I know that some day he may find himself "out in the cold" so far as I am concerned.

You see, I don't know what it is to have an escort any place. I am forced to turn down many invitations to nice affairs that I would love to attend, because I am tired of being a Lone Wolf. If a girl friend doesn't go with me to shows or entertainments, I must go alone.

HUSBAND SATISFIED

Most of my friends are married and their husbands go with them, sometimes at least. Then, there I am—a problem. They feel obligated, I know, to see me home, while my own perfectly good and healthy husband is home asleep, or out attending to his own affairs.

I became desperate about six months ago and went out with another man, but he persisted in "getting out of line," so I stopped. But I am afraid I am slipping. I feel so unhappy!

What is the matter with men, anyway? I married my husband because I loved him, but he acts as if he thought that just being a meal ticket were enough, and I should be satisfied. Yet I know he would leave me if he ever thought I was untrue to him.

I don't want to lose him, but I do want to wake him up. I am human. I like to be escorted places like other women. I would like to have him act as if I were a pal. I thought I was finding a pal when I married him.

IS DESPERATE

My mother says it is hopeless—that if he hasn't started to take me around in 10 years he never will. Talking to him doesn't seem to do any good. He hasn't the excuse that I'm not agreeable, for everyone seems to like me.

I can't make him out. He'll say he'll go, then when the time comes—blooey! He has "changed his mind."

What on earth ails him? Can a man love a woman and yet see her unhappy for lack of something he can easily do—and won't? Maybe some of the men can explain this. I'm sure I can't. I have gotten so desperate that I've even thought of leaving him. I know I can't keep on loving him, unless he wakes up. S. C.

All right, boys!

Come on and speak your piece! Explain to the lady, if you can!

Do you think the Missis should be satisfied to have her bills paid and a roof kept over her head—

Or has she a right to expect you to be a pal as well as a Pocket Book?

If you refuse to be a pal, have you a kick coming if she runs out on you?

'DARLING!' DARLING MEANS LIFE -:- -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

We hear "darling" here and "darling" there for a great part of our life. For which pleasant recurring sounds we are thankful! We had been called "darling," of all the world of men. And we called it back again. Meaning all tenderness as it had been meant for us.

What music in a word! How round and rich and meaningful! How lavish and complete! It is said in deep piteous love. It is said gaily upon escape from danger, and fear. It is said in appeal. It is whispered against the rose and milk cheek of a child, and against the withered apple cheek of the grandparent. It means "I love you." It means "I believe in you." It means "never mind, dear." It means "We can unlock the treasure-house of the world together." It means, "You are perfect, and if you're NOT I love you just the same."

So-o-o-ooo! as the king of funnies, Ed Wynn says, Cupid and I thought after all these years of hearing it and saying it, we would look it up to see if the feeling we had when we said it was the right one. Maybe the word-meaning might not be so warm and glorified as we thought. Might not melt butter as in a hot pan, turn glass into diamonds, dissolve a hard heart, etc. We looked it up in the dictionary and we were right! It's a grand fine word. The big green book says, "Darling, derling, derlynge, derrynge, durling. One who is dearly beloved, a favorite, a pet. Deliver my soul from the sword, and my darling from the power of the dog, from the Psalms." And the big green book that seems to know so much says, "The parallelism of the Hebrew poetry shows that darling here means "life." "

So there you are! Darling, My life. Which is to say my ALL. —NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Man's Prerogative

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Your column is no end of interest to me and I have the utmost confidence in your decisions. So I am coming to you with my problem.

I am planning to attend the "home-coming dance" this year, and I am rather perplexed about the arrangements. Of course I understand that the girl buys the bid, but what about transportation, if the gentleman hasn't a car, and also what to do about the "something to eat" after the dance? Who buys it, if there is any? I am very much concerned about this matter of a "bite" afterward. D.

The girl doesn't really need to concern herself, in this case, except planning to get and pay for the tickets. There is no very easy way for her to pay for the transportation, and her escort probably would be most embarrassed if she attempted to do this.

The girl, of course, wouldn't suggest "a bite" afterward; so, if it is suggested, it would be by the man, and would be considered by him his part of the entertainment.

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine was married by a Justice of the Peace. She is now to be married in church.

1.—She is planning to wear a white fur-trimmed gown, with brown hat and shoes to match the fur. The maid of honor will wear an outfit in one of the new fall shades. Are these correct?

2.—Should the bride carry a bridal bouquet or just a corsage? C.

1—The bride's costume as she has planned it, seems to me to be most charming and thoroughly appropriate. And the bridesmaid's plan for her costume too is appropriate.

2—With the costume she is planning to wear, she needn't wear or carry flowers, or, if she wishes, she might wear a corsage. The corsage would be more appropriate than the bridal bouquet.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Father Enlists Aid of Secret Service

For the next five minutes we had a glimpse of my father's methods of eliciting information. As he questioned the grocer's boy concerning the man who had asked for a ride, and then undoubtedly had slipped the ransom note into the basket of vegetables, I felt as if I were seeing a glove turned inside out, finger by finger.

When he had finished his questions we all had a complete mental picture of the "limping, coughing man" who had accosted Bud Emery.

"Thank you, Bud," he said, then he turned briskly to the grocer.

"If any stranger, no matter how unprepossessing, applies to you for work for the next few days, will you hire him, and then let us know at once?" he asked. "Of course, we will take care of all expense. I do not think they will try your establishment again, but I do not wish to overlook any possible chances."

"I'll do anything you say," the grocer replied, "and if anybody does come snooping around, no hawk will have anything on us in watching him, and I'll have Eunice telephone you on the sly right off."

"Thank you," my father said, and he put something into the simple words that made the man and boy go out with gratified faces.

PICTURES FINISHED

"I don't recognize the description," my father said, when the door had closed behind the two, "but the bureau may. Have you finished, dearest?" for I had been busily writing down the boy's halting description.

"Just." I held out the sheet to him, and he strode toward the door.

"I'll just take this out to Adams," he said. "He'll take the car over to the next village, to a booth phone, and telephone it in code to the bureau. We'll have a report soon, if they recognize the man."

He went out, returning in a few minutes to find Dr. Barnes proudly exhibiting the photographs that he had taken of the letter that had come ostentibly from Marion, but which I was sure was a forgery. There was reason for his pride. The photographs were so clear that it seemed as if the note itself were before us.

"When can I take this to Lillian?" I asked.

"In a very short while," my father answered. "But, have you thought, the Brixtons are also entitled to a copy. We cannot keep them in ignorance of anything like this, or of the main plan for rescuing the girls. We must not let Brixton suspect that he is or has been under suspicion."

"I have several copies of the note," Dr. Barnes said. "But doesn't this demand for money, and Brixton? I thought you said—"

STILL SUSPICIOUS

"So I did," my father agreed quickly—a little too quickly I, instead of the box belonging to Marion, rather eliminate Owen who know him so well, mentally commented. "We must take them into our confidence."

I saw Dr. Barnes glance shrewdly at him, and felt that he agreed with me to a certain mental reservation in my father's mind. But he said nothing, and my father looked over at me.

"Ready to go now?" he asked. "May I accompany you?"

His tone and words were as formally courteous as if he were some court gallant addressing a sovereign.

"I couldn't go without you," I said simply, and in another few minutes we were on our way to the hotel, leaving Dr. and Mrs. Barnes with the difficult task of accounting for the absence of the two missing girls to nearly 200 keen comrades of Marion and Carolyn.

"Why haven't you eliminated Brixton and Owen from your list of possible suspects in this matter?"

We were walking to the hotel, and he shot a quizzical glance at me.

"So you've seen that," he said. "I must remember to mask my face better. I haven't time to tell you why, now, but I'll own that I am especially anxious to see Brixton's face when he looks at this note."

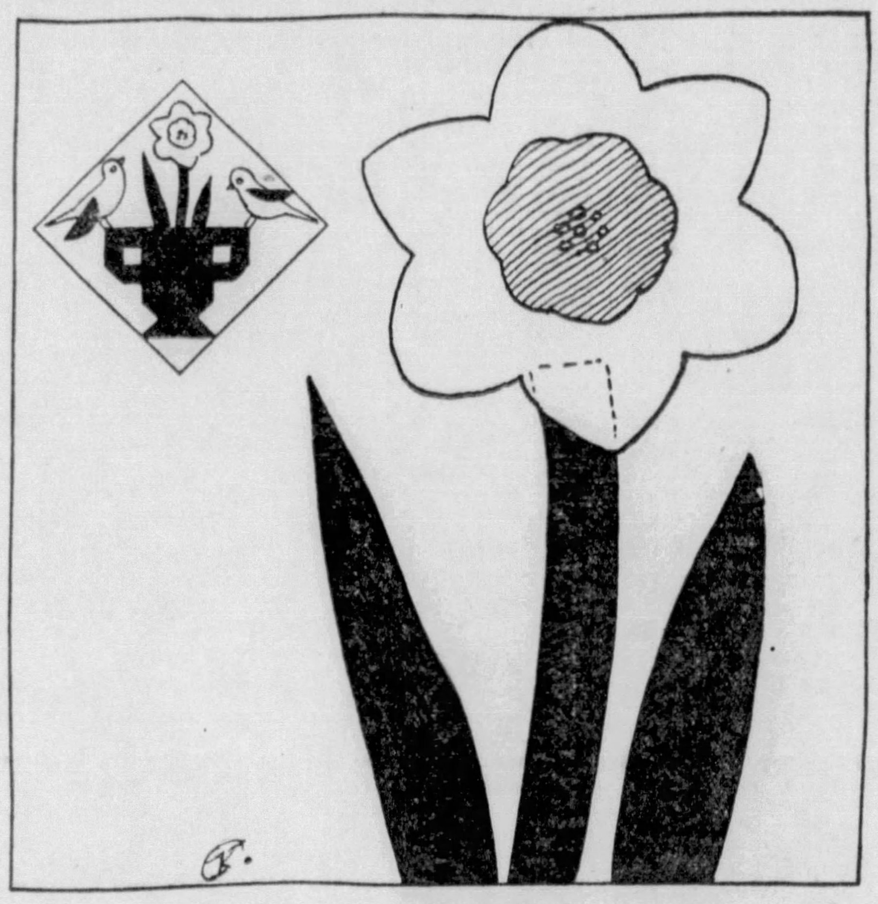
Nancy Page Quilt Club -:- By Florence La Ganke



Garden Bouquet Quilt -- Block 13 -- Daffodil

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Garden Bouquet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelop to Nancy Page in care of this paper.

After the members had finished the tiger lily design they had put the white diamonds in place. This gave them three rows of urns and one row of white triangles with two rows of white diamonds.

These white diamonds, cut 12½ by 12½ inches square were attached in this manner. One of the 12½-inch sides was seamed to lower right of primrose urn block and to another side was seamed to lower left of zinnia. Another diamond block was seamed on two joining sides to lower right and left of zinnia and phlox blocks, respectively.

A third diamond was seamed to lower right and left of phlox and lily respectively. And that left the lower right of lily to which was seamed a 12½-inch side of a triangle of white.

Now comes the fourth row of flowers and urns. The first flower in this row is the daffodil, that spring flower which heartens all of us who are tired of winter.

"My heart with rapture thrills and dances with the daffodils," thus quoted Nancy and thus echoed the club members.

The flower is made from palest yellow with a center of rich orange. The French knots in the center are done in green or in orange. The leaves are long and slim as daffodil leaves should be. They, like all the leaves and flowers, are made from color fast material such as gingham or print. This flower calls for plain colored material. The stem may be made from bias tape, already turned and ready to be appliqued or it may be made from the same green material as used for leaves. The lower part of diamond block is the pieced urn. On the upper triangle are appliqued the birds and the flower. After the members had cut the pattern with its accompanying directions from the paper they traced the flower and leaves lightly on the upper triangle. Then they traced the pattern onto lightweight cardboard. Next they put the original design away for safekeeping in the Nancy Page quilt scrap book. The cardboard pattern was now cut into its pieces and these were laid on the material of which the design would be made. The cutting allowance is always one-quarter inch on all sides unless the flower and leaves are being appliqued by using buttonhole stitch. In that case, no seam allowance is necessary since the buttonhole stitch covers the raw edges.

After the pieces are cut out they are prepared for applique by turning under raw edges, basting and pressing in place. Then the pieces are pinned onto the white triangle and appliqued with fine, slanting, invisible heming stitch. Just so soon as the birds are appliqued the block is ready for placement in the quilt. It is coming on nicely and is it popular—oh, my!

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Ottawa's Bridge

Ottawa, the beautiful capital of Canada, boasts one of the strongest and oldest Bridge clubs on the American continent. The standard of Bridge there is very high and Contract players extremely enthusiastic.

An interesting example of the game, as played at the Ottawa Bridge Club, was sent me a few days ago by Mr. J. Vanderleck. Mr. Vanderleck held the South hand and was able to make his contract through a neat squeeze.

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ Q 10 5 ♡ K 4 3 ◇ K Q 9 ♣ J 7 5 4
♠ J 7 ♡ Q J 8 6 5 ◇ J 10 7 4 ♣ A K	North West East South	♠ 8 3 2 ♡ 9 ◇ A 6 3 2 ♣ 9 8 6 3 2
	♠ A K 9 6 4 ♡ A 10 7 2 ◇ 8 5 ♣ Q 10

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♡	2 ♠ (1)	Pass
3 ♠ (2)	Pass	4 ♠ (3)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—While North would bid notrump, had not West interposed a heart bid, he must now give a Raise, even on his shaded holding and balanced distribution, because otherwise his partner, even with a strong hand, may be unable to continue the bidding, not being assured of the solidity of the trump suit.

2—South proceeds cautiously. Two notrump might be an alternative bid here, but the weak diamond doubleton and the shortness in clubs make it appear inadvisable.

3—North reluctantly raises to game.

The Opening lead was the heart Queen, which was won in the Declarer's hand with the Ace. The spades were then cleared, the third round being won in the closed hand and a diamond led to the King-Queen in Dummy. South, on the bidding, hoped to find the diamond Ace with West and thus have reasonably clear sailing for his game, as, if West held the diamond Ace he could not continue the heart suit, as he would thereby present South with an extra trick. However, East won with the Ace and returned a club. West cashed the Ace-King and then led the Knave of diamonds. This was won in Dummy with the King, and the Knave of clubs cashed. The position then was as follows:

	♠ — ♡ K 4 ◇ 9 ♣ 7
♠ — ♡ J 8 ◇ 10 4 ♣ —	North West East South	♠ — ♡ — ◇ 6 3 ♣ 9 8
	♠ 9 6 ♡ 10 7 ◇ — ♣ —

The 7 of clubs was led and ruffed by the Declarer. West, of course, was forced to retain both hearts, so discarded the diamond 4. Now Mr. Vanderleck led the last trump, and West was squeezed. His choice lay between establishing the diamond 9 or conceding the loss of both heart tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Should Dealer, not vulnerable, pass the following hand or open with a bid of one heart?

♠ J 4 3 2 ♡ A J 7 6 5 4 ◇ A J 6 ♣ —

Answer—The Dealer should bid one heart in view of the very favorable distribution and the fact that the hand contained 2 plus tricks defensively.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Suit your suit with a nice new blouse. With a suit of dull, black velet one woman wears a charming blouse of gold and red metal gauze with a fitted waistline and soft shirrings at the elbow.

Metal rings through the mode as more and more metallic frocks, ensembles and wraps make their appearance as the season waxes. A lovely new wrap is of silver and white lame, with huge sleeves shirred and pleated at the shoulder extending to the bodice. There is a shawl collar of white fox.

Don't change the spots, but do wear leopard-trimmed evening frocks. They are ever so smart. A new model done in dead white satin is interestingly trimmed with leopard. The fur is applied at the neckline, with a cufflike finish at the decolletage. It is narrow in front, widens at the shoulders and at the very low back.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The make-up that looks well with a black frock won't do so well with a white one, it will be too strong. When cool colors like grey or yellow are worn, the rosy blush upon the cheek can be heightened and the lipstick smear a bit heavier. The color of the robe has much to do with the business of slapping on the paint. Eye shadows especially must be considered in connection with the frock.

Crinkles and creases around the eyes are called laughing wrinkles, but no woman laughs because she has them; she's more likely to blubber. Tissues are soft, there's almost no muscle foundation, merely a network of delicate fibers. To combat turkey tracks use a heavy massage cream every night, tapping it in lightly with fingertips or patter. Place first finger on [illegible] close to the nose, sweep it upward to the temple, come back under the eye to starting point. After five minutes of this treatment, iron with an ice cube.

If woman were to lose her interest in beauty, decide to give up the pursuit of pulchritude, settle down comfortably to whatever conditions the coming years might bring, the effect upon industry and commerce would be something terrible. Looms weave fine fabrics for her. Laboratories turn out synthetic loveliness that provides her with the faint rose and honey complexion, and moist, geranium lips. Diamonds come from the earth and pearls from the sea that she may use them for her adornment. The flowers of the field and the woods of the forest supply her with sweet fragrances to dabble on her hair. Let the good work continue!

Household Hints

A little vinegar will make thick inks usable again.

Substitute cooked rice for bread crumbs in making meat loaves or scalloped dishes.

Soap rubbed on the heels will prevent blisters.

Fresh lemon peel rubbed on the fishy forks and knives will remove all odor.

PLEA RENEWED IN SEAL SALE

Whether tuberculosis prevention organizations will be able to meet increasing demands for service next year depends on the support given the Christmas seal sale now, F. D. Hopkins, executive secretary of the National Tuberculosis Association, New York, said on a visit here yesterday.

Hopkins said reports from Pennsylvania show a 4 per cent gain in the disease this year over last.

The total of the league's seal fund is $28,000 to date. A. H. Burchfield, Jr., of the Joseph Horne Company, will speak in behalf of the seal sale at 8:15 tonight from station WWSW.

MOTHER FIGHTS FOR GIRL, 5

Judge William H. McNaugher has issued a writ of habeas corpus to Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Williams, 425 Boulevard of the Allies, directed against Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Matthews, 1406 Chelton avenue, to obtain the custody of her daughter, Shirley Ann Williams, 5.

Mrs. Williams said the child was placed in the care of the Matthews couple when she was 2 and was legally adopted by them. She said that on account of differences she left the Matthews home last month and is now in position to care for the child. Judge McNaugher set December 23 for a hearing.

Speakers Selected For 'Y' Luncheons

The Rev. R. G. Pierson, pastor of the Shady Avenue Baptist Church, will speak on "The World's Debt to Christ," at the Thursday luncheon forum at the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., December 22, and the Rev. Louis H. Evans, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, will discuss "Christ, the Hope of the World," at the December 29 meeting.

Families to Dine At East Liberty 'Y'

Members of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A. and their families will join in a family dinner, the feature of the New Years program, January 2. Special reception of the Pitt-Stanford football game, music, entertainment and physical department features will complete the program.

MARY FAITH

-:- Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up -:-

By BEATRICE BURTON

Mary Faith Begins to Make Daily Visits to Home Of Her Employer

CHAPTER IX.

Before Mary Faith could say a word he went on:

"A man in an office trains himself not to take a personal or sentimental interest in the young women he sees there all day long. It's one of the rules of good business that he should see them simply as fellow workers—I think that's why I've accustomed myself to think of you simply as a valuable assistant of mine and not as the very attractive girl that you are."

Mary Faith looked at him gravely. That had not been Kim's way of looking at the girl who worked in his office.

For an instant Kim's face was in her mind, flushed and sullen as she had seen it that last morning in Haltnorth Park. For an instant she could hear his voice telling her once more that he had fallen in love with the Janet-girl in his office.

"And now let's see about these letters . . . ." Mark Nesbit's voice brought her back to the present.

It was 3 o'clock when she finished her work.

"Loftus will come for you tomorrow morning along about 11," Mark Nesbit told her when she was leaving. "You're the real victim of this accident of mine, Mary Faith. Coming out here every day for the next couple of weeks isn't going to be very pleasant for you."

"Oh, I really enjoyed coming out here today. It was like playing hooky from school." Mary Faith beamed at him from the threshold.

GIFT OF FLOWERS

From the landing, on her way downstairs, she could look into an astonishingly large room at the end of the hall: A room of great carved tables and wide sofas, gilt picture frames that shone in the fire glow, twin crystal chandeliers that looked like two frozen fountains, books and magazines everywhere. A room that had a comfortable "lived in" look in spite of its size and splendor.

Mary Faith gazed at it as she might have gazed at one of the model rooms on the top floor of Hanscombe's furniture store downtown.

Not for one fleeting second did she picture herself in it.

When she got back into the plum-colored car there was a bunch of roses lying on the seat. They were wrapped in heavy brown paper.

"Miz Nesbit, she lef' dem dere for you," Loftus told her. "She had to go to Circle meetin,' but she says I was to tell you she got all her rose-bushes wrop in paper like you said. Dat glass room where she grow her flowers is turrible cold when de wind's in de north."

He started the car. "Well, here we takes our life in our hands again, Miss Fenton. We don' have ice and snow over all de roads down in Georgia where Miz Nesbit's old home is, no ma'am!" he said. "We got it nice and warm down dere." His voice had the slow deep roll of his own Suwannee River.

JEAN INQUISITIVE

Mary Faith was carrying the roses in her arms when she walked into the office at half past 4. Jean Bartlett took a long look at them, got up from her desk and followed her into her little office.

"Well, I certainly hope you had a pleasant afternoon at the meeting of the Garden Club, Miss Fenton," she said in a mock society voice. "Or did you play bridge and were these the booby prize?"

"Mr. Nesbit's mother gave them to me," Mary Faith explained, laughing. "Aren't they lovely? She grows them herself. I'm going to give half of them to you."

"Did you meet his sisters, too, Mary Faith?" Jean asked. "What's their house like? What did you have for lunch? Are you going out again tomorrow?" Her questions rattled around Mary's head like bullets.

Then she counted the roses that lay on the desk.

"Two dozen of them! Does the woman keep a greenhouse? . . . You must have a terrible drag with her already, Mary Faith, to have her hang a bouquet like that on you!" she remarked in her sharp way.

"No, I haven't any 'drag' with her at all, Jean. She's just plain nice. She and Mr. Nesbit treated me as if I were some honored guest in their house instead of just a secretary out there to do her work. We all had lunch together in front of an open fire, and really I had a lovely time."

IS COMPLIMENTED

"Well, why shouldn't they be nice to you?" Jean wanted to know. "You're just as good as they are any day in the week. You may not have as much money as they have, but you certainly have everything else, Mary Faith. You're smart and you have absolutely swell manners—and I'll bet they don't know anybody who's any better-looking than you are. . . Are you going out there again tomorrow?"

"I'm going out every day for a while, until Mr. Nesbit's able to come down here, I suppose."

Jean heaved a long, loud sigh. "If some kind Providence would give me a break like that—just once!"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean I'd make good use of it! If I were going out to Mark Nesbit's house for lunch every day the way you are, believe you me he'd be falling for me after a few days or I'd miss my guess . . . Men are always sentimental and soft-hearted when they're laid up. Just think of the ones who marry their trained nurses—"

"Jean, please don't say things like that!" Mary Faith interrupted her. "If they got back to Mr. Nesbit, you and I'd both lose our jobs in all probability. And what you say is absurd anyway. I'm about as interesting to Mr. Nesbit as an adding machine."

"He drove you home one night not so long ago. Dan Bassett saw you start out together," said Jean, who had a nose for news and missed nothing that went on in the building. "And he calls you by your first name lately, I notice. I'd say he had more than an adding machine interest in you, if you asked me!"

THINKS OF KIM

"But I'm not asking you. I don't have to ask anyone how Mr. Nesbit feels about me, I know," Mary Faith said as sharply as she ever said anything. "Just this afternoon he told me no sensible man ever lets himself fall in love with any of the girls in his office."

"Applesauce," Jean said under her breath.

"I like Mr. Nesbit. I can't imagine working for a nicer person," Mary Faith went on. "But I never could fall in love with him, Jean. Even if he fell in love with me, by some wild chance, I never could."

"Why not, for Pete's sake?"

"Well, I hardly know how to tell you—but I know I couldn't," Mary Faith tried to explain her singleness of heart. "I'd always be thinking about—Kim."

Jean stared at her for a minute. Then she slowly shook her glossy, marceled head. "Oh, you poor sap, Mary Faith Fenton!" she said.

Every day that week the plum-colored car called at the building just after 11 o'clock and carried Mary Faith out to the Nesbits' house.

Day by day her friendship with Mark Nesbit went ahead by swift, sure steps. Almost always the two of them had lunch alone in the intimacy of the quiet, firelit study, for Mrs. Nesbit had begun her Christmas shopping and was spending most of her time in town.

FRIENDSHIP INCREASES

By the end of the first week they had discovered that both of them preferred Charlie Chaplin to all other actors of the screen and that Booth Tarkington was their favorite American author.

Mark Nesbit had shown Mary Faith his silver golf cups and a leather album filled with newspaper photographs of himself taken long ago during his college football days. He had told her all about his mother's winter home near Thomasville, Georgia, and about a French girl with whom he had been in love during the war.

And Mary Faith had told him so much about Mrs. Puckett's that he said he would know the Brock sisters if he met them on the street.

On Saturday afternoon, when she was getting ready to leave, she noticed a book by Sheila Kaye-Smith in the shelves near the fireplace.

"I like this woman's novels," she said, walking across the carpet to look at it. "This is a new one of hers, isn't it?"

"Take it with you," he said, reaching up and taking the book from the self above him. "And help yourself to any other books in this room that you want... Wait, I'll pick out some good ones for you!"

He was in his new wheel chair and he went slowly around the room in it, taking down books here and there from the crowded shelves. She went home that afternoon with an armful of them and read herself to sleep that night and Sunday night.

On Friday of the second week when Mary Faith walked into Mark Nesbit's study she found a dark, slender young woman in black cloth and silver fox furs sitting with him before the grate.

"My sister, Mrs. Grant, Miss Fenton," he said, introducing her.

Mrs. Grant shook hands like a boy, pumping Mary Faith's arm up and down with vigor. She wore no makeup, and there was something fresh and adolescent-looking about her in spite of her expensive and fashionable clothes. Mary Faith remembered that her brother had given her a silver-trimmed western saddle for her birthday the year before. She looked like the kind of person who would use a cowboy's saddle.

"Mark's just been telling me about you, Miss Fenton," she said in a sweet, husky voice. "He says you're a remarkable person—that you know as much about the Nesbit Company as he does and that your business letters are literary gems."

"That's not true, Mr. Nesbit," Mary Faith, embarrassed, turned to look at him. He was smiling up at her from his chair, his eyes crinkling at the corners. When he smiled he smiled with his whole face.

"Sure it's true," he said. "I wouldn't know how on earth to get along without you. If you knew how important you are to me you'd strike me for twice the salary you're getting." He laughed. Here, against the background of his own home, he was utterly unlike his dignified office self.

Synopsis

Mary Faith is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy, young businessman. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Kim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim startles Mary Faith by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married. Slowly Mary Faith learns to live her life without Kim. When Mark Nesbit injures his ankle, Mary Faith is driven to his country home to take dictation. She meets his mother and enjoys the charming home life of the Nesbits.

Now Go On

Almost always the two had lunch together.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Pupils of the Gertrude Bales School of Dancing, who made such a hit last week with the members of the Schenley Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, entertained members of the Plaza Theater this afternoon.

Every seat in the theater was filled long before the time the curtain was scheduled to go up and when Manager John Morin, Jr., stepped out on the stage to make the first announcement, members were standing in the side aisles and in the back of the theater.

Mitzi Bales opened the show with a classical dance; Betty Wagner and Charles Nussbaumer gave their interpretation of a modern hornpipe. Marion Jones showed the youngsters just what a stomp is and little Georgie Franks sang "I'm Yours for Tonight." Carl Steinmetz and his English clog brought shouts of joy from the youngsters, and Eva Marie Auer's toe acrobatic antics stopped the show. Bill Bales, brother of Gertrude, was acting as master of ceremonies and the show couldn't go on until little Eva Marie had given the members an encore.

NOVELTY NUMBER

Betty Keenan opened the last part of the show with a novelty number, followed by Betty Wagner, daughter of the famous former Pirate shortstop, doing a toe strut. Dolores Richardson had to sing "Ooh! That Kiss" three times before the children would let her leave the stage, and Charles Nussbaumer tap danced his way right into the hearts of everyone present.

Mitzi Bales then sang "When Nobody Else Is Around" and sang it well. Betty Hoeferman, with her acrobatic dance, proved one of the highlights of the afternoon's entertainment. Marion Jones and Carl Steinmetz next offered their idea as to the correct way, if there is a correct way, to flirt, with their sketch entitled "Flirtations." Betty Jean Hilpert sang and danced, and Catherine Bell danced in and out of a hoop. Dolores Richardson and George Franks offered a dance called the "Wooden Soldier and China Doll." Both of these youngsters wore beautiful costumes for this number which added much to the dance.

TOE DANCER

Lynn Dornshield waltzed all around the stage on her toes and many of the members were overheard saying, "How does she do it?"

The show which had held the members on the edge of their seats for almost an hour, was brought to a close by Mitzi Bales and Charles Nussbaumer, who offered a fast military tap routine.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, you are missing loads of fun each week at the regular weekly meetings. All you have to do to join and receive a membership card and button is to send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh Pa., and the card and button will be mailed to you.

Can't Teach an Old Dog New Bridge

Exasperated citizens are so bedduffled by the new contract bridge rules that they can't tell a bid from information.

They said they got along very comfortably under the old card amendments averaging one quarrel a hand and another on the way home.

We're sorry, citizens, but we had nothing to do with it. The Prophet Ely is the mugg who started all the switch throwing and sidetracking.

We played a fairly comatose game of contract ourselves under the old rules. We had reached that advance stage where we could diagnose a kick under the table as either a warning or a flirtation.

But we can't make treys or deuces out of the new war treaties. We still play bridge, but under protest. When it arrives at bidding time in Normandy we don't know whether we are on foot or in a rumble seat.

We have figured out a safe method of hiding our ignorance under a garnishing of intellectual parsley. All we do is double.

If our opponent bids, we double. If he passes, we double. If our partner bids, we double. We slap the duplex penalty on everybody. If a kibitzer butts in we triple.

The result is that nobody wants to play with us. That's what we want in the first place. We would much rather borrow a good book.

We are trying to break the card habit. We have it so bad that we shuffle our three chunks of breakfast toast and distribute them to strangers in the dining car.

We consider contract bridge a perfect way of pulverizing old friendships. It will break up homes. After a wife looks at a handful of picture cards nothing else is beautiful to her. How do you expect her to gaze at aces all evening and then be forced to look at her red-nosed husband all the way home.

But bridge is gaining in our neighborhood. It is very important. Why even the marriage ceremony asks the bride if she takes her husband for her lawful wedded partner.

But they still play it. We're against it. So they'll keep on playing it.

The holiday spirit is already beginning to assert itself, according to the following news item:

LONG BEACH, Cal.—In a so-called anti-Communist raid, a mob of nearly 50 men who represented themselves as members of the Ku Klux Klan swarmed into a local home using clubs and sections of rubber hose to beat the nine persons present. Many of the raiders wore women's hats.

If we watch closely we may discover news items like this:

CHICAGO—Machine gunners staged a gangland battle in the streets of Cicero last night. Before speeding away in armored sedans, the hoodlums threw serpentines at police and soaped store windows.

WASHINGTON — Capital police who disperse groups of unemployed with tear gas and blackjacks will hereafter wear paper hats and toss confetti.

A Good Program

Republican Legislative Plans Recognize the Need of Economy—Comment on Local News.

The Republican state organization's legislative program, as announced by State Chairman Edward Martin, will meet with popular approval. The need of economy is recognized, and a demand made for reduction of taxes on real estate, reduction of state and local officials' salaries, elimination of all but necessary public construction, and a short session of the Legislature.

The Republican state organization declares it is opposed to any new state taxation unless to give unemployment relief. That "unless" paves the way for nullification of that particular pledge. The County Commissioners, too, may offer unemployment relief as an excuse for refusing to reduce taxes. The expenditure of public money for unemployment relief is desirable, but the money should be obtained by doing away with luxury services, not through new taxes.

Chairman Martin's statement calls for fair treat- ment of consumers, investors and employes by the public utilities. It would have been more impressive if he had been specific and had indicated just what sort of legislation is thought to be necessary to assure fair treatment. The Republican organization's relations with the utilities have not been such as to inspire the public with confidence that it will correct the existing evils.

Attorneys for the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee are reported to have recommended legislation to give the Public Service Commission control over holding companies, to give rebates to consumers where rates have been found excessive, and to prohibit increases in rates until approval has been given by the commission. It would be interesting to know what Chairman Martin's organization thinks of these proposals.

As telegraphed by the Associated Press from Harrisburg, the Republican statement contains no mention of the Blue Law or the Snyder-Armstrong prohibition enforcement act. It may be that the organization will adopt a neutral attitude in the fight for the repeal of these laws. It is inconceivable that it should fly in the face of public sentiment and advocate their retention in the statute books.

School teachers are reported organizing through- out the state to oppose amendment of the Edmonds act, which fixes their salaries. They should compromise on a 10 per cent reduction for two years, as suggested by Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction. Pittsburgh's teachers have shown a fine spirit of service by voluntarily accepting a 10 per cent cut.

It is to be hoped that before the Legislature meets Gov. Gifford Pinchot will clearly tell what his attitude will be on the various measures that are to be discussed. The public would particularly like to know what course he will follow if the Blue Law is repealed. Will a mere majority suffice, or will it be necessary to command a two-thirds majority to eliminate this mischief-making law?

Having reduced the tax rate, and having failed to receive much help from Mayor Charles H. Kline and the department heads, Council will be confronted next week with the disagreeable task of cutting $4,000,000 more from the budget. In reducing salaries the sensible plan will be, not to consider the various bureaus separately but to make a general cut applicable to all.

If tax collections fail to come up to Council's ap- parent expectations, the proposed cut in the budget will not be sufficient, and there will be "payless pay-days" for city employes the latter part of next year. The School Board gave the expectation of tax delinquencies as the reason for failing to reduce the school tax rate notwithstanding the 10 per cent cut in teachers' salaries.

As the year draws to a close Pittsburgh's chances of winning the National Traffic Safety Contest as "the safest city in 1932" are not so bright as they were several months ago—which is all the more reason, of course, for trying harder to avoid accidents during the remaining two weeks. Leading November offenses against the traffic regulations were passing street cars on the left and not obeying signal lights.

There is a tip for motorists in a notice sent to the 500 Traffic Observers of Pittsburgh, a volunteer group of citizens who report unwise driving practices. They have been told to be on the lookout for speeding and weaving drivers. These drivers, dangerous at all times, are particularly dangerous in the winter months, because wet and icy streets increase the stopping distance of a car.

While complete and official records are not yet available, the indications are that fewer deer were shot in Pennsylvania during the 15-day open season which ended Thursday than in other seasons recently. So last year's slaughter of more than 90,000 deer thinned out the herds appreciably. Happily, there was a large decrease, also, in the number of hunters accidentally shot.

The Pittsburgh Motor Club, which has been in- quiring about the progress of the work on the dam that is to result in the formation of Pymatuning Lake in Crawford County, reports it will be finished next spring, but that two years will be required for the lake to fill with water and purify. Sportsmen are to have one of the most attractive recreation places in the East when the project is completed.

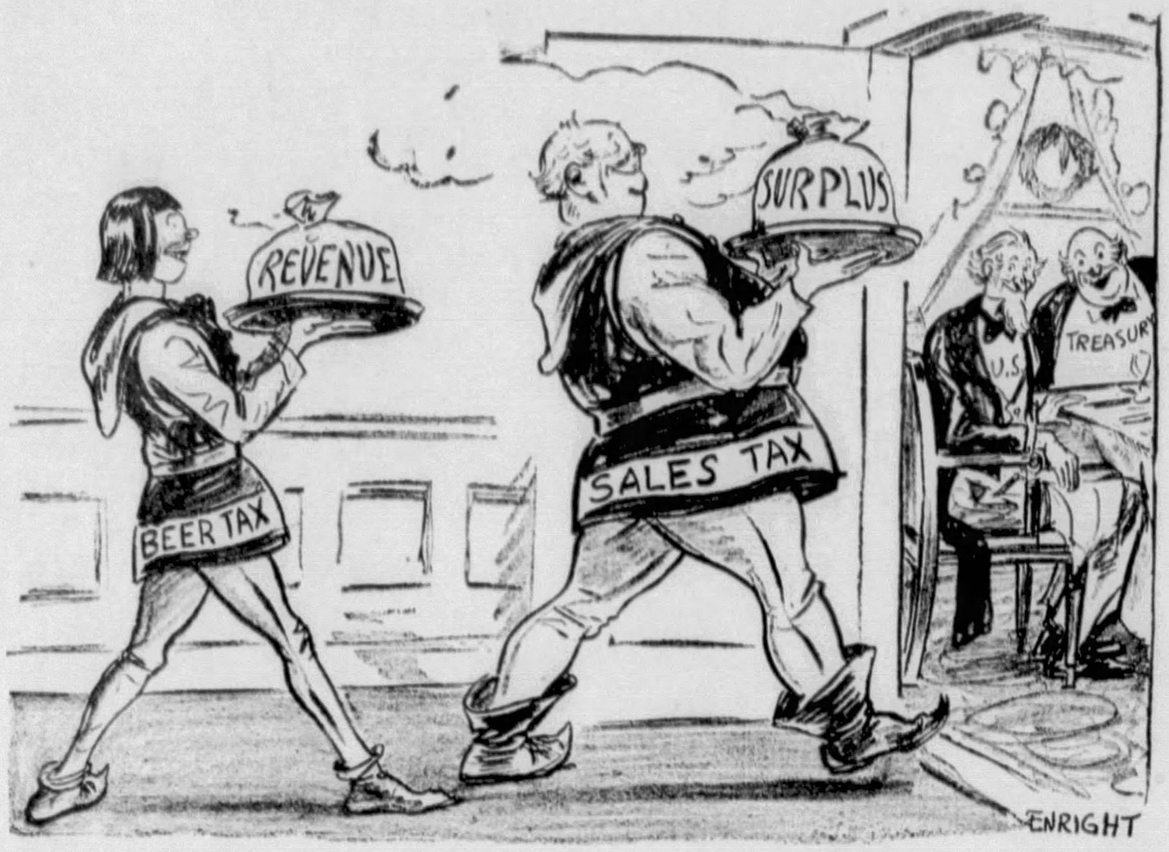
Council has acted wisely in appropriating money for the support of the Helping Hand next year. The association served 1,675,359 meals and furnished lodging to 621,651 homeless men during the past 12 months. It deprives beggars of excuse for soliciting alms on the streets, and no doubt has helped to prevent desperate men from becoming criminals.

"The Ancient History of Beer" is the subject of an entertaining article in the American Weekly, to be distributed tomorrow as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It tells of the obstacles overcome by the thirsty of ancient, medieval and modern times in their efforts to obtain this universal beverage. The illustrations are numerous and quaint.

A beautiful landscape, suitable for framing, ap- pears on the first page of the Gravure Section of tomorrow's issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It shows members of the Sewickley Hunt Club off to the hunt—a cavalcade of smartly dressed horsemen and horsewomen riding with a pack of foxhounds through a nearby valley.

And Plum Pudding!

(Copyright, 1932.)



What this country needs today is a good tax system.

Excessive income taxes have depressed business, and helped to prolong unemployment.

Foolish nuisance taxes have failed by hundreds of millions to prevent a Federal deficit.

The short session of Congress can end these evils, without any further needless delay.

A manufacturer's sales tax will take the burden off business.

A beer tax will transfer huge sums of money from the bootleggers to Uncle Sam's Treasury.

Both taxes will provide what Uncle Sam must have, abundant revenue.

Illumination in the Herriot Speech

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The speech of Premier Herriot in the French Chamber is illuminative of the viewpoint of his nation in the debt controversy, and is phrased in language of such moderation as to deserve this country's notice.

He makes some points against our policy as managed by the President and the international bankers not easy to meet. But at no time did he enter into a plea of France's incapacity to pay. He traces the whole mess to Mr. Hoover's moratorium, which he says clearly recognized and proclaimed a relation between debts and reparations. We said so in this column at the time.

There is one curious revelation in the Herriot speech—that Europe is firmly convinced that while administrations may come and administrations may go, the real governing force in America is the American bankers. It is surely curious to read in a formal and important official speech of the head of a nation the injection of the names of Mr. Morgan and other bankers, as though their views and their actions have a binding force on the American people. The references to the Dawes plan and the Young plan evidently are made upon the theory that these were American governmental plans. Neither Dawes nor Young represented the American government; they represented the financial group in America. This, evidently, is not the interpretation of Europe.

* * *

We Borrowed The Money

No American can, or will fail to appreciate Herriot's glowing reminder to his countrymen of the almost superhuman services we rendered them in the darkest hour in their history. We are glad that he referred so feelingly to "those 75,000 graves in Belleau Wood and St. Mihiel." There have been times, almost from the moment of the armistice, when they seemed almost forgotten.

More interesting is Herriot's reminder that the money loaned to the debtor nations was not taken from the air, nor withdrawn from an overflowing surplus in the Treasury, but was secured by the government of the United States going into debt to that amount. It is one thing for a man with a good surplus in the bank to extract a part to loan to a friend; it is quite another thing, and a more dangerous thing, for a man wishing to help a friend to go out and borrow the money to loan him. We did the latter.

Thus Herriot properly reminds his people that the 61,000,000 Americans who loaned their money to their government that it, in turn, might loan it to the debtor nations, cannot wholly be overlooked.

* * *

A Curious Misconception

But Herriot has a curious slant on our condition, and its cause. Thus he admits our serious condition and goes on:

"They (Americans) are suffering deception. They thought indefinite production, machinery and high wages would perpetuate prosperity. Abruptly this policy proved bankrupt. And in the deception which resulted they have, as everywhere, looked for those responsible. At present they think it is France."

Now this is a curious misconception. There is much of truth in what the Premier says about the contributing causes of our present ruin; but there is very much more that we need not go into here.

But how does he get the notion that we are holding France responsible for our present economic plight? We have heard no such charge made here. We would think it stupid if we heard it.

It is true that the French tariff has hurt us; but we have understood perfectly that France was only retaliating on our own tariff act, deliberately designed to shut France from our markets. And for that we have never blamed her.

* * *

A Voice Crying in The Wilderness

But Herriot's admission that we, too, are in a desperate situation, after the Marquis of Reading had made the same admission last week, marks a new departure from the policy of cancellationists for a full year. For many months we kept hammering with the question in these columns: "How have we the capacity to pay the debts of all the debtor nations?" In New York it was a voice crying in the wilderness. For many months in these columns we kept calling attention to the fact that there can be no cancellation—and only a transfer; and that to the extent that the debtor nations are let off, we take on the burden. And again we were as lonesome as a stranded sailor on a deserted island. The answer generally was that we simply "did not understand."

Now we have an abundance of company. The press generally has just commenced to make the admission; and now one of the debtor nations—two, in fact—have conceded the point.

May we add that it is a very vital point?

* * *

Harping On The Refrain

Even so, M. Herriot does not make much of it. The argument has shifted with the general admission that the debt cannot be cancelled—that some one must pay—that if the debtors do not pay we of America shall pay. With the serious problem of the deficit, with the necessity before us of further increasing taxes that are appalling now, we are assured that while it will ruin all the debtor nations to pay, it is going to make the whole world prosperous if we pay. Before we can pass on that we must have a specific plan before us and none yet has been offered.

A vast number of the Liberty and Victory bonds are owned today by Englishmen and Frenchmen; and they want no moratorium on these; no reduction here; they insist upon the letter of the bond. They want no liquidation of the war to go that far. Neither do the bondholders in America.

Even so there is reason for the feeling now that America is in for a tremendous loss or a great burden, at the very hour when we are overburdened as never before in history. This conviction is strengthened by the fact that a very active, vociferous minority here complacently, almost triumphantly, is constantly harping on the refrain—"Of course we shall not collect the debts." This, more than anything else, has strengthened the determination of the debtor nations to transfer the debts to us if they can.

* * *

Ignore Unfortunate Exhibitions

However, the Herriot speech was happily free of offensive phrases calculated to incite retaliation in Congress here. He cannot be held responsible for the interruptions among deputies evidently boiling with hostility to the United States; nor for the demonstrations in the streets; nor for that amazing incident when some French veterans to whose side moved the boys of Belleau Wood and St. Mihiel just in time left a note at the American embassy demanding that the country of these boys shall pay the debt of France. We can well afford to ignore these unfortunate and ungracious exhibitions, and nothing will be gained by bitter denunciations in Congress.

Marry-Go-Round

We Modern Women

There are moments when even the most devoted wife wishes that she had married the other man—so that her husband would regard making love to her as a novelty instead of as a duty.

* * *

Through the rose-colored glasses of love, a bald-head looks only "nice and clean" to a woman—and even a pair of No. 13 walking boots strikes her as gorgeously "big-and-mannish."

Women are growing broader minded and less catty, every day; but you still meet, here and there, that traditional "man-tamer" who can see nothing attractive about any member of her own sex—unless you hand her a looking-glass.

* * *

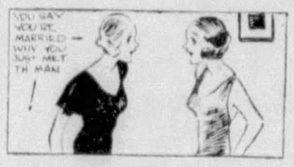
Fate doesn't offer a woman much choice in this life: She must either marry and probably regret it—or stay single, and be sure to regret it.

* * *

A woman can be logical only when she feels no emotion, whatever; yet, in all these thousands of years, man has never learned enough not to "try to reason" with a woman who loved him.

* * *

"Man was made to mourn." But he has fixed the love-game, marriage and politics, so that woman has been forced to take most of the job off of his hands.



If Eve had known as much as the average debutante of 1932, she would probably have made the Serpent feel like an old dodo, or a blushing schoolboy.

* * *

The higher the speed, the quicker the smash-up. The love-affair that starts on high and goes fast, seldom goes very far.

* * *

To some men, the "Stop!" signal in a woman's eyes is an insult or a warning; but to most of them, it is just a dare.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Winter Moonlight

Cool silver on the ice the moonlight lies
And, frosty as the snow, on snow it gleams;
There is no word the language can devise
To tell how cold are those unearthly beams!
Perhaps, in regions far remote from ours,
Where all of tumult, all of yearning cease
And passions ebb as sap from winter bowers,
We shall become akin to this night's peace.

Something serene and passionless, apart
From every eager quest and haste of life
May flood the troubled chambers of the heart;
Like moonlight's tides, may sweep away all strife.
Ah, may they come, the silver tides of rest,
To pour their balm in this unquiet breast!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Purely personal piffle: Clarence Darrow strikes me as bit of a poseur. The weakest of the season's hit plays is "Mademoiselle," and the tangiest breakfast sausage in town is served at the Biltmore. I expect appendicitis after swallowing grape seeds.

Life's greatest triumph is over bitterness. My divining rod of suspicion twitches at familiarity on short acquaintance. Charleston, S. C., is the most romantic city in America. I know a man who is buying Florida real estate in expectation of another boom. Cab Calloway's music, to me, is so much noise.

Most celebrities are dull talkers—save about themselves. I read Mary Austin's "Earth Horizon" without once putting it down. I'm godfather to the Missouri University's student monthly, and once ordered a mail-order Prince Albert suit thinking it a cutaway.

Every time I see Leonore Ulric I itch to hide something in her hair. There's only one person I ever wished to see in prison. Nothing irritates me like the silly mouthings of George Bernard Shaw. Unless it is people who call Chicago "Chi." Carole Lombard has the prettiest movie name.

A Democrat by heredity, I voted a straight Republican city ticket. As a protest against Tammany corruption. The only real good friends I've lost was through loaning money. In 14 visits to California, I've seen only one rainy day. There's tenderness to me in the name Eleanore.

* * *

I was fired from 14 newspapers, and haven't the slightest idea what the Monroe Doctrine is. I'm afraid to take a hot bath with the door locked inside. Herbert Marshall has become my favorite movie actor. I met Jack London at Keene's Thirty-second street chop house.

* * *

For three months, I sat next table from Pavlowa for breakfast in an uptown hotel. Her dog, "Poppy," inspired my devotion to Bostons. One of the greatest party clowns I ever met was an undertaker. I have never caught a fish, and pretzels are the only edibles that do not sate my appetite before meals. I took a chauffeur to Agua Caliente from New York, and he was never worth his salt afterward. Six friends have given up tobacco in the last year. Shakespeare affects me like a cloud of grave wisdom.

* * *

For six years, I've been promising to read a set of Thoreau, but only read one chapter. Odor of burning leaves afflicts me with a nostalgic pang for the small town. I laugh like a fool at Mickey Mouse. The only poem I sold was about gazing at stars through stark leafless trees. And was it ouslay!

* * *

I recently went to sleep at a lecture on "Sex as a Binomial Theorem." My most pronounced fear is of old age poverty. Four men with whom I labored on a Middle West newspaper became earners of $100,000 a year and more. The greatest poetical kick I ever received was from reading William Rose Benet's "Night." When strangers are around I toss a telegram aside carelessly before opening. But I'm scared stiff. Before his water wagon days, I used to think up hard luck stories to make John McCormack, the singer, cry. And after three highballs, was he a Niagara!

* * *

The only note from a strange lady in a restaurant, was at Shepheard's, in Egypt. It read: "Are you, by chance, as grumpy as you look?" I invariably ride past subway stations wondering what other passenger's problems are. I know nothing about the Sacco-Venzetti case, but know all details of the Stanford White killing. I've never permitted a train porter to put my hat in a paper bag, and I am unable to smile at Beatrice Lillie's comedy.

* * *

Three acquaintances, with incomes, are giving up careers to live in Southern France until American taxes are reduced. The best description of Isadora Duncan was Irvin Cobb's "she galumphs about like Grant's Tomb in love." Without eggs, breakfast, to me, is a washout.

* * *

The folk came nearly naming me Bertram. Imagine! Had I a son, I would name him Roger. A baby girl—Fern. My next dog will be plain Fido. The way the Paramount theater sells top price tickets to patrons who often stand through an entire performance is snide. I ate my first bowl of chili in Cheyenne. And did I pop into a sweat!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Someone has asked me to write "the good side of depression" and how we're all going to be bigger, braver, brighter souls because we've had this three years sock-in-the-jaw.

I've no doubt that would be quite a popular article. It would go over big with the Pollyannas who insist on digging up the silver lining to every cloud. But I won't write it. I'd be a hypocrite if I did.

For I'm not a Pollyanna. I don't believe that everything is for the best. I will not admit that there is a silver lining to every cloud. And I think it's downright sacrilege to claim that calamities, such as this depression, are the will of God.

To the contrary, I insist with yells that a lot of things are for the WORST; that most clouds have no silver linings and shouldn't be tolerated even if they did, and that the large majority of our troubles, far from being the will of God are the direct consequences of our own cussedness.

This depression, for example.

For the past year I have been circulating around these United States, discovering things AS ARE, instead of as the sentimentalists would like them to be. I have seen abominable, unbelievable things.

I have seen little children eating dirt to fill their starving bodies.

I have seen whole families of six or seven decent, industrious people, who would have given anything for a job, living on $3.50 per month, as their sole means of support. And for millions, even this pitiful stipend is exhausted now.

I have seen the dead bodies of strong men, suicides, because they could no longer stand the shame of being failures.

I have seen young men, hardly more than children, roving in wild, wolf packs, because their homes could no longer hold them.

I have seen desperate young mothers bearing babies beside camp fires, under railroad culverts.

I have seen old mothers rummaging through garbage cans for bread.

Yet someone wants me to say that a horror like that is good for us!

It isn't good for us. It will bring ruin, disgrace and death to countless lives. It will set civilization back a thousand years. It will leave its vicious mark on the bodies and souls of our people for generations to come.

God never willed this thing, any more than He willed cannibalism or the bubonic plague. It is the direct result of our great selfishness, our stubborn stupidity, our swinish laziness.

IT ISN'T A CHASTENING CROSS; IT'S A DAMNABLE OUTRAGE, AND WE WHO ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR IT SHOULD BURN WITH SHAME AND REMORSE, AND DEDICATE ALL THE YEARS OF OUR LIVES TO AN EFFORT TO ATONE!

That's the truth about depression.

And as for these people who claim credit because they look for the silver idea in this or any other cloud—how do they get that way? Boasting about something for which they should really be ashamed.

IF THEY SPENT A QUARTER AS MUCH TIME FIGHTING CLOUDS AS THEY SPEND FOR SILVER LININGS, THIS WORLD WOULD BEGIN TO BE A CIVILIZED PLACE.

Better and brighter because of this depression? I'll never believe it! Clean struggle and honest adversity—they're good for any soul. But if it required the starvation of babies, the agony of women, the suicide of decent men to improve our American Character — THEN WE'RE NOT WORTH IMPROVING!

And so I'M saying: I'll take this depression thing on the chin as gamely as I can. I'll try to clean up the mess as quickly and as thoroughly as I can. But, so help me God, I'll never say it was His will! It was our fault—our own disgraceful fault and as long as I live I'll admit it—and be ashamed!

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

Do you get enough out-of-door exercise during cold weather?

You walk back and forth to your place of business if you live in a small town, but that of itself is not long enough in the open air, even though you live near enough to go home to lunch.

Four miles a day or its equivalent and eight glasses of water a day if you are a normal person in good physical condition and want to keep well.

Don't walk until you are tired and come home and lie down.

If your muscles are tired from walking use another set of muscles to get rested and drink plenty of water.

This is not supposed to be a health column.

But it is a good thing to have a few little jabs in the ribs these days to really appreciate the necessity for taking advantage of the bright days to do more walking.

Get out now while you can and enjoy the fresh air—store it up for future use—it is free.

You will be surprised how much difference you'll find in getting the habit of walking rather than riding when it comes to a clear brain for thinking out your problems.

Wise Words

The best hearts are ever the bravest.—Sterne.

On their own merits modest men are dumb.—Colman.

The miser is as much in want of what he has as of what he has not.—Syrus.

Literature is an avenue to glory, ever open for those ingenious men who are deprived of honors or of wealth.—Disraeli.

Knowledge and human power are synonymous, since the ignorance of the cause frustrates the effect.—Bacon.

My advice is, to consult the lives of other men, as he would a looking glass, and from thence fetch examples for his own imitation.—Terence.

Text For Today God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?—Numbers, xxxiii:19.
